The Penn coaches went into session tonight with the scents who saw Cornell win against Dartmouth. All the blueprints were spread out in the training house and plans mapped out to stop Dohie's big Red eleven. Cornell has not heaten Penn since 1923 and the Red and Blue hopes to make it three straight.

The public sale of Cornell game tickets opens Wednesday, hut there will not be many available, as the advance subscriptions call for more than 50,000 seats. Every ticket this year will be $5.

LAFAYETTE IN LONG DRILL.

Team Uses White Ball to Perfect Plays After Moon Risss.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 15.—The Lafayette coaches brought a white ball into use this afternoon as the Maroon began preparations for the closing struggle of the year with Lehigh here next Saturday. The players were deprived of the usual Monday holiday and were kept on the field long after the moon had risen. Perfection of the array of plays that, according to Charles Berry, former Lafayette captain and all-American end, who watched today's practice, gives the Maroon the most deceptive attack it has possessed in many years was the aim of the coaches.

SPECIALISTS DRILL IN YALE PRACTICE

Regulars to Have No Heavy Work in Preparation for Harvard Game Saturday.

HOBEN REPLACES FAILING

Only One Change in Varsity as It Runs Through Signals—No Serious Injuries at Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 15.—Every Yale football player who took part in the Princeton game reported this afternoon at Yale Field to Head Coach Jonee, who lectured them on faults displayed at Jungletown and gave them a short signal drill and setting-up exercises.

Yale's coaching policy of omitting practice all week has already been announced for the regulars, while the second and third string players will be drilled daily in actual football play against the scrubs to develop such specialties as the place punting of Jerry Wadsworth, the drop kicking of Jack Failing, the forward passing of Rnpert McGunigle and the lightning end running of Johnny Ordway. Jones adheres to his announced policy of making no line-up changes against Harvard, and the team that went through signal rehearsal, with one exception, was the same eleven which kicked off against the Tigers. Johnny Hoben, who was removed from Saturday's game suffering from a hruised shoulder, replaced Jack Failing.

John Brandenhurg and Bill Holabird, the only other Yale players who retired because of injury, limped slightly, but Trainer George Connors promises both against Harvard for at least one playing period.

The coaches plan to start Holabird, hut to replace him with Larry Noble in case Yale reaches the Harvard 30-yard line. Noble is the only triple-threat player in the Yale back field, but he is not fully recovered from the injury which shelved him the past month.

Look, the carsman who has jumped from the fourth to the first eleven within a fortnight and who played his first varsity game for Yale Saturday, remains at centre this afternoon and is a fixture.

During the latter part of today's practice Berry Ryan replaced Benton at right tackle, Noble succeeded Holabird at left halfback, Failing replaced Hoben at right halfback and Johnny Cox succeeded Kline at fullback. Wadsworth was used for a few plays at fullback as the practice closed. Only Bruce Caldwell and Bill Vandegrift were left on the hospital list. There is little chance of using either again this season.

While it was semi-officially announced at Cambridge last week that Harvard had 1,500 tickets left over for the Yale game, and that applicants would not be compelled to follow the "personal use" regulation, it was stated tonight by H. F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic Association, that Yale insists on a rigid application of the "personal use" regulation, and that applicants would be expected to use tickets allotted to them.

Mr. Woodcock further said that Yale has no tickets whatever, and that at this time it did not appear that it would have any before game time.

YALE A GOOD LOSER, ITS JOURNAL STATES

Sees Glory in Defeat by Princeton as Big Three Series Came to an End.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 15 (AP).—Glory for Yale in the defeat of the Eli eleven by Princeton Saturday is seen by The Yale Daily News which declares that the game "disproved every criticism made of the team and coaches this season." Pointing out that the football triumvirate, the Big Three, is now a legend, The News holds that "its virtne will be an inspiration to football of the future if judged by the final game in its long history."

"Into the history of the Big Three," The News says, "a final chapter has been written in Orange and Black. It tells the story of a victory over Yale—a victory hotly contested and well earned. Yale bowed down before a team composed of masters in the art of football. Yet there was glory in defeat.

"Yale disproved every criticism made of the team and coaches this season, playing as fine a brand of football as will be seen on any field. Not until the game was over was there any assurance of victory for either team, and in losing Yale won the approval of all who watched the grim battle. Fast, clean and hard fought throughout, this jubilee Yale-Princeton game was a fitting climax and conclusion to the Big Three athletic rivalry. It will be famous in fiction after the joy and sorrow of the outcome are dispersed. The football triumvirate is now a legend, and its virtue will be an inspiration to football of the future if judged by the final game in its long history.

"Princeton and Yale were friends and rivals Saturday. The intensity of rivalry was apparently paralleled by mutual respect for the two institutions. Yale was courteously received and well applauded; Princeton was acknowledged the victor graciously. Yale was a good loser."

NAVY'S GAZE TURNS TO ARMY CONTEST

Big Game 12 Days Off as Men Ease Up After Georgetown —Shapley Impresses.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 15.—The Nav. players who took part in the trying game against Georgetown were given little to do this afternoon. Coach Bill Ingram went over the work in the Georgetown game and outlined the training for the coming week.

With only a minor game remaining at home, all eyes turned toward the final contest with the Army at Chicago and the big sign in front of the gymnasium warned every player that the great test was just twelve days off. All preparations will tend toward bringing the team to the top of its form for the game.

Shapley and Ransford played so well in the Navy backfield Saturday that their chances of being included in the first-string selection are fine. Shapley is given credit for turning the tide. He ran well, but did particularly effective work in intercepting two Georgetown passes and catching those of his own team-mates.

HORWEEN TO SHIFT HARVARD REGULARS

PRATT CERTAIN TO REMAIN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 15 (AP).—Head Coach Arnold Horween tonight informed the Harvard football squad that he was about to make a sweeping reorganization of the team. He said that he was not prsparid to announce the team that would face Yale in the season's final game on Saturday for the reason that he did not yet know how the positions would be allotted.

The coach's announcement of a program which shatters Harvard traditions set on foot much speculation regarding the elsven which would start the Yale-Harvard game. It was said that Horween's action was based on the disappointing showing made by the Crimson against Brown last Saturday. Only two men who started in that contest are sure to start on Saturday, it was said.

In the line the one player assured of a place is Charlie Pratt at right guard. Captain Coady, who was hurt in the Princeton game, will play if his condition permits. In the back field Sayles at fullback, is said to bs ths single certainty.

The regular back field in recent games has been Putnam, quarterback; Miller and French, halfbacks, and Sayles, fullback.

Pending a definite announcement by Coach Horween, it was said tonight that Putnam, Miller and French would be superseded by Stafford, Guarnaccia and Chauncey. Guarnaccia, seriously injured in the Princet n game, was believed to be out of the running for the year, but physicians have pronounced him greatly improved, and it was said he probably would be ready on Satnrday.

DARTMOUTH WILL LOSE 6 REGULARS NEXT FALL

Replacements on Hand for Every Post Except Centre—Team Gets Ovation Despite Defeat.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 15.—With Dartmouth's season concluded after the 24-23 defeat by Cornell Saturday, Green rooters are already looking ahead to the 1927 season. The team will lose six regulars, but the reserve strength promises good replacements in every position except centre.

Josh Davis, the pivot man, was the outstanding Dartmouth star this Fall and his loss will be a severe blow. In the back field Dartmouth loses Dooley and Horton, but Coach Hawley has two good men in Harris and Black to replace them, to say nothing of the sensational freshman back, Marsters.

All the varsity ends except Picken will be available next year, hut Hardy and Holleran will be missing from the tackle positions and Ruhin from his post at right guard. With some strong freshmen coming np to the varsity, however, Dartmouth men are already looking for revenge next year.

The team, although defeated, received an ovation when it returned here last night. The entire freshman class spent the afternoon and evening gathering wood for an immense bonfire, and when the time came to light it the pile stretched thirty feet into the air.

The band made the rounds of the dormitories just before the team was scheduled to arrive and the entire student body turned out to welcome the men. A long line of torches stretched down Main Street as the buses drove into town from the station. There were songs and cheers for every man on the team and the coaching staff, including the rubbers and the scrubs.

Coach Hawley made a brief speech to the crowd, lauding his men for their fight. He told how Dartmouth held Cornell for three downs on the 1-yard line and then only gave way hy inches. He finished his talk hy saying that although Dartmouth's season was not successful from the standpoint of games won, the team was never disgraced.

CORNELL IS INSPIRED BY DARTMOUTH CLASH

Team, With All Regulars in Shape, Will Start Drive for Game With Penn.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Encouraged hy its great comeback against Dartmouth, the Cornell football squad will now begin preparations for the Pennsylvania game with new heart and spirit. In appreciation of the victory Gil Dobie gave the Ithacans a layoff today, although they reported for his comments on the Dartmouth game and heard discussion of the Pennsylvania game plans.

Trainer Sheehan reports that the regulars came through in good shape, though there are the usual number of bruises. No serious injuries have been reported, however, and the full strength will be available for the Penn drive.

The Dartmouth game settled the problem of line personnel, Evans's brilliant work at right tackle clinching that position for him. Whether Dobie will now use Hoekelman as signal caller and start him and wheather Mollnet will become regular fullback again, the next few days will disclose.

The story was told today that Balderston, who held the pigskin when Carey kicked the placement goal that beat Dartmouth, had never served in that capacity before. It was a brand new experience, but Butterfield was out of the game and so were the others who had experience in that line.

Schuler Beats Garfunkle.

Harry Schuler defeated Sam Garfunkle in the best game to date in the Eastern States three-cushion championship tournament at Kreuter's Academy last night hy the score of 40 to 31. The match went thirty-five innings, and the high rune were 6 for Schuler and 5 for Garfunkle.

HELEN GRANT WEDS S. C. HOPKINS JR.

Becomes the Bride of New Yorker at Her Parents' Home in Vacaville, Cal.

HELEN A. AHRENS MARRIES

Wed to William W. Troy in the Huguenot Memorial Church, Pelham Manor—Other Nuptials.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 15.—Miss Helen Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grant of Vacaville, Cal., and Samuel C. Hopkins Jr. of New York were married today in the home of the bride. Mrs. Hopkins was graduated from the University of California two years ago and since then has spent most of her time in New York with relatives. It was there she met Mr. Hopkins.

Miss Grant is an Alpha Phi. Her father is Appraiser for the Federal Farm Loan Bank in Berkeley, and she is a niece of John U. Calkins, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank in this city. Mr. Hopkins is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Hopkins of Catskill, N. Y. He is with the A. G. Spaulding Company.

The couple will pass the time from now until Feb. 1 in California and then will go to New York to make their home.

Beavin—Rodgers.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 15—Mrs. J. Kearny Rodgers of Wilmington, Del., and the Rev. Ambrose P. Beavin of Stuart, Fla., were married this morning at Trinity Church, Princeton, with only the immediate family in attendance. The ceremony was followed by a family luncheon at the home of Mrs. Rodgers's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Cowenhoven Jr.

Mrs. Rodgers is the widow of J. Kearny Rodgers, a former official of the du Pont Company, who died in 1919.

Troy—Ahrens.

The wedding of Miss Helen Adele Ahrens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave E. Ahrens of Monterey Avenue, Pelham Heights, to William Wylie Troy, son of John H. Troy of New Rochelle, took place last evening in the Huguenot Memorial Church, Pelham Manor. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Lewis Gaston Leary, pastor of the church. A reception for 300 followed at 67 Boulevard, Pelham Manor.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a long frock coat of white satin embellished with pearls and chenille embroidery and a yoke of duchesse and rose point lace. The veil train was of tulle with a wide panel of duchesse and rose point lace down the centre and caught at the back of the head in a band of orange blossoms. The bouquet was of lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Miss Adele Ahrens, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids included the Misses Jessie Owen, Helen Stewart of Pelham Manor, Edith Rumpf of New Rochelle and Harriet Johnson of New York. Albert Kaiser of New Rochelle was the best man. The ushers were Frederick Sandbloom, Waldo Zauner, Raymond McGeslera and Edward Lyman Bill, all of New Rochelle.

The bride attended Miss Dow's School at Briarcliffe Manor. Mr. Troy attended Columbia University.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Continued Irregularity in Stocks —Call Money 5%, Francs Very Strong Again.

The incidents to which attention was mostly attracted on yesterday's markets were the rise in Stock Exchange call-money rates to 5 per cent., highest in nearly a month, the continued advance in the franc, and the recovery of cotton to the 13-cent price. Not much interest was attracted to the stock market. One or two favorable dividend announcements, not wholly unexpected, failed to stimulate very general activity. The prevailing trend of prices was upward, and several industrial shares advanced 2 to 5 points. But most of them retained at the closing only a part of their early gains, and there was some irregularity elsewhere in the market. Prices again appeared to be doing little more than drift; assisted, in one direction or the other, by professional handiwork.

While the franc did not, at the day's high point, reach its best price of the month, it went within a trifling fraction of it and nearly all of the day's advance was retained. At Paris, the pound sterling's price in francs fell to 114.90, which, except for the 143.65 price of Nov. 4, is the lowest of the season. Yesterday's continuing rise of the franc naturally lent interest to the question which European markets are debating—whether the selected "stabilization point" for gold resumption will be 150 or 125 francs to the pound. There has been some reason for believing that the French Finance Ministry was leaving to the open market the fixing of the possible new gold parity. Belgium accepted the market's figure of the moment; Italy, according to indications, is endeavoring to put up the open market as a basis for stabilization.

The day's higher Stock Exchange rate for money caused some comment in view of the weekly statement of "brokers' loans." In these the member banks reported to the Federal Reserve a decrease of $37,373,000 for the week ending last Wednesday, making a total decrease of $217,376,000 since the middle of September—the date when the down-turn of stock market values and the release of capital from the Stock Exchange may be said to have begun. It is to be observed, however, that these loans are still far larger than at the low point of last Spring. They exceed the outstanding total of May 19 by $194,301,000, and the requirements of credit in general industry are much larger now than then. The Stock Exchange's borrowings are probably smaller than they were in the present week of last November; but the action of the Reserve banks then reflected the opinion that the credit used for such purposes was entirely too large.

Yesterday's report on the country's October foreign trade is of interest chiefly as reflecting general tendencies. That the month's surplus of exports, $74,000,000, should be $42,000,000 less than a year before and in fact the smallest October showing since 1922, is not of itself remarkable. The first four months of the present year produced $132,000,000 excess of imports, whereas the export surplus of the same months in 1925 had been $258,000,000. But the steady increase of monthly imports is the striking consideration. Not since the Autumn of 1919, when "deflation" had hardly begun and average prices were 20 per cent. above this season's, have October imports reached as high a value as the figures reported yesterday.

Since imports of wartime were much smaller, it is safe to say that in quantity, last month's importations exceeded all Autumn records in our history. Our exports have also increased, but not by any means in the same degree. The increase of grain exports, last month, was evidently offset by the fact that, large as last month's cotton shipments actually were, they were sold at a 30 per cent. lower price than those of the preceding October. On the whole, yesterday's trade statement bears out the belief that, while our sales to the outside world are not varying greatly from year to year, our purchases are steadily mounting. This, however, is quite in line with predictions of competent economists on the logical outcome of our new international position.

BECAUSE of limitations to the north and [illegible], Chicago must look directly to the west as its logical field for future expansion.

OCTOBER IMPORTS UP, EXPORTS MUCH LESS

Month's Surplus of Exports $41,492,000 Smaller Than in October, 1925.

DROP IN YEAR $379,250,714

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP).—America's foreign trade for October showed a favorable balance of $74,000,000, with exports of $457,000,000 and imports of $383,000,000.

The month's exports, as figured by the Commerce Department, were larger than those for any month of the present year, but were below the $490,000,000 of exports in October, 1925. Imports were greater than those of any month this year since April and compared with $374,000,000 of imports during October, 1925.

Gold movement in international trade was small during the month, with exports of $1,115,004 and imports of $8,443,866. In October, 1925, gold exports were over $28,000,000 and imports showed exports of $6,876,315 and imshower exports of $6,876,315 and imports of $4,351,097.

October foreign trade in merchandise for a series of years compares as follows (+ indicating excess of imports, — excess of exports):

Year.	Exports.	Imports.	Excess.
1926...	$457,000,000	$383,000,000	—$74,000,000

WOOLWORTH SURPLUS TO GAIN $10,000,000

Revaluation of English Company to Reflect in Statement of Parent Concern.

Revaluation of the stock of F. W. Woolworth & Co., Ltd., of England, is to be effected, according to decision of the Board of Directors. The majority of this stock is held by the F. W. Woolworth Company of New York.

As the English concern is a closed corporation, there is no public market for the stock, and thus it cannot be revalued on the basis of market value. The directors have decided to revalue it for this year and each one following, on the basis of book value as represented by the invested surplus on the books of the corporation and certified to by public accountants in London and New York. The increased value will be shown in a "securities owned" account and credited to surplus.

The result of this action will appear in the annual statement at the close of business on Dec. 31 next. On Dec. 31 last year the amount covered by this resolution was $11,098,866. The English corporation has 252 stores in operation, thirty-five of which were opened in the current year.

As a result of the announcement of the decision, Wall Street expressed the opinion yesterday that the F. W. Woolworth Company would declare in the near future a stock dividend. Shares of the latter company, previously carried at $1,000,000, will now be valued at a little more than $11,000,000. This will mean that the American company should show a surplus for 1926 of approximately $50,000,000, and that profit and lose surplus will be practically doubled.

To Redeem Tidal Osage Oil Stock.

Redemption of all the outstanding 7 per cent. preferred stock of the Tidal Osage Oil Company, totaling 5,209 shares will be effected on Jan. 15. The stock has a total par value of $520,900. It will be redeemed at $105 per share and dividends accrued from Dec. 31, to Jan. 15. Preferred stockholders who elect to convert their holdings into common stock may do so at the rate of four shares of common for each one of preferred.

To Offer Hungarian Bank Stock.

A substantial stock interest in the Hungarian General Savings Bank has been acquired by G. V. Grace & Co. and public offering of it is expected within a few days. The bank was founded in 1881 and has paid dividends in every year since organization.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Prices advanced on the New York Stock Exchange during the greater part of yesterday's trading. Easier conditions prevailed in the time-money market, which contributed to the improved sentiment, and for a time Wall Street was disposed to ignore the stiffening in the call-money rate to 5 per cent., dismissing it as a temporary incident. United States Steel retained its leadership and continued the advance which has been under way for some days. There was a renewal of activity in several equipment issues, particularly American Locomotive, which rose sharply at times and closed with a net gain of 1¼ points. Several motor shares also were bought rather heavily. The firmness of the afternoon market, after a brief reaction, was ascribed partly to assurances which Wall Street had received that the long-awaited financing of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey would be announced after the close.

"Backlog of Shorts" in Motors.

Wall Street traders were of the opinion yesterday that there is a large "backlog of shorts" in the motor group and that the shorts are not particularly courageous and will cover stock if frightened a little. It has not been considered unusual that there should be heavy short selling in the motors as the busy season ends, nor that there should be a large "bear interest" in the group of shares. But Wall Street was more inclined than usual to take into consideration the fact that every share of motor stock sold short must be rebought sooner or later, and that this short interest forms a sort of cushion of rebuying. There was little indication yesterday that some of the hurried buying in the low-priced motor shares was anything but short covering. Nevertheless, comment was made in speculative circles on the steady inquiry for some of these low-priced shares, whereas the same issues were declining a month or so ago when the companies presumably were selling more cars from day to day than at the present time.

The Buying of Steel Common.

The leadership which Steel Common has developed in recent trading and which continued unabated yesterday has given rise to reports in Wall Street that an extra cash dividend is to be expected in the early part of 1927. The story going around the brokerage houses is that the present surplus is sufficiently large for all conceivable purposes and that henceforth once a year a cash extra will be paid as earnings warrant. One of the tickers added fuel to the flames by hazarding the guess yesterday that Steel would pay three $5 extras in 1927. As usual, Steel's executives paid no attention to these rumors.

New Jersey Standard's Financing.

Part of the good feeling which was apparent in Wall Street yesterday afternoon seemed to be based upon definite assurances that the long-expected financing of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was receiving its finishing touches. Many commentators have been insisting that this operation was one of the important developments "hanging over the market" which would have to be disposed of before any emphatic resumption of activity could be expected. Whether the inference was warranted or not, it was insisted that a more optimistic spirit prevailed in stock market circles yesterday afternoon.

Call Money at 5 Per Cent.

The advance of call money to 5 per cent. yesterday, the first time that rate has prevailed this month, was said by most banking authorities to be the result of temporary conditions and not to represent any change in underlying conditions. The banks called about $25,000,000 of loans, apparently in connection with the unusually large mid-month disbursements of dividends and interest being made by corporations. The Government's operations also exerted a temporary influence on the money market. Approximately $66,000,000 in Liberty Loan interest was payable yesterday, of which about $22,000,000 was drawn from the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. This necessitated the placing of large amounts at the disposal of the Government, but the disbursement by the Treasury will flow back into the market almost at once. There was little change in the quotations on loans of fixed maturity.

The Baltimore & Ohio Dividend.

Recent remarks by officials of the Baltimore & Ohio appear to have encouraged the belief in Wall Street that the road might make a further increase in its dividend rate from 6 to 7 per cent. and market stock to provide for capital needs. Many observers declared yesterday that they would not be surprised to see this action come at the end of this year or the first of next. On the other hand, a leading banker expressed the opinion that the directors would delay the advance until they had built up a substantial surplus, so as to avoid any possibility of being forced to decrease the rate if a period of reaction should come.

Loan to France Nearer.

Continued strength in the French franc, which advanced almost one-twelfth of a cent yesterday, was attributed to the favorable financial news carried in week-end cable despatches from Paris. The principal encouraging factor was the plan for an internal consolidation loan which is intended to care for the defense bonds maturing early next year. Such a loan would do away with fears of a compulsory conversion similar to Belgium's. The financial world also was interested in reports of a possible loan to France from British and American interests in the event of ratification of the debt agreements and stabilization of French currency. Bankers here said no concrete preparations had been made for such a loan, but that the loan undoubtedly would be forthcoming if the prescribed conditions are met in Paris.

Record Ore Movement.

When the United States Steel Corporation found itself at the beginning of this Spring with dangerously low supplies of raw material, and when the tardiness of the advent of warm weather prevented it from increasing these supplies, the determination was made to avoid such a contingency in the future. As a result, ore is moving in large quantities across the Northwest, and such roads as the Great Northern, which depends primarily on ore, are benefitting proportionately. In the first week of November an advance of more than $400,000 in gross revenues was reported, following one of similiar proportions in the last week of October. The movement should continue strong throughout the present month, railroad men believe, but will not extend much beyond it.

Decrease in Brokers' Loans.

The reduction in brokers' loans announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve member banks brought the total of such loans down to just about the figures that were reached on the decline that extended from late in September to the end of October. The first week in November brought the first increase in the loans for more than a month, amounting to about $38,000,000. The decrease announced yesterday amounted to more than $37,000,000.

MONEY.

MONDAY, NOV. 15, 1926.

An exceptionally heavy draught on the money market as banks prepared for the mid-month requirements sent Stock Exchange call loan funds to 5 per cent. about midday, after renewals had been arranged at 4½. Maximum charge is highest since Oct. 18. It was reported that approximately $35,000,000 was withdrawn, and that Western banks participated in the recalling to a considerable extent. Time money was a shade firmer in tone because of the stiffness in day to day money, small amount of all dates lending at 4¾ per cent. No changes developed in the business money market, which was quiet and steady.

Second International Securities Corporation

Cumulative First Preferred Stock,—6% Series

(Par Value $50 a Share)

Preferred as to assets and dividends over the Second Preferred and Common Stock. Redeemable on any dividend date on 30 days' notice at 105% and accrued dividends. Cumulative dividends payable quarterly January, April, July and October 1. Under the present Federal Income Tax Law (Revenue Act of 1926) dividends on this stock are exempt from the Normal Tax and are entirely exempt from all Federal Income Taxes when held by an individual whose net income is $10,000 or less. Transfer Agent: Guaranty Trust Company of New York. Registrar: The Bank of America, New York City.

Business: Second International Securities Corporation has been organized under the laws of Maryland to carry on the business of an investment trust. Its purpose is to afford its Stockholders safety of principal through broad international diversification and constant supervision; to invest and reinvest its resources in seasoned and marketable domestic and foreign securities; and to a limited extent to underwrite issues which are eligible for purchase under regulations adopted by the Board of Directors.

600,000 Shares Cumulative First Preferred Stock (par value $50)
60,000 Shares Cumulative Second Preferred Stock (par value $50)
600,000 Shares Class B Common Stock (no par value)

The Corporation reserves the right to issue bonds, notes or debentures to an amount not exceeding its paid-in capital, surplus and reserves. All of the authorized Class B Stock has been sold for cash to American Founders Trust for $1,800,000. The organizers have agreed to purchase for $3,000,000 in cash, 60,000 shares of 6% Cumulative Second Preferred Stock ($50 par value) proportionately as certain amounts of Cumulative First Preferred Stock are issued.

Provisions of Issue: No First Preferred Stock shall be issued by the Corporation unless the net assets (after deducting all indebtedness) taken at cost, including the proceeds from the First Preferred Stock then to be issued, equal at least 150% of the par value of the First Preferred Stock ontstanding and that to be issued.

Investment Regulations: The Directors have adopted the following restrictive investment regulations:

1. The Corporation shall, within six months after its resources aggregate $5,000,000, and thereafter, own at all times at least 400 different marketable securities.
2. Not more than 35% of the total resources of the Corporation may be invested in securities originating in any one country other than the United States.
3. Not more than 3% of the total resources of the Corporation may be invested in any one security, except Government, State and municipal obligations, or securities of investment organizations, banks or insurance companies.
4. Information concerning the history, assets and earning record for a period of at least three years shall be obtained concerning each issuer, before authorization of purchase; except that a maximum of not more than 20% of the resources of the Corporation may be invested in securities of more recently organized companies, corporations, associations or trusts.
5. Not more than 25% of the resources of the Corporation may be invested in securities of any one of the following classes:
(1) Banking institutions, (2) Insurance companies, (3) Investment organizations, (4) Railroad companies, (5) Public utility companies.
Not more than 12½% of the resources of the Corporation may be invested in securities of any other distinct class of business or industry.
6. At least 80% of the investments of the Corporation in securities issued by railroad, public utility and industrial companies shall at time of purchase have the following book value as compared with purchase price: (a) Bonds, 150% or more, (b) Preferred shares, 125% or more, (c) Common shares, 100% or more.
7. Securities owned, when ascertained to be no longer eligible, shall be sold within one year from such date.
8. The Corporation may underwrite issues of securities eligible for purchase, to an amount not exceeding in any case twice the amount of such securities which could be purchased for investment, but in no case to an amount in excess of 6% of total resources. The total liabilities incurred in underwriting shall not at any time exceed 90% of the resources of the Corporation.

Investment Service: Statistical service and investment counsel, subject to the supervision of the Board of Directors, will be provided by American Founders Trust for an annual fee of one-half of one per cent (½%) of the value of the Corporation's average resources, which fee shall constitute the only fee for this service.

120,000 Shares Common Stock, Class A

(No Par Value)

Dividends payable quarterly on the first days of January, April, July and October. Transfer Agent: Guaranty Trust Company of New York. Registrar: The Bank of America, New York City.

Provisions of Issue: Dividends as declared by the Board of Directors shall be paid annually per share upon the Class A and Class B Common Stock in the following priorities:

First, up to $2.50 per share on Class A Common.
Next, up to $1.50 per share on Class B Common.
Then an additional $1.50 per share on Class A Common.
Then an additional $2.50 per share on Class B Common.

Thereafter additional dividends shall be paid equally on shares of both classes. Such dividends are non-cumulative.

Liquidation of Assets: In case of any distribution of assets, subject to the rights of Preferred Stockholders, the remaining assets shall be divided into two parts, in proportion to the amounts paid in on Common Stock of each class, and distributed pro rata.

Voting Power: The holders of the Class A and Class B Common Stock shall have equal and exclusive voting power per share for all purposes of the Corporation, subject to rights of First Preferred Stock to vote in event of default in dividends.

Legal matters in connection with these issues will be passed upon by Messrs. Seibert & Rigge of New York.

Principal and semi-annual interest (April 1 and October 1) payable in gold coin at the Guardian Trust Company of New Jersey, Newark, N. J. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal.

STOCK OPTION WARRANTS

Each $1,000 bond is to be accompanied by a detachable Stock Option Warrant entitling the holder thereof to purchase a unit of 15 shares of Common Stock of the Company without par value at $20 per share on or before October 1, 1927; thereafter and on or before October 1, 1928, at $22.50 per share; thereafter and on or before October 1, 1929, at $25 per share; and thereafter to and including October 1, 1931, at $30 per share. Each $500 bond is to be accompanied by a detachable Stock Option Warrant entitling the holder thereof to purchase a unit of 7½ shares at the above rates.

BUSINESS: Brazos River Gas Company is a public utility engaged in the production, transportation and marketing of natural gas for domestic, commercial and industrial purposes in North Central Texas.

SECURITY: These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a closed first mortgage on all its fixed properties, now owned or hereafter acquired. According to independent appraisals, the replacement value of the Company's properties exceeds $1,600,000, and the value as a going concern exceeds $2,400,000.

SINKING FUND: A sinking fund operating monthly will retire all but $93,000 principal amount of bonds by maturity.

EARNINGS: As certified by Main and Company, net earnings of the properties available for interest, sinking fund, depreciation, depletion, federal taxes, etc., for the 2 fiscal years ended August 31, 1926, averaged $264,401 per annum; for the 6 months ended June 30, 1926, the corresponding net earnings were $150,926.

Net Earnings, Annual Average as Above	$264,401
Maximum Annual Interest Charges	49,420
Sinking Fund (1st 12 Months' Period)	96,000

For the 2 fiscal years ended August 31, 1926, annual average net earnings show interest charges earned more than 5.3 times.

DIVIDENDS: Main and Company, Certified Public Accountants, have calculated earnings for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1926, after interest charges and 7% dividends on $250,000 Preferred Stock, but before depreciation, depletion and federal taxes, at the annual rate of $4.16 per share on 43,750 shares of Common Stock outstanding. On the Common Stock an initial quarterly dividend of $.25 per share has been declared payable January 3, 1927.

MANAGEMENT: The Company is managed by an experienced organization headed by Mr. David A. Upham, President, identified with the Natural Gas Industry for the past 25 years.

We offer these bonds when, as and if issued and accepted by us subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft. Counsel for the Company, C. D. Scully, Esq., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Messrs. Penix, Miller and Perkins, Mineral Wells, Texas.

$3,700,000 IN BONDS ON MARKET TODAY

Two Public Utility Issues, One for $2,000,000, Included—Municipal Offering.

MERGER OF GAS COMPANIES

Principal Item for Financing of Consolidation in Two Southwestern States.

Today's offerings in the bond market include two public utility issues and one municipal issue. Their total is $3,700,000. Other important pieces of new financing are in the offing.

G. E. Barrett & Co., Inc., and Frederick Pierce & Co. will place a new block of $2,500,000 Midwest Gas Company first mortgage 7 per cent. gold bonds, Series A, dated Nov. 1, 1926, and maturing on Nov. 1, 1936. The bonds are priced at 100 and accrued interest.

The Midwest Gas Company has been organized to acquire the business properties of the Oklahoma Service Company, the Williams Gas Company, the Industrial Fuel Corporation and other concerns supplying natural gas in Oklahoma and Kansas. Capitalization of the new company will consist of $3,000,000 first mortgage 7 per cent. gold bonds, Series A, of which $2,500,000 are being issued, and 300,000 shares of no-par common stock, of which 200,000 will be outstanding.

Thirty thousand shares of the common stock are reserved for stock purchase privilege in connection with the first-mortgage financing, the holder of each $1,000 bond being entitled to purchase ten shares of stock up to and including Nov. 1, 1926. Up to Dec. 31, 1929, the price will be $15 a share, and thereafter it will increase $2.50 a share a year. A fixed sinking fund will be provided sufficient to retire this entire bond issue at maturity.

A. M. Lamport & Co., Inc., F. J. Lisman & Co. and the Guardian Securities Company will offer $750,000 Brazos River Gas Company first-closed mortgage 7 per cent. five-year sinking fund gold bonds at 99¾, to yield 7.05 per cent.

The Guardian Detroit Company, Inc., and Ames, Emerich & Co. will place a new issue of $450,000 Freeport (N. Y.) 4.20 per cent. bonds, which will mature at the rate of $15,000 annually. The bonds are to yield 4.10 per cent. for the 1931-1945 maturities and 4.15 per cent. for 1946-1960 maturities. The assessed valuation of Freeport is $15,345,940 and the city's total debt, including this issue, amounts to $1,018,650.

The largest piece of State financing on the schedule for the next few weeks is an issue of $20,000,000 State of North Carolina bonds, for which bids will be received on Dec. 1. Three-fourths of the loan will be used for highway purposes and the balance for schools.

Public offering will be made within the next few days of $940,000 Central Idaho Irrigation District general obligation 6 per cent. gold bonds by a syndicate composed of W. K. Terry & Co., Prendergast & Co. and R. S. Dickson & Co., Inc.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP).—Permission to purchase the New Orleans & Lower Coast Railroad was granted the Missouri Pacific Railroad today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The line is fifty-nine miles long and will cost the Missouri Pacific $300,000.

$37,373,000 DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS

Loans made to brokers and dealers on stock and bond collateral by the Federal Reserve member banks in this city decreased $37,373,000 in the week ended on Nov. 10, it was announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board. The total now stands at $2,603,006,000, which is within a small amount of the figure announced at the start of this month after a decrease of more than $210,000,000 in October. Detailed figures follow:

	Nov. 10.	Nov. 3.
Loans for own account	$797,685,000	$839,582,000
For out-of-town banks	1,059,763,000	1,047,443,000
For others	745,558,000	753,358,000

Of the total outstanding on Nov. 10, $1,894,344,000 consisted of demand loans and $708,662,000 of time loans, which compared with $1,929,519,000 of demand loans and $710,860,000 of time loans on Nov. 3.

The highest of total of loans reported by the Federal Reserve institutions was $3,141,125,000 on Jan. 6. With few interruptions, the total went steadily downward to a low point of $2,406,695,000 on May 19. After that the tendency was steadily upward, until the total at the end of September was more than $404,000,000 above the low point. A decline of more than $210,000,000 last month was followed by an increase of approximately $38,000,000 in the first week of November, which was offset by the decrease announced yesterday.

INVESTMENT TRUST GROWS.

Second International Securities Shares Fully Subscribed.

The first issue of share units of the Second International Securities Corporation, which was formed on Oct. 15, has been entirely subscribed by security holders in the other two investment trusts of the group, the American Founders Trust and the International Securities Trust of America. This issue comprises 120,000 shares each of 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, and Class A common stock, offered in units of one share of each. Including the subscriptions of the organizers, total subscriptions to the new corporation are now more than $10,000,000.

All the authorized Class B stock has been sold to the organizers for $1,800,000. The corporation will also receive from the organizers $3,000,000 in cash for the 60,000 shares of 6 per cent. cumulative second preferred stock, $50 par, payable in proportion as the first preferred is sold. The first $1,000,000 of the $3,000,000 is due when the amount paid in on the first preferred totals $5,000,000.

H. Hentz & Co. Has Birthday Fete.

Employes of H. Hentz & &Co., members of the New York Stock, Cotton, Rubber and other exchanges, celebrated the firm's seventieth anniversary at a dinner in Keen's Chop House last night. The firm was founded by Henry Hentz, a leading figure in the cotton trade for nearly fifty years. Jerome Lewine is the only surviving partner of the original firm.

Sells Utility Stock Issue.

Pynchon & Co. has sold through dealers an issue of 9,000 shares of North Carolina Public Service Company $7 dividend cumulative preferred stock at $96, to yield 7.30 per cent. This makes 31,281 shares of the stock outstanding. It is callable at $110. The company is a subsidiary of the General Gas and Electric Corporation.

CALL MONEY RATE GOES TO 5 PER CENT.

SHORTAGE ONLY TEMPORARY

Authorities Agree That Underlying Conditions Are Unchanged—Funds to Return.

Under the influence of the calling of about $35,000,000 in loans by banks the call money rate advanced to 5 per cent. yesterday, the first time that that rate has been in effect since Oct. 18. Various shiftings of funds incident to the payment of large amounts in dividends and interest by corporations and withdrawals by the Government for disbursement of interest on Liberty bonds were ascribed as the causes of the hardening of the money rates. The change was regarded as temporary, and most authorities agreed that there had been no alteration in underlying conditions.

Approximately $66,000,000 of interest on Second Liberty Loan 4 per cent. bonds and Second Liberty 4¼ per cent. bonds became due yesterday, of which about $22,000,000 was payable at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The Government, in preparation for these disbursements, withdrew large amounts that had been left on deposit with the banks here since the flotation of the latest Treasury certificate issue. This call caused a drain. The payment of interest on Government securities, however, usually exerts only a brief influence toward a hardening of money rates, as the money finds its way back to the market promptly for reinvestment.

In addition to the Government operations the money market was affected by the fact that 164 corporations yesterday paid out in dividends and interest many millions of dollars. Many railroad, public utility and industrial companies were included in the list of those making disbursements to bond or stock holders. Last week's Federal Reserve statement, showing a large decrease in bills discounted, had indicated large repayments by the banks to the Reserve Bank and had forecast the likelihood of rather liberal calling of loans this week.

The 5 per cent. rate of yesterday compared with 4½ per cent. on the last business day of last week and a rate of 4¼ per cent. that prevailed during most of the week. The only change in the time money market was the disappearance of bids at 4½ per cent., but this was not significant, as no business had been transacted at such a low rate. The bulk of the time money lent yesterday was on a basis of 4¾ per cent.

Loree Merger Ruling in Spring.

The conclusion of the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearings on the application of L. F. Loree to merge the St. Louis Southwestern, Kansas City Southern and Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroads means that a supporting brief will be filed by the railroad promoter within thirty days. Walter E. Meyer, representing minority stockholders, will then have twenty days to submit an opposition brief. Final arguments probably will be heard by the commission late in January. A decision cannot be expected before early Spring.

Fixed Sinking Fund Sufficient to Retire This Entire Offering at Maturity

A letter from Mr. S. M. Williams, Jr., President of the Company, copies of which will be furnished upon request, is as follows:

COMPANY

The Midwest Gas Company was organized to acquire the business and properties of the Oklahoma Service Company, the Williams Gas Company, the Industrial Fuel Corporation and several other companies supplying natural gas in Oklahoma and Kansas. Upon the completion of the plant additions and extensions provided for in this financing, the Company will own and control approximately 292 miles of main pipe line system. It will control gas rights on more than 20,000 acres of proven leases, containing approximately 410 producing wells.

The territory to be served embraces some 23 representative towns and communities, including Lawton and Altus, Oklahoma, and Neodesha, Kansas, totaling approximately 100,000 in population. The Oklahoma territory embraces a rich agricultural section and marks the center of a great cotton and food producing portion of the State. The Kansas territory affords the Company a rich industrial load, constant in its demand.

BUSINESS

The present operations are principally the transportation and wholesaling of gas to industrial companies, and to distributing companies owning the franchises in the towns supplied. Upon completion of this financing, the Company will include among its customers the Standard Oil Company of Kansas, the Southwestern Gas & Fuel Company (an Insull property) and a number of large brick, cement and gypsum manufacturers, with total contracts for a daily delivery in excess of 17,500,000 cubic feet and estimated sales of 20,000,000 cubic feet per day. The majority of these contracts are of ten years' duration with the privilege of renewal.

The foregoing earnings indicate that approximately $2.00 and $2.80 per share will be earned on the Common Stock before Federal taxes and Sinking Fund during 1927 and 1928 respectively.

SECURITY

These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on all the physical property of the Company, and will constitute its only funded debt. They will be additionally secured by deposit of important contracts, leases and agreements. The sound value of the physical property of the Company, after plant extensions provided for in this financing, including leaseholds, but exclusive of value of contracts, has been estimated by Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., to be in excess of the amount of this offering. Total asset value of the property after plant additions provided for in the present financing has been appraised by Mr. Ralph E. Davis, Consulting Geologist, at in excess of $4,000,000.

These bonds are offered when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to approval of counsel. All legal matters in connection with this issue will be passed upon for the Bankers by Messrs. Self Liquidation Insures Safety for Investors

EVERY month the owner of every property securing an issue of Straus Bonds must make a payment out of the month's rental earnings for the benefit of the bondholders. These monthly payments of both principal and interest are sufficient to meet the interest coupons as they come due and amortize the principal.

Self-liquidation of loans in this manner—paying off a part of the debt each year out of earnings of the property—is an inflexible policy of this House.

Investors are best safeguarded by self-liquidating loans because—

1. Emphasis is placed on earnings—the ability of a property to meet payments month in and month out.
2. Bonds grow safer as they grow older. As bonds are paid off each year, the equity protecting the remainder steadily increases.

This policy of insisting on ample margins both of earnings and of equity judiciously executed by a trained and experienced organization is the reason behind the record of this House—now 44 years without loss to any investor. In the hands of the expert organization of our Loan Department this policy has safeguarded investors in Straus Bonds amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars.

Our current issues of Straus Bonds yield from 5.75 to 6.25%. Write for the booklet which describes them in full detail. Ask for

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Sterling and French Franc in Brisk Advance—Limited Interest in Others.

Excellent buying of sterling and the franc featured the foreign exchange market yesterday, the strength in both being a notable incident of an otherwise quiet and firm trading in other Europeans.

At the outset the pound was forced to a loss of ⅛ cent from Saturday, as commercial selling, particularly of cotton bills, sent the rate down to $4.84 9-16, but the absorptive ability of the demand was too strong for any continued decline and by afternoon the trend was turned to a firm finish at $4.84¾. French francs rose to 3.37 cents, from 3.30¾, as more "shorts" settled on the Paris cables British and American banking help awaited France on debt ratification and stable franc.

Danish exchange was bought up to a new high at 26.65 cents, although the Norwegian kroner sagged 5 points to 24.98 cents. Italian, Holland, Swiss, Spanish and German descriptions were uniformly steady. Silver currencies yielded, as did the Japanese yen, while the Brazilian milreis staged a recovery of ½ cent, to 13.50 cents. Mexican pesos were weak at 47.30 cents, a loss of ¼ cent.

6½% BONDS of 4-Square Safety

FOUR cardinal points of safety distinguish Adair Guaranteed-Insurable Bonds:

[1] The basic safety of the loan itself, judged with knowledge gained by one of the country's oldest real estate firms during 61 years of active experience. [2] Unconditional guarantee by the underwriting house, with capital, surplus and profits of $2,500,000. [3] Regularly published financial statement of the house of issue for the investor's benefit. [4] The optional privilege of insuring the bonds against loss of principal and interest in an independent surety company with resources of $30,000,000.

DU PONT DECLARES $5 EXTRA DIVIDEND

To Distribute General Motors Bonus and Taxes Refunded by Government.

COMMON STOCK ON $7 BASIS

First Quarterly Payment of $1.75 Ordered—Kennecott Copper Increases Its Rate.

Dividend actions yesterday were featured by the announcement by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. of an extra disbursement of $5 in addition to a quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the new common stock, thus placing the latter on a $7 annual basis, and the regular debenture dividend of 1½ per cent.

On Sept. 13 last stockholders approved a change in the authorized common stock from 1,500,000 $100 par shares to 5,000,000 no par shares, to permit a split-up of two-for-one in the stock. At the last quarterly meeting of the company, on Aug. 16, a quarterly dividend of 3½ per cent. was announced, placing the old stock on a $14 annual basis.

In explaining the extra distribution of $5, which more than passed along the extra dividend received from the General Motors Corporation and amounting to $3 a share on du Pont's stock, the executives of du Pont said the company was doing an excellent business and had every prospect of continuing it. In addition, the company had received within the last quarter $5,000,000 from the Government as a refund of taxes and $2,000,000 additional for interest of ten years on this account.

The Kennecott Copper Corporation announced a dividend of $1.25 quarterly, thus placing its stock on a $5 annual basis. Previously the quarterly dividend was $1 a share.

An extra dividend of 60 cents in cash in addition to the regular semi-annual disbursement of 5 per cent. in stock was declared by the United Profit Sharing Corporation.

The Penn-Dixie Cement Corporation declared an initial dividend of 80 cents on the common stock and an initial quarterly of 1¾ per cent. on the 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock.

A dividend of 50 cents was announced by the Isle Royale Copper Company. The last previous dividend paid was 50 cents on June 15 last.

Chasing the Bugaboo of SECOND MORTGAGES

THE Second Mortgage bugaboo is a ghost—it doesn't exist. The ghost has been chased away by the success of one pioneering company, now the largest second mortgage institution in America, the United States Bond & Mortgage Corporation.

Only a few years ago there was a total lack of standardized prices and policies in the second mortgage field. The United States Bond & Mortgage Corporation was founded by a group of bankers and astute business men who were convinced that conservative practices and standardized prices applied to the second mortgage industry would make it an investment equal, if not superior, to the first mortgage investment.

This conviction has been tested and proven. The Company is a recognized success.

The business of this Corporation is founded upon the time-tested rock of strength, the Home, for it is to the purchase of small amortized mortgages on homes of the better type that the Company confines its business. It has never lost a dollar either by foreclosure or default. Among its directors and appraisers are directors of more than forty banking and financial institutions.

Because of the great number of excellent mortgages now offered, these stockholders have voted to increase the Company's capitalization. Subscription books are now open for this additional stock.

If you are interested in investing in the capital stock of this successful Second Mortgage Company, you should secure the book, "Sharing Second Mortgage Profits With Investors." In it you will find a clear analysis of the development of the "new" second mortgage industry, the growth and success of this Company, and an interesting explanation of the unusual profits to be derived, and how you may share in them.

What Ownership in Suburban New York Apartment Buildings Can Mean to You

The steady and rapid development of well-located suburban communities has created, in recent years, an unusual opportunity for profitable investment in income-producing suburban property.

Until a few years ago, profitable building operations were confined almost exclusively to people of substantial means—but through a Method developed by this corporation, it is now possible for men and women everywhere to participate in the ownership and profits of suburban New York buildings. You can become a part-owner in a building, planned, financed, constructed, managed and owned by the Mahlstedt-Steen Securities Corporation, with an investment ranging in amount from $100 up.

The Mahlstedt-Steen organization is one of the strongest and most successful of its kind operating in suburban New York. It has an excellent record of conservative and profitable building construction.

Before we offer ownership-participation in Mahlstedt-Steen apartment buildings, all essential building, renting and investment factors are fully determined in advance. All Mahlstedt-Steen buildings, erected and owned by us jointly with Mahlstedt-Steen investors, show exceptional rental records.

When you become an owner in a Mahlstedt-Steen building enterprise, your investment is developed in accordance with four fundamental principles:

FIRST: You are paid 6% dividends. SECOND: The original amount of your investment is returned to you in 10 installments or less. THIRD: After the entire amount has been repaid, you still retain 50% of the permanent ownership in the building WITHOUT COST, and get your pro-rata share of the profits from the building. FOURTH: The Mahlstedt-Steen Securities Corporation CANNOT earn any profits from their half of the ownership until your money has been returned to you IN FULL.

Your investment in a Mahlstedt-Steen building is secured by an equity in income-producing property of at least an equal if not a higher value. You are not only assured of dollar-for-dollar security, but YOU KNOW that your money invested is safe and progresses from a fixed return to participating profits.

CONSIDER THE MOMENTUM of SYSTEMATIC INVESTING

NO LOSS TO ANY INVESTOR IN 53 YEARS

THE progress of a plan of systematic investment is much like that of a railroad train. It gets under way slowly, gradually gaining speed from the steady application of power and from its own forward motion, until it moves along more and more rapidly, with less and less effort.

When you invest systematically in Smith Bonds, the interest on your first bond helps you to pay for another. Soon you have interest on two bonds helping you to pay for a third; interest on three bonds helping to pay for a fourth, and so on.

Throughout the years when you are working and earning, your plan of investment moves on and on, until one day its momentum lifts the burden of self-support from your shoulders, and leaves you free to retire.

For example, if you start at the age of 30 to invest $50 a month in 6½% Smith Bonds, and reinvest the interest at the same rate, by the time you are 60 you will have accumulated more than $50,000. This sum, invested at 6½%, will give you an income of nearly $300 a month without touching a dollar of your principal.

Smith Bonds are strongly secured by first mortgages on modern, income-producing city property, and protected by safeguards that have resulted in our record of no loss to any investor in 53 years. They are sold in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000, outright or under our Investment Savings Plan, which pays the full rate of bond interest on all regular monthly payments.

DEMAND UNSETTLES SOFT COAL INDUSTRY

Sudden Buying Wave Opens Long Closed Mines, Starts Wages Climbing.

MAY UPHOLD MINERS' SCALE

Prospects That the Jacksonville Agreement Will Be Revised Downward Now Doubtful.

An unusually active demand for bituminous coal during the last month or six weeks has brought some embarrassment to the industry, operators here said yesterday. The increased business, they admitted, was welcome after a particularly slow Summer, and it resulted in the reopening of mines long closed on account of dull trade and high operating costs. On the other hand, they said, it has forced a general upward movement of mine workers' wages, and already there is serious talk of the possibility of a strike when the so-called Jacksonville wage agreement expires by limitation on March 31 next.

Almost since the beginning of the British coal miners' strike last May, there has been a constantly increasing demand for American coal from Europe and South America to fill gaps in the supply usually obtained from England. The latest Government figures available are those for the nine months ended Sept. 30, which show that a total of 16,425,475 tons of soft coal had been shipped to foreign countries this year as against 11,473,371 tons during the corresponding period of 1925.

Stocks of soft coal in the hands of domestic consumers have in the meantime, been dwindling. According to W. A. Marshall & Co., 17 Battery Place, these amounted to about 60,000,000 tons during the early months of the year. During the Summer, the reserves fell to about 28,000,000 tons, and later buying brought the supply up to about 40,000,000 tons.

Demand Was Sudden.

The demand from domestic consumers, it was said, came about suddenly. It appeared as if the consuming trade suddenly awakened to the fact that reserves were running low and a great deal of coal was going abroad. The result, according to George M. Dexter, Chairman of the Board of the Dexter-Carpenter Coal Company, Inc., 32 Broadway, was a general rush to buy, with a consequent upward movement of prices. Coal which was available during the Summer at $1.50 a ton and less at the mines, was now selling for $3 and $3.25, Mr. Dexter said.

The demand, he continued, has shown a decided falling off, both for export and domestic delivery, within the last few days. He believed there had been a general anticipation of a settlement of the British strike, and with plenty of coal going to Europe and South America on orders already placed, there was a disposition on the part of foreign buyers to await developments in England before entering into further engagements here.

The needs of the domestic consuming trade, Mr. Dexter said, apparently had been met for the time being, although he looked for a good market at firm prices to prevail throughout the Winter. It was the wage situation, Mr. Dexter declared, which was giving producers concern.

Almost since the agreement under which the United Mine Workers of America and the union bituminous coal producers are operating was signed at Jacksonville, Fla., in February, 1924, there has been general complaint on the part of the operators. It has been declared that the agreement was reached under threat of a strike and pressure from Washington. It has been asserted that the wage scale, based on a rate of $7.50 a day for common labor, is the wartime rate and is uneconomic under normal conditions. As a result of the wage rate coupled with a light demand for coal, many union mines have been closed or running on part time for several months.

Low Cost Mines Get Business.

Under these conditions, it was pointed out, the bulk of what demand appeared for soft coal went to the non-union mines and those former union mines which had been able to make separate agreements with individual mine workers.

It is provided in the Jacksonville agreement that there shall be a conference of representatives of the operators and mine workers in January to discuss terms of a new contract. The operators believed that, in view of conditions which prevailed before the active demand set in, there was a fair chance of obtaining an agreement providing for a lower scale of wages, although there was no douht that this would not be brought about without a fight.

The later developments in the situation, Mr. Dexter said, had materially altered this view and had caused general reversion to the full Jacksonville scale which John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers, has asserted is a demonstration of his contention that the industry can afford to pay the full wages set forth in the agreement. Mines which can only be operated when the price of coal rises above a certain minimum, were working, Mr. Dexter said, and were paying the full union scale.

Other mining companies were bidding for men and offering even more than the Jacksonville scale. This is the case now with the Pittsburgh Coal Company, which broke away from the Jacksonville scale and worked some of its mines under a separate agreement with the miners. R. E. Fraser, New York manager for the company, said yesterday that the company was now operating fourteen of its forty mines any paying mine workers on the basis of $7.75 a day for common labor.

The hard coal situation, Daniel T. Pierce, Vice Chairman of the Anthracite Operators Conference, 120 Broadway, said yesterday, has not been materially affected by conditions in the hituminous coal trade. The only influence apparent, he said, had been a slight stiffening of prices for the steam sizes. These prices, he continued, had not been advanced, hut, whereas a few weeks ago, it was possible to shade the so-called circular qnotations, the mining companies now are holding firm on the basis of their various lists.

INSURANCE STOCK SPLIT-UP.

New Hampshire Fire Company to Vote on Proposal Nov. 23.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 15.—A special meeting of the stockholders of the New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company will be held at the office of the company in this city on Nov. 23. A vote will be taken on the matter of increasing the capital stock by $250,000. It now totals $2,250,000. It is said in insurance circles that the stockholders will favor the increase, as it will mean that valuable rights will be given out which will permit stockholders to subscribe for new stock at $100 a share. The present selling price of New Hampshire Fire common is around $360-$365 a share, and it is closely held.

One right will undoubtedly be given out with each share of stock, and it is said that about nine rights will be necessary to secure one share of the new stock.

Every four or five years the capital stock of the company has been increased by $250,000. The last time rights sold for around $25 each, and the stock was then selling at $280-$290. The New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company in recent years has taken over the County Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia, the Granite State Fire Insurance Company of Portsmouth and the Pacific States Fire Insurance Company.

Railway Signal Co. Reports Income.

For the nine months to September 30, the General Railway Signal Company reports a net income of $2,745,351, after expenses, depreciation, Federal taxes, &c., equal, after preferred dividends, to $8.09 a share, earned on 325,000 shares of no par common stock outstanding. This compares with $1,208,903, or $3.36 a share on the common in the like period of 1925.

Valuation on P., B. & W. Railroad.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP).—A tentative valuation of $79,040,000 was fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission today upon the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington Railroad as of June, 1918. The line is a part of the Pennsylvania system. Its capital stock and bond issues amount to $59,310,000 at par, while its book investment is placed at $93,839,709.

BAN ON EXCHANGE STANDS.

Court Hears Argument for Permanent Injunction on Consolidated.

The temporary legal ban on the activities of the Board of Governors of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange remained in effect yesterday while Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel took nnder consideration arguments to make the injnnction permanent.

Through his attorney, Samuel F. Frank of 185 Madison Avenue, William E. Powers as a member of a protective committee of the Exchange requested the Court to continue the order restraining the governors from putting their plans for the future of the Exchange into effect.

Mr. Frank declared that the Consolidated during the last few months had not been operating and should be liquidated. The assets remaining from the sale of its building at Beaver and Broad Streets were being dissipated by overhead charges, he said, in connection with the maintenance of new quarters.

Charles B. McLaughlin of 258 Broadway, attorney for Philip Evans, President of the Consolidated, who was named as a principal defendant, told Justice Wasservogel that the exchange had been reorganized and was in a position to serve and protect its active members.

FORM NEW WATER COMPANY.

North American Directors Plan $3,060,000 Stock Issue.

Formation of the North American Water Works Corporation hy representatives of industrial, fire insurance and public utility interests was announced yesterday. The company is negotiating to buy a gronp of utilities in the South. It plans to issue $3,000,000 preferred stock and $60,000 common.

Directors of the company include Charles Miller, Chairman of the American Steel Foundries; Richard A. Corroon, President of the American Equitable Insurance Company and New York Fire Insurance Company; Robert Van Iderstine, President of the Guardian Fire Insurance Company, and a former Deputy Water Commissioner of New York; John A. Foulke, former Chief Water Engineer of Newark; Wilbur L. Ball, Glen R. Snider, V. Bernard Siems and H. Murray Jacohy.

Mr. Siems resigned as President of the Baltimore (Md.) Water Board and as Chief Water Engineer of Baltimore to become Vice President and general manager of the new company. Mr. Jacoby, who is head of H. M. Jacoby & Co., has resigned as Chairman of the Associated Public Utilities Corporation to become President of the new corporation.

Institute of Banking to Elect.

Officers of the New York Chapter, Inc., of the American Institute of Banking for the coming year will be elected on Thursday night at a meeting preceding a dinner at 107 West Forty-fourth Street. The slate of officers to be elected comprises Charles A. Brophy, President; William J. Ahern and Louis F. Ohirogge, Vice Presidents; William L. B. Nye, Secretary, and Miss Marion Turner, Treasurer. Dr. W. Randolph Burgess, Assistant Agent of the Federal Reserve Bank, will address the Bankers' Forum of the Institute at a meeting tomorrow night at the Hotel Shelton. New York Chapter, Inc., will hold its annual Fall dance at the Hotel Astor on Friday evening.

Pennsy May Fight Reading Lease.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, it is expected in Wall Street, will file a brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission opposing the recent recommendation by Examiner Burnside that the Lehigh and New England Railroad be leased by the Reading in accordance with the Reading petition, but left as an open route to New England.

All of the Member Banks Earning Assets Show Heavy Declines in Report of Nov. 10

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of 691 reporting member banks in leading cities as of Nov. 10 shows declines of $58,000,000 in loans and discounts, $44,000,000 in investments, $85,000,000 in net demand deposits and $103,000,000 in borrowings from the Federal Reserve Banks.

Member banks in New York City reported reduetions of $67,000,000 in loans and discounts, $23,000,000 in investments, $50,000,000 in net demand deposits and $42,000,000 in borrowings from the Federal Reserve Banks.

Loans on stocks and bonds, ineinding United States Government obligations, were $76,000,000 below the previous week's total, decreases of $59,000,000 in the New York district, $18,000,000 in the Chicago district and $14,000,000 in the Boston district being partly offset by an increase of $10,000,000 in the Philadelphia district.

"All other loans and discounts" increased $18,000,000, the principal changes including increases of $11,000,000 in the Boston district, $9,000,000 in the Chicago district and $7,000,000 each in the Cleveland and Richmond districts, and declines of $7,000,000 and $6,000,000 in the New York and St. Louis districts, respectively.

Total loans to brokers and dealers, secured by stocks and bonds, made by reporting member banks in New York City were $37,000,000 below the Nov. 3 total, loans for out-of-town banks having increased $13,000,000, while loans for own account and for others declined $42,000,000 and $8,000,000, respectively.

Holdings of United States Government securities decreased $29,000,000, of which $24,000,000 was reported by banks in the New York district. Holdings of other bonds, stocks and seenrities declined $15,000,000, principally in the New York and Cleveland districts.

Net demand deposits were $85,000,000 less than on Nov. 3 at all reporting member banks and $65,000,000 less at banks in the New York district.

Borrowings from the Federal Reserve districts declined $103,000,000 during the week, the principal changes in this item including reductions of $54,000,000 in the New York district and $40,000,000 in the Chicago district and an increase of $11,000,000 in the Cleveland district.

BANKERS ASSAILED IN ST. PAUL HEARING

Bondholders' Leader Declares They Caused Receivership—Says It Was Unnecessary.

HE CRITICIZES BYRAM, TOO

Concedes Ability as an Operator, but Insists Road Needs Financial Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—With the sale of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad system set for next Monday in Butte, Mont., Commissioner Frederick I. Cox of the Interstate Commerce Commission heard testimony in Chicago today bearing on the underlying causes that brought about the receivership and foreclosure sale of the great system, with the view to obtaining information that may affect the proposed reorganization by New York bankers and the issuance of new securities.

Myles C. Jameson, President of the Fire and Rutgers Fire Insurance Company and Chairman of the Bondholders' Defense Committee, holding $40,000,000 of the junior bonds of the road, which is fighting the reorganization, and is expected in some quarters to make a bid for the road next week, was the chief witness.

He said that the reorganization plan of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the National City Bank was unfair, that the receivership was unnecessary and was brought about by the bankers for the purpose of creating a new financial structure, and that the road could not gain prestige and financial strength until it found a man able to guide it both financially and a Board of Directors more directly interested and more representative of stockholding.

Brinkley Tells of Petition.

L. J. Brinkley, President of the Brinkley Coal Company, told the commissioner that W. W. K. Sparrow, the President of the railroad, had asked him to sign the petition which threw the road into bankruptcy, although he had no idea that the road was unable to meet its obligations of $80,000. He was told that the road needed refinance and that a receivership was necessary.

Mr. Jameson told of his efforts to prevent the receivership and his offer to get an extension of maturing bonds. In this effort he talked with H. E. Byram, former President; Percy Rockefeller and Jerome Hanauer of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. While he was in Florida, he said, the receivership was put over. Events since this, he said, have fully confirmed his view that the receivership might have been avoided, and he cited the steady increase in net earnings.

"The receivership," he said, "has meant default on a large amount of 4 and 4½ per cent. bonds and will increase expenses of reorganization which may under the Kuhn-Loeb plan go as high as $40,000,000."

Since the receivership he has bought $30,000 worth of refunding bonds to protect his holdings.

"The principal objection to the present plan of reorganization," he stated, "is that under it the present junior owners are deprived of $60,000,000 of lien, which is proposed to be placed ahead of their equity and given to the stockholders as a consideration for the money contributed to protect their stock, and furthermore, the junior bondholders are, by the terms of the plan, subjected to a possible assessment by diversion of earned income to the rehabilitation of the road for $25,000,000, which is greater by several millions of dollars than the market value of the maximum assessment imposed upon the stock.

"There are other serious objections to the plan, one of which is that it is sought to deprive the St. Paul junior lien bondholders of part of their equity for the benefit of holders of Puget Sound bonds, but the objection first stated above is of the greatest and most general interest to all citizens because if, by a combination of bankers and banking interests and stockholders, assisted by a selected group of bondholders, a plan of reorganization can be driven through which has such a result, then no lien of any railroad bond in this country has any real substance, and this is a question which should be decided and made known at once."

Criticises Bankers.

The primary cause of the receivership, Mr. Jameson said, was the desire of the bankers to reorganize the financial structure of the railway. He criticized as coercive in a high degree the methods of the bankers to get bondholders into line with the new plan. As to the future of the road he said:

"If a single fact has been amply and forcibly demonstrated by the testimony in this proceeding it is that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway has been for the past six or eight years utterly devoid of financial leadership. I do not dispute Mr. Byram's ability as an operating man, but in my opinion he lacks the experience and the qualifications necessary to deal with the financial problem of the St. Paul Railway.

"No single reform, in my opinion, would be more valuable to security holders of the St. Paul Railway than the selection of a man of financial experience and energetic personality who could represent the railway in its dealings with its bankers, and give continuous thought to the complex financial questions which confront the railway at every stage of its progress. In my opinion, if there had been such a man in charge of the financial affairs of the railway, the receivership would never have taken place, and unless such a man is found, the best of reorganization plans cannot avoid a similar recurrence."

Coty Earns $3.06 a Share.

A net income of $947,236 after depreciation, Federal taxes, &c., is reported for the September quarter of this year by Coty, Inc. This is equal to $3.06 a share earned on 309,300 shares outstanding, and compares with $672,422, or $2.17 a share in the like quarter of last year. Net income for the first nine months of this year was $1,959,438, or $6.33 a share, as against $1,512,238, or $5.85 a share in the first nine months of 1925.

Newsprint Production Increased.

Production of newsprint in the United States in October aggregated 143,148 tons, as compared with 136,167 in September. Shipments were 146,411 tons, as against 137,269. Canadian mills in October turned out 168,860 tons, as against 161,387 in September, while shipments reached 168,821 tons, as compared with 162,470 in the preceding month.

Pathe Exchange's Profit.

Net profit of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., for the twenty-eight weeks ended July 10 last, was $476,096, after depreciation and taxes, which is equal, after preferred dividends, to $2.22 a share, earned on 196,643 shares of combined Classes A and B stocks. This compares with $705,058, or $4.19 a share, on the same basis in the like period of last year.

For Appraisals—
Employ Appraisers

FOR twenty-seven years The Manufacturers' Appraisal Company has been developing and applying standards of scientific valuation which have proved acceptable to the business world. For insurance coverage and proof of fire losses; for plant accounting, for financing, for Federal and local taxation, and for many other requirements, our nearly 12,000 clients have used our appraisals.

• • • •

The title of "Appraiser" has come to possess a special significance. It describes a new profession with its own standards and ideals. The engineer, accountant or lawyer may undertake appraisal work, but education in these honorable professions does not give one the right to be known as "Appraiser." Industrial plant managers, bankers, auditors, public officials, insurance men and others in large numbers require appraisals of an organization devoted exclusively to appraisal work—one which like The Manufacturers' has a background of many years of successful experience.

• • • •

The professional appraiser is both an engineer and an accountant—plus. The "plus" represents long practice of appraisal methods, and a thorough understanding of correct valuation theories. By gruelling effort he makes an exact technical record of the items comprising an industrial plant—the kinds, the quantities, the present condition of the thousands of items which are comprised in the reproduction of buildings, machinery, mechanical equipment and factory sites. When he has recorded the routine facts he uses his personal knowledge and the statistical records of his organization to apply costs of reproduction and factors of depreciation. The result is a provable record. It is not merely an opinion, for opinion evidence is unacceptable to the insurance adjuster, the auditor and the Internal Revenue Bureau, no matter what the standing of the individual who may express it.

• • • •

The Manufacturers' Appraisal Company will gladly take up with you, without obligation on your part, your individual appraisal problems and explain in detail the various phases and costs of our services.

RUBBER FUTURES DROP ON OCTOBER REPORT

Largest Amount Afloat of Any Month This Year—Maximum Down Swing 30 Points.

After a weak start on the basis of an unfavorable statement of the Rubber Association, revealing a larger amount of rubber afloat at the end of October than in any previous period this year, the market for crude rubber futures firmed up in late afternoon.

December was the most active of the six positions traded in, and with February and May shared the maximum downward swing of 30 points. All other deliveries were down 20 points each. The turnover was the best in several days, 285 contracts being involved.

According to the Rubber Association, 32,930 tons of rubber were afloat at the end of October. Stock on hand and in transit totaled 64,969 tons, also a top figure for the year. Imports for the month were 28,114 tons.

London prices were easier and all positions closed with net losses of ¼d to ⅜d. Spot price averaged 20.327d. Weekly report of stock in warehouses in London showed 43,299 tons, an increase of 254 tons over last week's holdings.

Range of prices for the active deliveries traded in locally were:

NEW LOCOMOTIVES FOR SERVICE IN CITY

TESTS WITH 108-CAR TRAIN

Hauling Capacity of 3,000 Tons Demanded—Speed of 86 Miles an Hour Made.

The New York Central Railroad's new electric freight locomotives, which will be used in hauling freight on the west side tracks in this city, are different from any previous electric locomotives of this road in that they are built in two nearly identical halves.

The locomotive is capable of operating with a train on a curve of 230 foot radius and of traveling sixty miles an hour, and under test with special gears it has been run at eighty-six miles an hour. It is designed to haul a train of 3,000 tons, of which 75 per cent. of the cars are empties and 25 per cent. fifty-ton loaded cars, at a speed of thirty-two miles an hour with 600 volts at the motors.

Service capacity of the locomotive was defined in the specifications by a requirement that in a continuous series of runs between Seventy-ninth Street and Harmon, hauling the train mentioned and making four intermediate two-minute stops on each trip, accelerating at a 20 per cent. adhesion and having a lay-over of twenty minutes at each terminal, with voltage at 575, the temperature rise in the motors should not exceed 140 degrees centigrade measured by change in resistance, or 120 degrees centigrade by thermometer.

An acceptance test was run recently to ascertain whether the locomotive conformed to these specifications. A train of 108 cars, including cabooses, with the proper proportion of loans and empties and weighing 3,006 tons, was assembled. A caboose containing instruments to record and indicate voltage, amperes and speed, was coupled to the locomotive and the instruments connected into the locomotive circuit by cables carried temporarily over the roofs. It was intended to run three round trips with the train in about seven and a half hours, but due to accidental uncoupling of cars the test was terminated after nine hours near the end of the second round trip. The amount of power consumed was 26.3 watt-hours per training ton-mile.

The maximum motor temperature rise was 90 degrees centigrade which, taking into consideration all conditions of the test, indicated that the increase in temperature would be well within the specified 140 degrees.

PETROLEUM INSTITUTE PLANS ITS CONVENTION

Group Sessions to Be Feature of Three-Day Meeting in Oklahoma Next Month.

The American Petroleum Institute has completed plans for its seventh annual meeting, to be held in the Mayo Hotel, Tulsa, Okla., on Dec. 7, 8 and 9. The preliminary program, just issued, emphasizes the importance of group sessions devoted to subjects of special and technical interest in the oil industry.

A feature of the sessions will be reports of committees on standardization and improvements in oil field production methods and equipment. H. C. Dickinson of the United States Bureau of Standards will report further results of investigations of fuel characteristics and engine starting at the motor fuel sessions, at which T. A. Boyd Jr. of the General Motors Research Corporation and others prominent in this work will be heard.

Several new groups are provided for this year's meeting. One of these will discuss transportation of petroleum products, particularly the movement by tank car and automobile truck. A safety group is also provided, arranged by the Petroleum Section of the National Safety Council and the Petroleum Safety Council of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, in association with the institute. The annual fire prevention group meeting will be held. Two other important groups are one on oil production problems and one on petroleum refining and its problems.

A symposium on corosion has been arranged in conjunction with the Mid-Continent section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Group sessions on a uniform method of oil accounting will be hold. Another new group will discuss oil geology. The American Association of Petroleum Geologists is cooperating with the institute in arranging its program.

to Build Car Repair Shop.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 15.—The New York, Ontario & Western Railroad is to build a new $60,000 car repair shop in its Middletown yards. The contract, which calls for an all-steel structure, 256 feet long and 80 feet wide, was signed this morning. Work on the new building will start soon. It is expected to be ready for occupancy by Jan. 1.

RAIL MEN MEET TOMORROW.

Two Association Conventions Here —Another Thursday.

The American Railway Association will meet tomorrow at the Hotel Biltmore to discuss the equipment situation of the carriers and their needs for 1927. These meetings ordinarily give some indication of what the railroads expect in freight traffic, and an announcement to that effect is anticipated in some quarters. The Board of Directors of the association will hold an advance meeting today.

On Thursday the Association of Railway Executives will confer on legislation affecting the carriers which may come up in the short session of Congress. The bill to abolish the Pullman surcharge, the Parker consolidation bill and other prospective legislation will be discussed.

The Railway Business Association will hold its annual meeting at the Hotel Commodore tomorrow. The platform of the association for next year, which includes comment on various proposals affecting the railroads, will be adopted. In the evening the equipment and supply men will assemble for their annual dinner. Speakers will include Alba B. Johnson, President of the association; Whiteford R. Cole, President of the Louisville & Nashville, and Simeon D. Fess, United States Senator from Ohio.

$850,000 CAPITAL INCREASE.

North American Title Guaranty to Be $1,000,000 Company.

An increase in the capital stock of the North American Title Guaranty Company of from $150,000 to $1,000,000 has been approved by directors and stockholders of the company and by the Insurance Department of New York State. The resolution provides that the capital stock be increased from 1,500 shares of $100 par to 10,000 shares of the same par value, which will be offered to subscribers at $125 per share on the same basis as the original stockholders.

Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey is Chairman of the American Title Guaranty Company and William E. Walter, former President of the National Bank of America in Paterson, N. J., is President and General Manager. Other officers are: George C. Van Tuyl Jr. and Carl Sherman, Vice Presidents; John F. McCabe, Treasurer; J. De Mund Van Dien, Secretary.

HOPEFUL ON VENEZUELA OIL.

American Companies Predict Increased Output in Six Months.

Officials of American oil companies operating in Venezuela are predicting a substantial gain in oil output in that country during the next six months. The production is now about 3,100,000 barrels monthly, which is at the rate of more than 100,000 barrels daily.

Interest in the Venezuelan oil situation has been intensified recently by the announcement that the Union Oil Company of California is preparing to operate extensively in that country. The company is expected to begin drilling operations shortly on concessions held by the Pantepec Oil Company.

The greater part of the wells in Venezuela are deep wells, with an average depth of 3,000 feet. The oil is high in quality.

Geological conditions in Venezuela, according to experts, are not unlike those in California. The yield per acre and the production per individual is unusually high. The probable production area, however, is much greater than that of California and some executives in the petroleum industry are predicting that Venezuela eventually will exceed California's present rate of 600,000 barrels a day.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

William M. Greve, President of the Realty Associates, yesterday was elected to the board of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation. He takes the place of the late Charles A. Boody.

Nathan Strauss, President of Nathan Strauss, Inc., has been elected a director of the Granite National Bank of Brooklyn. Sidney F. Strongin and Milton Herts, of Strongin & Herts, have been designated counsel for the bank. The bank has been named a depository for New York State funds.

Hubert E. Brower has been elected Treasurer of the Greenwich Savings Bank to succeed L. De Quackenbush who died on Nov. 3.

Governor Smith has appointed John M. Murphy, Assistant Treasurer of the Guaranty Trust Company, a delegate to represent the State at the nineteenth annual conference on taxation in Philadelphia this week.

The Eastern Exchange Bank announces temporary location at 10 Broadway on and after Nov. 15, pending completion of a new building at 37 Broadway.

Taylor, Ewart & Co. have opened an office in Philadelphia under the management of Louis J. Groch.

Bigelow & Co. have moved from 37 Broadway to 24 Broadway.

Harris, Ayers & Co. have issued an analysis of seven of the largest power and light companies, taking into consideration Professor Ripley's criticisms of holding companies.

The Guardian Detroit Company, Inc., announces that John A. Cartlidge, Herbert C. Hautau, Joseph H. King and Eugene G. Grant are in its sales department here.

William E. Bagnall is with Cowen & Co.

The New York Trust Company has been made trustee for an issue of Simms Petroleum Company three-year 6 per cent. convertible gold notes due in 1929.

The National Park Bank has been appointed transfer agent of 110,845 shares of Class A stock and 20,000 shares of Class B stock of the Emerson-Brantingham Corporation.

A contract for six steel car floats for the Reading Company's Philadelphia harbor service has been awarded to the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation.

The Prospect National Bank of Brooklyn, now organizing, has moved its temporary offices from 225 Eighteenth Street to the site of its permanent location, 323 Ninth Street.

Lee C. Shepard, formerly with Gilbert Eliot & Co., is in the bank stock department of Clokey & Miller.

OIL AND UTILITY ISSUES LEAD IN CURB MARKET

Reaction and Irregularity Affect Industrial and Mining Shares —Active Trade in Bonds.

Trading interest in the Curb Market yesterday was confined largely to the oil and public utility sections, where prices, on the whole, closed firm in the face of irregularity in the industrial and mining sections.

Standard Oil securities and leading independent oil stocks were manoeuvred into position early in the day and advanced steadily until the last half hour, when profit-taking sales made dents in the list. However, gains predominated at the close, and a few new high prices for the year and movement were made.

Chesebrough Manufacturing rose more than 3 points to a new high level above 81, and Cumberland Pipe ran up 2 points to 112. Eureka Pipe jumped 3 points to 46 and Northern Pipe advanced 4 points to 74. Prairie Pipe ruled strong at 124½. Refinery issues did not move so widely, and the leader of the group—Standard Oil of Indiana—sold ex dividend mostly around 65. Changes were small in Vacuum Oil and Standard Oil of New York, but Standard of Nebraska gained a point to 49.

Public utility stocks were higher in the main. Industrials opened irregular and continued to fluctuate until the close. One of the few wide movers was Ford Motors of Canada, which came back to 345, a gain of 18 points.

There was quite an active trade in the bond market, and public utility obligations continued to monopolize much of the business at higher prices. In the foreign section German bonds again attracted most attention and the rising tendency continued.

STOCK SALE STILL BARRED.

Court Continues Injunction on Del Norte Mining Deals.

At the request of the Attorney General's office, an injunction was continued yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Burt Jay Humphrey in Brooklyn to restrain the Great Del Norte Mining Corporation from further sales of stock, unless a written statement by the corporation is received giving the amount of ore extracted from its mines, together with the amount of ore shipped, and a financial report of the corporation's condition.

The original injunction obtained by the Attorney General was a temporary one, issued on May 14. The corporation was organized with 1,500 shares at $1 par. It was alleged that stock had been sold in violation of the Martin-Eddy Stock Fraud act. The violations, the Attorney General alleged, consisted of statements to investors that there could be no loss, that the stock was a good investment for widows and persons of moderate means, as no large investors would be taken in. Officers of the mining company denied these charges. They asserted that the corporation owned mines free and clear and had mined and hauled ore from them. The injunction, it was said, will prevail until the company's statement is accepted, or until there is a trial.

UPHOLDS INSTALMENT PLAN

Alfred Reeves Says It Is a Factor in Maintaining Prosperity.

Consumer credit has been a strong influence in maintaining national prosperity and has proved to be a principle of sound economics, said Alfred Reeves, General Manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, speaking before the National Association of Finance Companies yesterday in Chicago.

"It is sound economics to provide credit facilities for the consumer as for the producer," Mr. Reeves asserted. "Any form of financing is necessarily of value or otherwise according to the soundness of the way it is handled. With a time-payment sales limited to one year, with a third down and careful inspection of the risk, the transaction is usually amply protected. Making useful purchases on time and within one's means is simply setting up for one a program of saving and getting the use of the article during the period of saving.

"The record business which has been done this year by the automobile industry has been cited by economists as an aid to many branches of trade, causing the purchase of raw materials and giving employment. This volume of business would not have been possible to the same degree without the means of financing purchases."

JULY LEADS WHEAT IN FRACTIONAL RISE

May 7 Cents Under Recent High Early, but Short Covering Boosts the Markets.

VISIBLE SUPPLY LARGER

Export Trade Down to 200,000 Bushels—Corn and Oats Gain, but Rye Goes Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Wheat prices fluctuated rapidly within a range of 1½ cents, with all deliveries selling at a new low on the present movement, with May off 7½ cents, as compared with the high of a week ago, but the break brought in good commission house buying, and, with short covering, a rally of over 1 cent from the inside figure followed. The close was ⅛@⅜ cents higher, July leading.

Winnipeg closed unchanged at ⅜ cent lower. Buenos Aires was unchanged at the last, with showers reported in the Province of Buenos Aires and cloudy weather in other sections. Liverpool declined ⅛@1½d, with the near settlement of the coal strike and the pressure of Manitobas a factor. The lack of export business is still apparent, with sales of only 200,000 bushels reported in all positions, and even Winnipeg is unable to find any demand of consequence.

The rally in wheat was regarded by many traders as due more to the technical position and the dealing of local shorts than to any change in the general situation.

While there are claims of damage in parts of Argentine, yields in other sections are turning out better than expected and there seems to be no disposition to look for an exportable surplus of under 150,000,000, while a private report estimated there were 35,000,000 bushels of wheat still back, suggesting a total for the 1926-27 season of 185,000,000 bushels, which, with 100,000,000 bushels from Australia, would give over 285,000,000 bushels for the southern hemisphere without allowing for India. Statistically the wheat situation is regarded as weakening.

Primary arrivals for the day were 1,262,000 bushels; week ago, 1,868,000; last year, 1,575,000. Shipments were, 1,040,000 bushels; week ago, 538,000; last year, 894,000.

Short covering in fairly large volume was on in corn and, with a let-up in liquidation, an advance was easily attained, the close being 1@1⅜ cents higher, December showing the most strength and finishing 8⅝ cents under the May.

An increase of 2,941,000 bushels in the visible supply failed to have an effect on values, although the total is 29,273,000 bushels, against 26,332,000 bushels the previous week and 1,458,000 bushels last year.

There is talk of bringing a number of ore boats here to store corn in during the Winter months, as with nearly 17,000,000 bushels now in elevators and a liberal number of cars still to unload, storage room is becoming scarce—and the movement of the new crop is just starting. Around twenty-one cars of new corn were received today, with sales at 40@59 cents, except for a car of new No. 4 yellow which brought 63½ cents or 6 cents under December. Some grain is being diverted to more Northern markets in order to make room here.

Primary arrivals today were 955,000 bushels; week ago, 1,394,000; last year, 805,000, and shipments, 252,000 bushels; week ago, 450,000; last year, 348,000.

Oats closed ⅜ cent higher in sympathy with corn, while rye was ⅛@⅜ cent lower, selling of May rye against purchases of May wheat at 40 cents difference being a feature.

WHEAT FUTURES IRREGULAR.

Local Traders Disappointed by Lack of Natural Price Rally.

Irregularity in a fairly active market characterized prices of wheat futures on the New York Produce Exchange yesterday. In the early trading the prices advanced from ⅛ to ⅝ cent on better cables, inclement weather in the Argentine, light offerings and scattered buying. Profit-taking and general selling later, however, carried the market off from 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents from the highs of the day.

Offerings dried up on the breaks, and under covering on a sharp rally at Chicago the local market came back rather readily, closing ⅛ to ½ cent higher. Sentiment was divided and accounted for the irregular trend, although many traders had expected a natural rally following the break of the last week or so.

MEET FOR TRAFFIC SURVEY.

New Jersey Legislators Organize, but Have No Funds.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 15.—Meeting to organize at the State House today, the commission created by the 1926 Legislature to devise a uniform system for enforcement of the motor vehicle law and the State traffic act elected Assemblyman Russell S. Wise of Passaic as Chairman and Senator Furman M. Reeves of Cumberland as Secretary. Adjournment was then voted until Nov. 30.

The resolution creating the commission calls for an appropriation of $5,000 for expenses. The item was omitted from the annual appropriation bill and no funds are available. The oversight will be brought to the attention of the Legislature, but will not be permitted to interfere with the work.

In drawing the measure to be submitted to the 1927 session, the committee will seek the advice of State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Dill and State Highway Engineer Sloan. The Traffic Commission is the second legislative body to meet and find itself without funds. Only a few weeks ago a commission named to study the utilization of radio in the apprehension of criminals found that it had no funds with which to work and decided to do nothing until next year.

In addition to Senator Reeves of Cumberland and Assemblyman Wise, the commission includes Senator A. C. Reeves of Mercer, Assemblyman M. Hurd of Bergen, Traffic Supervisor Crawford of Newark and Colonel Hugh Kelly of Jersey City.

SAY MEXICAN WELLS FAIL.

Petroleum Men in Meeting Here Discuss Finding New Fields.

Petroleum supplies in many parts of the world are being discussed at a three-day session of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, which opened yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Conditions in Colombia, Venezuela and Siam held the attention of the conferees yesterday, it being the contention of many that Mexico's supply is falling and that other sources must be developed.

E. L. DeGolyer of New York, retiring President of the association, pointed to the fact of Mexico's producing about 100,000,000 barrels of petroleum annually, as compared to the mark once set at 190,000,000 barrels. Meanwhile, Venezuela and Colombia has progressed, he said, and will be important sources in the future. W. B. Heroy, reading a paper prepared by Wallace Lee on oil prospects in Siam, said that that country is a questionable factor and that further investigations must be made.

Health problems and living conditions in Venezuela were discussed by E. P. De Ballard and Fred H. Kay. At the session this morning oil possibilities of Northeastern China, New Zealand, Canada, Peru, Spain, Palestine, Egypt, Persia, Mesopotamia and the Siniatic peninsula will be discussed. A banquet will be held at 7:30 this evening.

BORDEN PLANT FOR NEWARK

A large milk distributing plant, costing about $1,000,000, will be erected by the Borden Farm Products Company, Inc., at Orange and Nesbitt Streets, Newark, it was announced yesterday.

The company has purchased the corner plot, 94 feet by 30, from Frank V. Cyphers for about $30,000, and also has leased the adjoining D., L. & W. Railroad property. The leased land is 360 feet by 160 feet, with a frontage on the tracks. The price of the lease is in excess of $200,000, it was reported.

Silver Bay Association Meets.

At a luncheon of the Silver Bay Association in the Downtown Club yesterday William Fellowes Morgan announced that four new trustees had been added to the board. The association administers the Silver Bay Preparatory School for Boys and the Silver Bay Christian Conferences at Silver Bay-on-Lake George, N. Y. The new trustees are the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Erdman of Princeton, Clarence J. Hicks, Winthrop J. Stevens and Dr. Gilbert Q. Le Sourd.

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Hog prices were 10 to 15 cents higher early, but packers were slow in taking hold, and after urgent shipping orders had been filled part of the upturn was lost. The top for the day was $11.95 and the average $11.60, the latter being 10 cents better than Saturday.

The bulk of the 210@300-pound averages sold at $11.65 to $11.90, with 130@200-pound kinds at $11.50 to $11.75 and packing sows at $10 to $11.

Packers bought 18,800 and shippers 13,000, with 6,000 left over. Receipts were 35,000, with 31,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Fat lambs declined 25 to 50 cents, with many carried over unsold, and feeders off 50 cents to a new low for the season. The bulk of fat kinds sold at $12.75 to $13, with the best held at $13.35 and feeders at $11.75 to $12.50. Sheep were easy at $5 to $6.50 for main sales. Receipts were 21,000.

Cattle were steady for good to choice, and weak to 25 cents lower on lower grades. Best yearlings sold at $12.25, with heavy steers at $10.75 and the bulk of beef steers at $8.60 to $11.50. Receipts were 31,000.

COTTON STEADIES ON ACTIVE DEMAND

Market Closes Irregularly After Buying of Near Positions Checks Slight Decline.

LESS COTTON IN INTERIOR

Buyers for Spot Interests Report Diminution—December Sells Evenly Here and at New Orleans.

After a further slight decline in the early trading yesterday, the cotton market steadied under an active demand for December contracts and that month recovered a dollar a bale. Owing to the limited amount of deliverable cotton offered in the South, trade buying of near positions strengthened the list and final quotations showed a gain of 8 points on December to a loss of 6 points on October. The feature of trading was the steadily decreasing discounts on December, which sold less than 5 points under January and within 76 points of October at the close of the day.

Though a sharp decline occurred in Liverpool, the movement in the direction of transferring hedges to later months developed soon after the local opening. At the close of the week, hedge selling proved the heaviest in some time, but the setback of $1 a bale evidently made operations of this character less profitable and comparatively few hedges were put out during the morning. Buyers for spot interests reported less cotton available at interior points than was the case at higher levels on Saturday, and few Southern wire orders appeared for the sale of contracts below a basis of 12½ cents for December and 13 cents for May.

For the first time in several weeks, December in New York sold even with December in New Orleans. The steady demand for December contracts on the local exchange came from price fixing by both domestic and foreign mills, as well as from spot interests having hedges in the near position which will become a spot month in another ten days.

Heavy rains prevailed over a large part of the cotton belt, and reports from North Carolina stated that some cotton was being left in the fields in Atlantic sections. Reports from Liverpool stated that a movement was on foot there to add contracts for the 1927 crop which would increase the number of trading positions from thirteen to twenty-four months.

COMMODITY PRICES.

The feature of the spot markets yesterday was the vigorous upswing in butter and egg prices, both establishing new high prices for the year on a heavy demand, while supplies were only moderate. Elsewhere the trend was irregular, wheat, oats and corn moving up, while rye and flour yielded. Lard continued weak and to a year's low, while spot cotton rose slightly. Metals and groceries were firm.

Making Buildings Pay

Getting new tenants at good rentals is but half the story of successful building management.

The ability to reduce costs in operation and maintenance, without impairing service, or to give better service, when needed, without increasing costs—this, likewise, is a test of management skill.

Our record of success in making business buildings produce more satisfactory incomes is a long one, extending back for more than a generation.

What we are now doing for others, we can do for you.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

TO THE HOLDERS OF COLLATERAL TRUST SINKING FUND GOLD BONDS OF CUTLER SECURITIES CORPORATION OF DELAWARE, FORMERLY CUTLER MAIL CHUTE COMPANY OF DELAWARE.

Pursuant to Article IV of the Indenture dated January 1, 1921, securing the Collateral Trust Sinking Fund Gold Bonds of Cutler Securities Corporation of Delaware, formerly Cutler Mail Chute Company of Delaware, the undersigned Trustee hereby gives notice that bonds of such issue will be purchased by the Trustee for the Sinking Fund provided in said Indenture, at prices not exceeding one hundred per cent. of the principal amount of said bonds and accrued interest in addition thereto, and to an aggregate amount sufficient to exhaust the moneys now held by it in such Sinking Fund, to wit, $20,037.33. Offerings are hereby invited from the bondholders. The lowest offers at not exceeding said price and to an aggregate amount not exceeding said sum of $20,037.33, now held in the Sinking Fund, will be accepted. If these bonds are offered at the same price by two or more bondholders in excess of the amount available for the purchase of said bonds, the right is reserved to accept part only of the bonds offered by any such bondholder.

All offers must be in writing, be enclosed in sealed envelopes, state the number or numbers of the bonds offered, and name the price or prices at which the same are offered, and must be received at the office of the Trustee on or before twelve o'clock noon of November 30, 1926.

As soon as may be, on or after said date, the undersigned Trustee will notify, by mail at the addresses given by them in their offers, those bondholders whose offers are accepted. Delivery of the bonds covered by such acceptances must be made to the Trustee at its office, 115 Broadway, New York City, on or before December 10th, 1926.

Dated at New York, this 15th day of November, 1926.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that a Special Meeting of the Stockholders has been called by order of the Board of Directors and will be held at 12.00 o'clock noon, on November 23rd, 1926, at the principal office of the Company, 128 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, for the purpose of voting upon and consenting to an increase of the capital stock of the Company and a change in its par value, as proposed by the Board of Directors as follows:

(a) That the capital of this corporation be increased from $31,500,000 consisting of [illegible] 500,000 of Preferred Stock, being [illegible] shares of the par value of $100 each, and $29,000,000 of Common Stock, being [illegible] shares of the par value of $50 each, to [illegible] 500,000 to consist of $5,500,000 of Preferred Stock, being 55,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, and $30,000,000 of Common Stock, being 1,200,000 shares of the par value of $25 each.

(b) That the Preferred Stock [illegible] shall have the same preferences, [illegible] dividend rate, voting power and [illegible] provisions as heretofore, all of which [illegible] be set forth and provided in language [illegible] tical with the language now appearing in the Certificate of Incorporation of the Company.

(c) That out of the said newly authorized Common Stock, there shall be issued on or after December 23rd, 1926, to holders of Common Stock of record 1,040,000 shares, in exchange for the shares of Common Stock held by them in the proportion of two shares of the said new Common Stock for each share of the old Common Stock then held by them, and that the remainder of said newly authorized Common Stock, consisting of 160,000 shares, shall be [illegible] and remain unissued, except under the following circumstances:

1. 104,000 shares thereof to be offered to the holders of Common Stock, of record, at the close of business on the [illegible] day of April, 1927, for their subscription at a price of $55 per share, each [illegible] share of Common Stock, of record [illegible] to be entitled to subscribe at the said price for an amount thereof equal to [illegible] of a share for each share of Common Stock then held by him, such rights of subscription to be evidenced by usual and proper warrants, providing for the payment of the subscription price in cash, on April 25th, 1927, which [illegible] shall be issued in fractions of a share where necessary; and

2. 56,000 shares thereof to be available in whole or in part for sale to such employees of the corporation or of any of its subsidiary or affiliated corporations, at such time or times, in such amounts, at such prices, but not less than $55 a share, and under such terms, as the Board of Directors shall determine.

(d) To take any further action necessary and appropriate in connection with the [illegible] going and to transact such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

By order of Board of Directors,
S. B. BUTLER, Secretary.

Dated, November 4th, 1926.

POLICEMAN FREED IN COURT

Complainant Withdraws Charge, but District Attorney Will Act.

James Copeland, a policeman attached to the New Dorp (S. I.) Station, was released yesterday morning by Magistrate William Croak at Stapleton Court when charged with attempted felonious assault. George Jones of 20 Gifford Lane, Great Kills, S. I., who had charged Copeland with firing several shots at his automobile, said that he wished to withdraw the charge.

Copeland had been arrested earlier in the morning and suspended from duty after a police surgeon had pronounced him unfit for duty. Jones told the desk lieutenant in the station house that while he was passing a police booth on the Hylan Boulevard near Guyon Avenue a policeman fired several shots at his automobile, one of which had gone through the car and pierced the windshield. Sergeant Otto Hanisce arrested Copeland.

When the case was called for a hearing Jones said Copeland's mother was a family friend and that he did not wish to press the charge. After the Magistrate had discharged the policeman, Assistant District Attorney James Di Crocco said he would present the facts to the Grand Jury on Friday.

$143,416 IN Y. W. C. A. FUND.

Additional Gifts Reported for the Budget of 1927.

Additional gifts, making a total of $143,416.58 contributed toward the $265,000 fund for the 1927 budget of the Y. W. C. A. of the City of New York, were announced yesterday. Gifts announced included the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Whitney Morrow, $5,000; Milbank Memorial Fund, $3,000; Mrs. W. W. Woolverton, $1,000 for religious work; Murray Guggenheim, $500; S. R. Guggenheim, $500; Simon Guggenheim, $500; Daniel Guggenheim, $500; Mrs. John French, $1,000, and Mrs. William L. Harkness, $1,000.

The Flying Squadron reported $384.52; Bronx Branch, $90; Central Branch, $1,707.96; Central Club for Nurses, $143.50; French Branch, $392.25; Harlem Branch, $227.50; Independent teams, $22; International Institute, $407; Laura Spelman Hall, $350; Tatham House, $305; West 137th Street for Colored Women, $362; West Side Branch, $2,936.46, and Studio Club, $732. A gift of $1,600 toward the Studio Club Building Fund was reported.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Edward S. Morse and E. Kent Mitchel have been appointed assistants to Aldrich Taylor, sales promotion manager of the Pacific Mills. Mr. Morse will be in charge of advertising, while Mr. Mitchel will supervise the mills' field service. The sales promotion department has its headquarters at 24 Thomas Street.

The Portage Hosiery Company, Portage, Wis., manufacturers of bundle wool hose, has opened its lines for Fall, 1927. The firm is represented by Harold Hustler, 93 Worth Street.

FINED $100 IN OIL SALE.

Former Garage Owner Pleads Guilty to Trade-Mark Violation.

Louis Rich, 51 years old, of 630 East 170th Street, the Bronx, formerly one of the owners of a garage at 67 East 129th Street, paid a fine of $100 in Special Sessions yesterday after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the trade-mark law. Frank S. Douglas Jr., an investigator of the Fair Trade Association, was the complainant.

Douglas said that last April he bought from Rich in the garage a motor oil which had been represented by Rich to be a brand known as Mobiloil, but which later proved to be a substitute. The substitute was sold for 25 cents a gallon, as against 35 cents a gallon for the genuine product. Douglas said that Rich's arraignment was the first of several of the kind as a result of a campaign his organization had started against purveyors of spurious oils by garage owners and others to motorists.

Rumanian Vogue in Spring.

While the anticipated "Rumanian vogue" has not made marked headway at this time, except in a few items of merchandise, this is explained on seasonal grounds. The Rumanian influence, it is pointed out, is best expressed in embroideries and peasant designs in garments. These are most suitable for the Spring season and it is for that period that dress, blouse and fabric manufacturers plan to stress the Rumanian trend. This will be particularly noticeable, it is added, in embroidered afternoon frocks and in certain novelty silk fabrics.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....4½ per cent. for the best names
Saturday ....4½ per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Few Sweater Lines Priced.

Only a few lines of sweaters for 1927 delivery were priced in this market yesterday, but it is probable that more general action along this line will be taken tomorrow. In the quotations that came to light yesterday reductions were the rule. In the so-called low-end cotton sweaters for men the reductions average $1.50 a dozen from the 1926 opening levels, while in the better grades of these goods an average cut of about $3 a dozen has been made. Medium-priced lines, embracing ribbed worsted and cotton mixed sport coats, show an average drop of $1.50 a dozen. A cut of $1 a dozen is shown on fleece-lined cotton "lumberjacks" for the coming season.

To Make Container Survey.

Decision to conduct a preliminary container and packing survey in two stores, one in Manhattan and the other in Brooklyn, was arrived at yesterday at a meeting of the Traffic Group of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. The survey, which will be conducted for about six weeks, will, it is believed, afford the necessary data for definite recommendations to be made later. Four divisions of the matter will be surveyed. First, attention will be given to the shipping containers reaching the store. Whether fibre or corrugated board is better than wood in effecting large savings in freight costs will be studied. The working out of unit packing so that a store can sell from sample and ship direct from stock without expensive repacking is next. Third is the matter of economies in shipments from the store to the consumer. Finally, study will be given to possible savings in store shipping supplies, including wrapping paper, folding boxes, twine, &c., and suitable standards set up.

Not Much Done in Gray Goods.

Not much was done in the local gray goods market yesterday. Most of the limited business was in printcloths, sales of which included spot 38½-inch 64-60s and 60-48s at 6⅞ and 5 9-16 cents, respectively. January-February shipments of the 64-60s were sold at 6⅞ cents. For 39-inch 68-72s buyers paid 7⅞ cents. In the sheetings there was some trading in spot 36-inch 6.15s at 5 cents and in December 40-inch 4.25s at 7 cents. Not much was done in the specialties and fine-yarn cloths, but among sales of the latter were 100-60s for quick shipment at 11 cents.

Good Call for Resort Lines.

A good many manufacturers of ready-to-wear are now showing their Winter resort lines, and others are scheduled to open theirs shortly. Retailers are said to be placing a nice business in the merchandise, with more of them, particularly the specialty shops, capitalizing the consumer interest in these indications of the mode for the coming Spring. Quick delivery is being asked of the manufacturers, as the stores will soon begin their so-called "Palm Beach" offerings. The sports coat in white or novelty patterned woolens, together with the two-piece frock, are outstanding.

Rush Orders Are Starting.

Mail and telegraph orders for many types of holiday merchandise are reaching wholesalers and resident buyers in profusion. "The last-minute rush for merchandise has now started," was the way one manufacturer put it. He added that he believed many retailers would find themselves unable to get the deliveries they wanted because of the piling up of orders and a shortage of especially wanted merchandise. Included in the goods which are being actively ordered for very quick deliveries are silk underwear, negligees, kid and fabric gloves, perfumery, men's mufflers, boxed novelty jewelry and fancy sheer silk handkerchiefs.

Forming Local Apparel Groups.

An increasing tendency to form apparel groups within local retailers' organizations or chambers of commerce was commented on yesterday by John W. Hahn, Executive Secretary of the National Garment Retailers' Association. He said that the increase in the number of specialty shops figures prominently among the reasons for the formation of these groups. Within the next fortnight he plans to assist three local associations to form such units. The groups will take up problems of particular import in apparel retailing, such as the return of merchandise by consumers, the granting of discounts to groups of consumers, town-wide seasonal openings and the fixing of standard alteration charges.

Wide Sheeting Response Good.

The early response of wholesalers to the new and lower prices made during the past week on brown and bleached wide sheetings, sheets, pillow cases, &c., was said here yesterday to be gratifying to first hands. Not only did buyers voice their approval of the new quotations, but they placed orders that already have run into considerable volume in the aggregate. Wholesale stocks of the merchandise in question are apparently low, and jobbers seem anxious to bolster them up in order to meet the January white sale needs of their retail accounts. Buying of muslins and other bleached fine-yarn cloths, while good, might be better. There is a strong probability that new and lower prices on these goods are not far off.

Complain of Small Orders.

Although the demand for ginghams in this market continues quite active, despite the fact that this is inventory month with many jobbers around the country, not a little complaint is heard among first hands of the small size of orders placed by wholesale buyers. It is not uncommon, it was said yesterday, for a commission house to receive three and four orders for small quantities of staple ginghams from the same wholesaler in a single week, shipment of the goods by express frequently being asked. These goods, of course, are wanted for immediate delivery, but orders placed for forward shipment are also extremely small in some instances. In a case related yesterday a certain jobber recently placed an initial Spring order for staple ginghams of less than 100 pieces, in which was represented a broad color assortment. Since then he has placed duplicate orders amounting to more than six times his original selection, but the individual orders have all been small.

Claflin Sale Well Patronized.

About 300 retail buyers, from practically all parts of the country, yesterday attended the opening of the final clearance sale of Claflins Incorporated. Buying was particularly active early in the day, and sales up to 1 P. M. were estimated by an important executive of the firm at $300,000. Fewer big orders were placed during the afternoon, but it was figured that at least $100,000 worth of additional merchandise was sold. Several single orders ranging from $2,500 to $10,000 were taken during the day. Buying of linens, blankets and handkerchiefs was especially active, due to the seasonal nature of the goods. A number of the linen orders called for case lots. Retailers also took dress and wash goods, domestics and remnants well, and the end of the week is expected to see all stocks pretty well cleaned up. All goods are sold on the basis of net cash, 60 days, and no returns are permitted.

PINCHOT ORDERS INQUIRY.

Responds to Civil Liberties Union Complaint of Workers' Arrests.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP).—Governor Pinchot today wired the American Civil Liberties Union in New York that he had ordered Major Lynn G. Adams, head of the State police, to investigate police raids which the organization asserted had been made upon three homes in Woodlawn.

The Civil Liberties Union, in a telegram to the Governor yesterday, asked for the investigation, asserting that twelve workers, said to have been peacefully assembled in private homes, were arrested.

The raid was made by Woodlawn police and two State policemen. Literature and buttons, which, the police said, called upon the people to "unite for a United States Soviet Republic," were confiscated.

THINK TEETH SHOW LAND OF MAN'S ORIGIN

Anthropologists See Central Asia Hypothesis Supported by Anderson Discovery.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Further evidence in support of the hypothesis that the human race originated in Central Asia is seen by anthropologists in the discovery of human teeth in fossilized deposits in China.

Dr. J. C. Anderson himself, in making announcement of this discovery at a meeting in Peking, attended by the Crown Prince of Sweden, said be found two human teeth in undisturbed fossiliferous deposits at Chou Kou Tien, about twenty-five miles southwest of Peking. At first it was thought that they were remains of the earliest member of the human family so far discovered, but it is now believed the teeth are of the early Pleistocene period and as old as the pithecanthropus skull of Java.

It is recalled that a fossil obtained more than twenty years ago in a native drug shop in Peking led Professor Schlosser to predict that "future investigators might expect to find in China fossil remains of a tertiary or early Pleistocene man" and the recent discovery is held to give confirmation of this intuition.

Professor Davidson Black of Peking Union Medical College, giving his opinion of Dr. Anderson's discovery, writes:

"Whether it be of the late tertiary or of the early quarternary ago, the outstanding fact remains that, for the first time on the Asiatic Continent north of the Himalayas, archaic hominidal fossil material has been recovered, accompanied by complete and certain logical data. The actual presence of early man in Eastern Asia, therefore, is now no longer a matter of conjecture.

"It is now evident that the close of the tertiary or the beginning of the quarternary time, man, or a very closely related anthropoid, actually did exist in Eastern Asia. This knowledge is of fundamental importance in the field of prehistoric anthropology, for about this time also there lived in Java, Pithecanthropus; at Piltdown, Ecanthropus and, but very shortly after at Mauer, the man of Heidelberg.

"All these forms were thus practically contemporaneous with one another and occupied regions equally far removed, respectively to the east, to the southeast and to the west from the Central Asiatic plateau which, it has been shown elsewhere, most probably coincides with their common dispersal centre. The Chou Kou Tien discovered, therefore, furnishes one more link in the already strong chain of evidence supporting the hypothesis of the Central Asiatic origin of the Hominidae."

FRAUD ORDER BARS 'HEIRS.'

Postal Authorities Stop Scheme to Claim Philadelphia Land.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—Dreams of a group of "heirs," who hoped to become wealthy by proving themselves the real owners of land worth many millions of dollars in the heart of Philadelphia and elsewhere, received a setback today, when the Postoffice Department issued a fraud order against a corporation organized to obtain recognition of their claims.

The corporation was said to have obtained $22,315 in "dues and loans" from the "heirs," but the Postoffice Department said it was probable that from $75,000 to $100,000 had been poured into this and another organization, both of which, it was charged, based their claims of wealth upon a mythical estate.

The fraud order was directed at the Coate-Coppock Estate Corporation, and Glenn B. Coate, manager. It charged use of the mails to obtain money by false pretense.

According to the story which brought hopes to their descendants, Marmaduke Coate and Moses William Coppock in 1816 owned land now in central Philadelphia and 2,300 acres in Venango County and 1,800 acres in Chester County. They were said to have received a ninety-nine year lease on it, which expired in 1915, when the land was to have reverted to their "heirs."

The Better Business Bureau reported that no vestige of support for the claim had been found, although the Recorder of Deeds for the Land Title and Trust Company made a search.

Coate is said to have admitted be had made no search and that the claim rested on hearsay evidence and three alleged leases.

RITZ TOWER GIVES DINNER.

Mayor Among Guests to Celebrate Opening of Apartment Hotel.

The President and directors of the Ritz Tower Company were hosts to a number of city officials, publishers and business men at a dinner given in celebration of the completion and opening of the new apartment hotel at Park Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street last night.

The dinner was given in the banquet room, of European design, on the main floor of the hotel. Duncan G. Harris, President of the Ritz-Carlton Company, presided. Among the guests were Mayor Walker, Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen; William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission; George McAneny, President of the Boston Atlantic City Ritz-Carlton Companies; Albert Keller, managing director of the Ritz-Carlton Companies; Emery Roth, Thomas A. Hastings, Charles S. Brown, LeRoy T. Harkness, H. D. Hynds, R. D. Kaufman, Thomas Crimmins, Clarkson Porter, Charles E. Gehring, John Ringling, Henry Barth, Edison Lewis, Otto Stack, Henri Prince and James G. Lee.

VIEW MEDICAL ACADEMY.

Committeemen Who Helped Build It Guests of Dr. Duel.

The new home of the New York Academy of Medicine, Fifth Avenue and 103d Street, was inspected last night, following a dinner at the new building given by Dr. Arthur B. Duel, Chairman of the Building Committee, to members of the committee and others who helped the project.

The building will be formally opened for public inspection on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Sir Neville Wilkinson Arrives.

Sir Neville Wilkinson, Ulster King-at-Arms, arrived yesterday on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka, with Lady Wilkinson and the Earl of Wicklow, to attend the opening of his miniature fairy palaces here, known as Titania's Palace, which is to be shown in December for the benefit of the babies' hospitals. It has been at the Exposition in Philadelphia since June.

SAYS FALL OF LAKES HURTS ALL IN NATION

Professor Trumbower Testifies Before Hughes to Burden on Wheat, Iron and Coal.

NEW YORK HALTS EVIDENCE

Deputy Attorney General Will Await Court's Definition of Limits of State's Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 (AP).—Counsel for seven States seeking to curb Chicago's drainage diversions from Lake Michigan completed the main structure of their case today with testimony, before Charles E. Hughes, Special Master for the Supreme Court, in support of the contention that higher transportation costs, caused by lower water levels in the Great Lakes system, impose a burden on the entire nation.

This testimony, with preliminary evidence in support of New York's interest in the maintenance of the $200,000,000 barge canal from the Hudson River to lakes Erie and Ontario, made up the last of the 1,500 pages of evidence in the eight days' hearing.

After completion of the plaintiff's case in a short session, beginning dec. 1, the hearing will again be adjourned until Jan. 10, when the defense will open. Two weeks probably will be required for defense testimony and argument, after which Mr. Hughes will submit the record, together with a digest of the law involved and recommendations, to the Supreme Court.

Henry R. Trumbower, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, submitted exhibits today showing that 85 per cent. of all United States iron ore production and approximately 700,000,000 bushels of wheat moved annually in the Great Lakes traffic.

The wide distribution of these basic commodities, the complainants contend, spreads the burden of lake transportation costs over the entire nation and constitutes a competitive factor in foreign trade. They hold that lower lake levels, charged to Chicago diversion, prevent maximum cargo loadings, result in freight differentials to certain shallow channels and increase harbor and dock maintenance costs.

Professor Trumbower's exhibits, based on Government reports, showed that the upper lakes States were further burdened by the same factors operating on incoming coal shipments. Sixty-one per cent. of all coal consumed in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, he said, moved from Lake Erie.

Deputy Attorney General Albert J. Danaher informed Mr. Hughes that evidence in support of New York's claims would be withheld pending definition by the Supreme Court of the limits of the State's case in the present hearing.

Mr. Danaher said that New York counsel are prepared, in the event of an unfavorable ruling from the court on the admissibility of testimony touching upon water power rights in the St. Lawrence River, to withdraw from the joint proceeding and continue New York's case separately.

TRIAL IN REID HOLD-UP OPENS UNDER GUARD

With only witnesses, talesmen and newspaper men allowed within the courtroom, while policemen and city and county detectives guarded the courthouse, the trial of four men charged with the murder of George N. Condit, paymaster of the Reid Ice Cream Company, and the theft of a $12,250 payroll began yesterday in the Essex County Court of Common Pleas at Newark before Judge Edwin C. Caffery.

Reports that gunmen and other underworld characters might attempt to rescue the prisoners brought the extraordinary precautions by the county authorities.

The men on trial are Joseph ("Big Joe") Juliano of 260 Eighth Avenue, Newark, N. J.; Nicholas Joseph ("Little Joe") Juliano, not related to the other man of the same name; Christopher Barone of Nutley, N. J., and Louis ("Kid Ruff") Capozzi of Newark.

When court adjourned last evening nine jurors had been selected and the entire panel of forty-eight talesmen had been exhausted.

The three other jurors will be drawn from a general panel today. Besides the four defendants placed on trial yesterday Robert Boudreau has been indicted and is under arrest but has not been called on to plead to the indictment. According to County Prosecutor John Bigelow, Boudreau, who will be the principal witness for the State, had confessed that he drove the automobile which the bandits used in the hold-up. He is being held in the City Jail while the four defendants are locked in the County Jail.

MRS. TINGLEY RETURNS.

Head of Theosophical Colony Has Been Lecturing in Europe.

Mrs. Katherine Tingley, head and founder of the Theosophical Colony at Point Loma, Cal., who is now 74 years old, returned yesterday on the liner Hamburg from a seven months' visit to Europe lecturing.

She said that those who had accepted the teachings of ancient wisdom had discovered that genuine theosophy was "sane, wholesome, uplifting and enlightening, and is in no way identified with the pseudo-theosophical propaganda about a coming Christ."

Speaking of Mrs. Annie Besant, she said "I think she is unfortunate and deluded. The mad idea she introduces has almost ruined theosophy. I think that Krishnamurti is a fine chap, but I think that he is not up to the mark she has set for him, and that he would like to be excused."

Theodore Brentano, United States Minister to Hungary, returned on the Hamburg for a two-months' vacation and said that Hungary was steadily improving economically and politically.

Heidelberg Honors Rochester Man.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—The distinction of Honorary Citizen has been conferred by Heidelberg University in Germany upon Hiram W. Sibley, capitalist and philanthropist of this city, it became known today. The honor is said to be the highest ever given by Heidelberg for services other than scientific and was conferred upon Mr. Sibley in recognition of his having given to the university a fully equipped students' home. He was graduated from Heidelberg, where he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy "cum laude" in 1869.

FIVE DIE, TWO HURT IN MINE EXPLOSION

Thirteen Escape at Moundsville, W. Va.—Worker Entombed Alone Is Found Dead.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Rescue crews, searching the interior of the Glendale Coal and Coke Company's First Street mine here, tonight found the body of Thomas Robbins, 44, last of the men entombed following an explosion early today. Discovery of Robbins's body brought the death total to five, with all workers accounted for. Two were injured and thirteen escaped alive.

It had been hoped that Robbins, a veteran miner, would be found alive, but his body was thrown by the force of the explosion into a ditch at one side of a motor road, a short distance from where the other four men met death.

Among the dead was Walter Fogle, 19, a high school student, who was visiting his father, Jessie Fogle, a mine foreman, when the blast occurred. Fogle and twelve fellow-workmen fled from the smoke and gas, carrying the youth with them, but before a brattice could be erected the lad had succumbed. The thirteen men were brought out four hours later.

MACFADDEN BUYS LINKS.

Publisher to Develop $626,016 Tract as Garden Suburbs.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 15.—All of the Hackensack golf property but fifteen acres in Maywood has been sold to Bernarr Macfadden of New York. The purchase price was $626,016, or $6,521 per acre. This price includes the clubhouse and personal property. There are 111 acres in the plot, fifty-two acres of which are in Hackensack and fifty-nine acres in Maywood. Mr. Macfadden purchased ninety-six acres, which includes all of the club buildings in Hackensack, and forty-four acres in Maywood.

Emil J. Habrich of Hackensack acted as broker for Mr. Macfadden in association with Frank D. Ames & Co. of New York City. The development of the property will be carried on by an organization to be known as the Garden Suburbs, Inc., and the development itself will be known as Garden Suburbs of Hackensack.

Under the contract signed, the new owners take possession Nov. 1, 1927. The club has purchased the property of the Kinderkamack Golf Club of Oradell, five miles north of Hackensack.

BUYS HOTEL MARSEILLES.

Edward Arlington Will Operate It as Part of His Chain.

The Hotel Marseilles, on the southwest corner of Broadway and 103d Street, has been acquired by Edward Arlington, and will be operated by him as part of the Arlington chain of hotels, which include the Ansonia, Richmond, Anderson and Cosmopolitan, according to an announcement made from the Hotel Ansonia last night.

The gross consideration for the remaining portion of the lease of the Marseilles, held by the Marseilles Operating Company, was given as $2,200,000.

The deal was closed through Charles Tenenbaum, President of the Hotel Marseilles Corporation, and Jacob I. Goodstein, attorney for the 103d Street and Broadway Corporation, representing Mr. Arlington.

Park Avenue Suite Sold.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co., Inc., have sold to a client for occupancy a large apartment consisting of eleven rooms and five baths in the 100 per cent. co-operative building, 1,172 Park Avenue, southwest corner of Ninety-third Street, recently completed by the 1,101 Park Avenue Corporation, Michael E. Paterno, President, from plans by Rosario Candela.

Madison Avenue Deal.

William A. White & Sons have sold, in conjunction with George W. Mercer & Sons, 927 Madison Avenue for W. Brewster Humphrey to the Back Baye Realty Corporation. The property consists of a four-story and basement altered building on a plot 20 by 80 feet. Negotiations are now pending for leasing the property for a long term of years.

Operator Buys East 171st St. Flat.

Isaac Lowenfeld, operator, has purchased from Louis Horowitz 451-453 East 171st Street, between Washington and Park Avenues, a five-story and basement new law apartment house, on a plot 50 by 100 feet, housing twenty families, with a rental of $12,000. The broker in the transaction was M. A. Wechsler.

Eighth Avenue Flat Leased.

Goodwin & Goodwin, Inc., have leased for the Monner Realty Company, Inc., the seven-story apartment building with stores at the northeast corner of Eighth Avenue and 111th Street for twenty-one years with renewal privilege.

GREENWICH VILLAGE BLOCKFRONT IS SOLD

Harmantz & Zankel Dispose of Seventh Avenue Property to Builders.

SITE IS TO BE IMPROVED

Other Trading Indicates Better Demand for Business Parcels in Manhattan.

As a site for a three-story business building the block front on the east side of Seventh Avenue from Perry Street to Waverly Place was sold by Harmantz & Zankel to a client of Tankoos, Smith & Co. The plot has a frontage of 100 feet with a depth of 90 feet. The seller assembled the site recently in three separate parcels and has now resold the whole plottage to the builder.

A demand for business properties was indicated by other deals yesterday. On the extreme west side of Manhattan Irving I. Lewine, Inc., purchased from Berta L. Fiske and John Arnold Fiske of Cocoa, Fla., 621 to 631 Tenth Avenue and 502 to 508 West Forty-fifth Street, at the southwest corner of those thoroughfares. The property consists of a two-story factory, occupied by the New York Bottling Works, and six five-story flats. It is 125 by 150 feet.

The property has been in the hands of the Fiske family since 1869 and was sold by the heirs for cash by negotiations through Louis Carreau as broker. The entire property is under a net lease until 1940 and has been purchased for investment.

John J. Radley sold the loft and factory property at 462 to 410 East Thirty-fourth Street, on a plot 100 by 100 feet. This property was held at $110,000. Peter Grimm was the broker.

Leo S. Friedman resold for Charles Steinberg to the Ithamer Holding Corporation the five-story store and loft building at 387 Grand Street. The building measures 25 by 70 feet and rents for $7,500. Mr. Steinberg purchased this building about two weeks ago through the same broker.

Victor Schwebel sold to a client for the Thames Building and Contracting Company, Inc., the southeast corner of First Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, which consists of four tenement houses, known as 424 to 428 First Avenue and 400 East Twenty-fifth Street.

The purchaser expects to demolish the tenements in the near future and improve the property.

John Newton Porter, in conjunction with Charles M. De Rosa & Co., Inc., resold for the Porter Operating Syndicate to the Josnick Realty Corporation 8 Prospect Place, the purchase of which was reported last week. The buyers will make extensive alterations.

Builder Buys Brooklyn Plot For Apartment Improvement

A new housing project is planned for a Brooklyn plot by Joseph G. Haft, a builder, who purchased as a site for a high-class elevator apartment house five frame buildings on South Elliott Place between Lafayette and De Kalb Avenues.

The properties are at 28 to 36 South Elliott Place and comprise a plot 100 by 100 feet. The buyer has plans under preparation for improving the property with a six-story house laid out in suites of from one to three rooms. Kugel & Kelsey represented Mr. Haft in the negotiations.

JUSTICE TAYLOR VOIDS MOUNT VERNON SUIT

Says Mayor and Corporation Counsel Were Without Authority in Apartment House Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Setting forth that Mayor MacQuesten and Corporation Counsel Hewson of Mount Vernon were without authority in bringing suit for an injunction to restrain Isador Schimel from further work on his apartment house on Gramatan Avenue near Grand Street and holding that the Common Council must order such action, Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor Jr. at White Plains filed a decision today dismissing the action.

In addition to this holding, Justice Taylor also made a suggestion that the city take early action on amending the zoning law. In part, he said: "In addition, I state by way of what I hope will be helpful dictum, that the responsible authorities of the plaintiff municipality should proceed as soon as possible to use in a definite way for the public safety, health and welfare the power of the city delegated to zoning, and if the plan now obtaining is inadequate to adopt a definite new plan therefor."

Attorney J. Henry Esser, counsel for Mr. Schimell, declared that under this decision his client was entitled to damages for being delayed in proceeding with the construction of the building for months and that such damages might be as high as $10,000.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

Several United Cigar Stores Properties Involved in Deals.

The Charles F. Noyes Company, Inc., has leased for the United Cigar Stores Company of America store 173 Bowery to William Gober; 2,538 Third Avenue to Joseph R. De Souza, and store 28 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, to the Myrtle Grill, Inc. The Noyes Company has also leased for the United, in conjunction with S. H. GEORGE MILNE BUYS RYE ESTATE TRACT

He Intends to Build a $250,000 Country Home on Former Smathers Holding.

DEALS ON LONG ISLAND

Long Beach Residence Properties and Long Island City Plots Feature Sales.

George G. Milne has purchased for improvement with a country home a tract of 114 acres, comprising part of the E. E. Smathers estate on the high ground back of Rye and Port Chester, Westchester County. Mr. Milne plans to improve the property with a residence to cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. This with the price of the land will bring his total investment to about $750,000.

The property was at one time owned by the Hobart Park family, who sold the majority of their holdings to the Westchester Biltmore Country Club. It has extensive frontages on the Hutchinson River Parkway, now in the course of construction; Lincoln Avenue and Purchase Street, and is surrounded by the country estates of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mrs. William A. Read, Mrs. Jefferson Hogan, George Arents and George C. Coleman.

The property sold for close to $500,000, which is said to be one of the largest private sales ever made in Rye. Stewart C. Schenck was the broker who negotiated the sale.

Prince & Ripley have sold for J. W. and M. M. Toutain a brick and stucco cottage in the Monican Park section of Dobbs Ferry to James A. Taxter for occupancy.

Lillian F. Stricker purchased from Harry J. Smith 545 West Market Street, Long Beach, N. Y., covering a plot 40 by 100 feet. William H. Gluck was the broker. Mr. Gluck also sold to Edwin G. Krimmel for Marion E. Marrazzo, 536 East Fulton Street, on plot 40 by 100 feet. He also sold to Edna F. Doorich for Mrs. Cora H. Webb 552 East Hudson Street, covering a plot 40 by 100 feet.

Fred P. Cody, Inc., sold for Elizabeth Ahern a plot 40 by 100 feet on the north side of Chester Street between National and Magnolia Boulevards, Long Beach, to a New York client, who intends to build a home. The plot is directly opposite the Long Beach High School. This is the first sale of the property in nineteen years.

The Robert Dasey Associates have sold to George D. Brown the M. R. Sheedy residence at North Drive, Malba. The property adjoins the home of Victor Kranich, and was formerly the home of Ralph A. Adams.

The Sunbee Realty Corporation purchased from the Dromore Realty Company for John Medler the plot, containing 16,000 square feet, on the east side of Van Alst Avenue, 25 feet south of Freeman Avenue, and running through to Sunswick Street, Long Island City. The buyers will improve with an industrial building for investment. The Roman-Callman Company was the broker.

SECURITY SALESMEN.
Unusual opportunity to get into the
PUBLIC UTILITY FIELD.
Have you ever wanted to sell a security that represents the maximum in safety and income? Something free from all kinds of competition—for which there is no substitute—a business thoroughly regulated and controlled, that is not affected by business depression? A business which must increase as fast as our country grows, and which, at all times, to all people alike, serves a demand which can never change and never grow old? This is a strong financial institution that is noted for its successful investments and its policy of protecting the interests of its clients and employes. We are handling a high-grade public utility issue, with profit-sharing features.
We invite the inquiries of men whose past record proves that they are exceptional and who desire a permanent connection with unlimited possibilities.
Remuneration on a commission basis, supplemented with an attractive bonus plan, which enables a man to increase his income in proportion to his capabilities.
Kindly write or call Director of Sales, office 1609, 57 William St., New York, or telephone John 3336 for appointment.

A SINCERE SALESMAN.
We have no $25,000-a-year jobs for salesmen.
No salesman becomes one of our executives in a month.
We are not looking for the quick, slick, clean-up salesman.
We do not sell real estate, books, insurance or house-to-house.
We call only on executives in business, selling a human element service.
We do promote salesmen with sales records to executives.
A connection in this organization means securing a permanent territorial franchise on a commission basis with a nationally known organization; a proven future, without investment, except your brains, for active salesmen between 27 and 40 years of age.
I will interview privately and employ in New York three men for nearby territories, so do not consider this unless you are prepared to start AT ONCE, should a connection be agreed upon.
Let's get down to "brass tacks." We only want to interview salesmen who are sincere in their desire to make a permanent connection.

Salesmen Wanted.

OUT OF THE MASSES
WE PICK TEN,
ARE YOU ONE?
Our field manager will pick for his staff the brains and integrity of tried men who can prove themselves.
—A big job is to be done and we require the best.
The men must be qualified to round out a sales organization—every man of which must sell intelligently, conscientiously and successfully.
Are you one of the ten?
If you had an opportunity to form an association with a strong corporation whose officers are all prominent business men of standing with over 25 years' experience in the field—would you investigate?
If you not only became assured but were convinced that you could make a substantial and increasing income through an exceptionally liberal commission arrangement—would you investigate?
And, not only that, but upon proving yourself to us if we saw you through the first stages with financial assistance—would you investigate?
If what you were to sell could stand the acid test as to past large performances and offered an investment that returned every dollar over a period of five to ten years, plus 6% interest, and from then on an ownership interest in the product with profit sharing — wouldn't you investigate?
See our advertisement in the Financial Section of today's Times which refers to ownership in suburban New York Apartment Buildings—and what they mean to the investor.
This is your opportunity—11 A. M. and 8 P. M. are the hours set for your interview. Our one requirement is that your references will stand investigation — 7th Floor, 52 Vanderbilt Av., New York City.

MEN!
Who want to make big money.
If you are afraid of big money, if you think it cannot be made, this is not your piece. You never will make big money while you think that way, and neither we, nor any one else, can help you to do so. But, if you are timber for earnings worth while, you know there are salesmen who do make $25,000 per year and a lot more. There are three things necessary to make this kind of money:
First, the right deal; second, the right management; third, salesmen who will put $25,000 worth of effort into their work.
Right now $350,000 in actual cash is being spent to make this deal salable. It has really been salable now only about ten days; $220,000 in actual cash has already been spent and $120,000 more is being spent at the rate of $2,000 per day. This is in addition to an original investment of over half a million dollars. And this is only one part of the enterprise we are handling.
We want clean-cut men who have made at least from $4,000 to $10,000 per year. Ambition, good appearance, willingness to work, intelligence, determination to make big money, counts for more than experience. We will take accountants, office men, well-educated men from any line, with or without selling experience, who can meet the above qualifications. Sales experience is valuable if you have had the kind that makes you expect to do a real day's work in order to make real money. We will not consider floaters or fly-by-nights.
We are spending thousands of dollars a week right now to help men make sales, although we are just starting to organize a sales force. The men who answer this ad will be in charge of sales managers who have made large incomes. If you mean business, are willing to put in a real day's work, six days a week, to make real money, on commission basis, call at once.
Room 808, 12 East 41st St.

MEN,
SALARY AND BONUS.
I don't care what kind of work you did until now, I have a permanent position for you on salary and bonus basis; our cooperation assures your success in the real estate business. Ask for Mr. Childe, Room 802, 421 7th Av.
DO NOT APPLY AFTER THURSDAY.

WE ARE LOOKING for three reliable real estate salesmen who have connections with builders for improved property in the fastest growing borough Queens location and neighborhood; don't need any introduction; attractive commission; call 205 West 33d St., Delano Smith Co.

7,500 shares of the par value of $100 each of 7% cumulative second preferred stock;
15,000 shares without par value of common stock;

the certificates for said stock being held as collateral security for the payment of certain notes of Murray Body Corporation aggregating $1,250,000 principal amount.

IV.

All of the right, title and interest of Murray Body Corporation in and to the following described property:

The following shares of capital stock:
196,769 shares of the par value of $10 each of the common stock of J. W. Murray Manufacturing Company, a Michigan corporation;
1,500 shares of the par value of $100 each of the preferred capital stock and 500 shares without par value of the common capital stock of Dietrich, Inc., a Michigan corporation.

All other shares of capital stock, all bonds, obligations, promissory notes, certificates of deposit, drafts, bills, notes and accounts receivable, rights, contracts, agreements, leases, claims, demands and choses in action.

All automobile bodies and other products, whether finished or in process of manufacture, materials, supplies and other inventories which shall be on hand at the date of the Final Decree, or the proceeds of any thereof that shall be disposed of in the usual course of business between the date of the Final Decree and the date of delivery of possession to the purchaser of the property.

The good will of Murray Body Corporation and all drawings, books vouchers and other papers and records, muniments of title and evidences of ownership.

All cash on hand and in bank at the date of delivery of possession to the purchaser of the property.

All other rights, interests, assets and property, real, personal or mixed, of every kind, character or description, wheresoever situated, of Murray Body Corporation.

V.

All right, title and interest of the Receiver in and to any and all property and assets of whatsoever character and wheresoever situated, which shall have been acquired by the Receiver in its operation of the business of Murray Body Corporation.

For a more particular description of the property to be sold, and of the terms of sale, intending purchasers are hereby referred to the Final Decree and to the record in said cause and to the statement or statements of the Receiver to be filed with the Clerk of said Court, as in the Final Decree directed.

As more fully provided by the Final Decree, to which reference is hereby made:

I. Said sale will be made without valuation, appraisement, redemption or extension.

II. The Special Master may adjourn or postpone said sale and may, without further notice or advertisement, proceed with the sale on any day to which the same may have been adjourned; and in case the Court shall refuse to confirm any sale made under the Final Decree, the property and assets thereby directed to be sold may be re-offered and resold by the Court upon such further notice or advertisement, or without notice or advertisement, as the Court may determine.

III. The Purchaser (which term as used in the Final Decree and in this notice includes the purchaser of the property and assets sold, his successors and assigns, and any corporation designated by him to receive the conveyance, assignment and transfer of said property and assets) shall take the property and assets and receive the deeds or other instruments of conveyance and transfer thereof subject to any and all purchase money and vendor's and contractor's and mechanic's liens, and to the lien of any taxes and assessments, and to any lien or priority conferred upon the Federal or State Governments by any statutory provision, which shall be a lien upon any of said property purchased at said sale; and the payment of the same shall be assumed by the Purchaser as part of the consideration of the property purchased, and in addition to the sums bid by him.

IV. In making said sale the Special Master will accept no bid from any one offering to bid who shall not at least twenty-four hours prior to any offering by the Special Master for sale under the Final Decree deposit with the Special Master and deliver to him as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance the sum of $100,000 in cash or certified check on some national bank or trust company in the City of New York or in the City of Detroit, Michigan, acceptable to the Special Master and made or endorsed payable to his order, or $200,000 principal amount in notes or obligations of or claims against said Murray Body Corporation filed in said cause within the period limited by orders of the Court and established thereto, accompanied by appropriate transfers thereof to the Special Master. Such deposit may be made partly in cash or certified check and partly in notes or obligations of or claims against said Murray Body Corporation but in the same relative proportions.

In lieu of the deposit of notes, obligations or claims with transfers thereof in accordance with the requirements of the foregoing clause, the Special Master will accept the certificate of any national bank or trust company in the City of New York or in the City of Detroit, Michigan, acceptable to the Special Master that it holds notes, obligations or claims of the required character with proper transfers thereof, subject to the order of the Special Master, or subject to the order of the person therein named and by him transferred to the order of the Special Master.

Any deposit received from an unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him when the property shall be struck down. The deposit received from the successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price.

V. In case any bidder, upon the acceptance of his bid by the Special Master, shall fail to comply, within the period of twenty days after the entry thereof, with any order of the Court requiring or relating to the payment of the balance of the purchase price, or if an appeal be taken from any such order for the period of twenty days after the service of notice of the entry of the order finally affirming such order on appeal, then the moneys, notes, obligations or claims deposited by such accepted bidder, as provided in the Final Decree, will be forfeited as a penalty for such failure and applied to the payment of the expenses of a resale and toward making good any deficiency or loss in case a less price is realized on such resale, and to such other purposes as the Court may direct.

If the Court shall not confirm any sale the deposit made by the accepted bidder at such sale will be forthwith returned to such bidder.

The successful bidder may assign, transfer and set over his bid in whole or in part and all or any part of his rights and interests under the Final Decree as such successful bidder.

VI. The Purchaser upon confirmation of the sale or sales must make such further payment or payments in cash on account of the purchase price as the Court may from time to time direct. In making payment of the residue of his bid the Purchaser may turn over to the Special Master, at their distributive value, notes, obligations or claims with proper transfers thereof entitled to share in the distribution of the proceeds of sale, as set forth in the Final Decree.

In lieu of such notes, obligations or claims the Special Master will accept the certificate of any national bank or trust company in the City of New York or in the City of Detroit, Michigan, acceptable to him, that it holds, subject to his order, a specified amount of notes, obligations or claims of the character therein specified with proper transfers thereof.

The Purchaser will be credited on account of the purchase price for all notes, obligations or claims so turned over to the Special Master in part payment of the purchase price with such sums as would be paid in respect of such notes, obligations or claims out of the proceeds of the sale if the whole amount of the purchase price were paid in cash.

The Purchaser will not be required to pay on account of the purchase price any amount in cash required for distribution out of the proceeds of sale upon the respective notes, obligations or claims entitled to share in the distribution of the proceeds of sale until ten days after the Court, on application of or in behalf of the holder of any of such notes, obligations or claims, shall enter its order or decree directing payment in accordance with such order of such cash distributive share upon such notes, obligations or claims.

The Court reserves a paramount lien and charge upon the property sold for the payment in full of the purchase price thereof and reserves the right, upon such notice as the Court may direct, to retake and resell the property sold in case the Purchaser shall fail to comply with any order of the Court directing payment of such purchase price or any part thereof for the period of twenty days, or if an appeal be taken from any such order for the period of twenty days after the service of notice of entry of the order finally affirming such order on appeal.

The Purchaser will have the right to enter his appearance in said cause; and he will have the right to contest any claim or demand existing on the date of the Final Decree or thereafter arising not theretofore finally determined which would be chargeable against the proceeds of sale, and he may appeal from any decision relating to any such claim or demand.

In the event that the Purchaser after demand made shall refuse to pay any sum which under or pursuant to the provisions of the Final Decree may be charged against the property purchased, the person holding the claim therefor upon twenty days' notice in writing to the Purchaser may file a petition in said cause to have such claim enforced against the property sold in accordance with the usual practice of the Court in relation to payments of a similar character; and the Purchaser will have the right to appear and to make defense to any claim or demand so sought to be enforced and will have the right to appeal from any judgment, decree or order made thereon.

VII. Upon confirmation of the sale and upon payment by the Purchaser of the purchase price or such portion thereof as shall, pursuant to the provisions of the Final Decree or the order of confirmation, be required to be paid in advance of the delivery of the deed or deeds by the Special Master or upon the making by the Purchaser of such provision for the payment thereof as the Court shall approve, the Special Master will execute a deed or deeds conveying, assigning and transferring to the Purchaser the property and assets sold subject, however, to the provisions of Article Eleventh of the Final Decree. The deed or deeds will run and be delivered to the Purchaser; and upon the production thereof or of a certified copy or copies thereof the grantee or grantees therein named will be let into the possession of the property and assets so conveyed, assigned or transferred and will after such delivery of possession hold, possess and enjoy the property and assets so conveyed, assigned and transferred and every part and parcel thereof free from all claims, rights, interests or equity of redemption of, in or to the same by or of said Murray Body Corporation, its successors and assigns and by or of the creditors or stockholders of said Murray Body Corporation, and by or of all persons claiming by under or through said Murray Body Corporation, its creditors or stockholders and by or of all parties to said cause, subject to compliance by the Purchaser with all conditions upon the Purchaser imposed by the Final Decree.

VIII. Article Tenth of the Final Decree provides that the Receiver shall, not more than twenty nor less than ten days prior to the date fixed for the sale under the Final Decree of the property therein directed to be sold, file with the Clerk of the Court an advisory statement or statements showing and describing as definitely as practicable but in general terms: (1) All outstanding contracts and leases to which said Murray Body Corporation or the Receiver may be party; (2) The property and assets by the Final Decree directed to be sold as thereinafter designated; and (3) All taxes, liens and assessments and purchase money or vendor's or contractor's or mechanic's liens upon the property thereby directed to be sold, specifying the particular pieces of property upon which the same respectively shall constitute a lien or charge.

IX. The Purchaser will have the right to elect not to take or accept any part of the property sold, by written notice of his election given to the Special Master at any time prior to the execution and delivery of the deed or deeds. No such election by the Purchaser will diminish or affect the purchase price to be paid by him.

As provided in Article Eleventh of the Final Decree, the Purchaser will be allowed six months from the date of taking possession of the property sold within which to elect to adopt or continue in force or refuse to adopt or continue in force any lease or other executory contract to which said Murray Body Corporation or the Receiver may be a party or which may be included in the property sold or may constit[illegible] an incident thereto or be appurtenant [illegible]to. Such right of election reserved above stated will not apply to any contract or contracts entered into by the Receiver by authority of the Court.

X. Any of the parties to said cause, or any creditor or any stockholder of said Murray Body Corporation, or any creditor of the Receiver, or any other person whosoever may, subject to the provisions of Article Seventh of the Final Decree, bid at the sale, and if a successful bidder may purchase in his, its or their own right.

XI. By the Final Decree the Court reserves for future adjudication all questions not disposed of by the Final Decree.

For further particulars reference is hereby made to the Final Decree, to the advisory statements to be filed by the Receiver, as provided in Article Tenth of the Final Decree, and to the records and proceedings in said cause on file in the office of the Clerk of the Court.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 15.—The tropical disturbance is still of slight or moderate intensity. It is apparently central tonight near the extreme western end of Cuba and moving northeastward. No strong winds are reported.

The Western disturbance has moved northeastward, with gradually increasing intensity, and it is now central north of Lake Superior, a storm of wide extent and marked intensity (Port Arthur, Ont., 29.14 inches). A secondary disturbance is developing over the southern Appalachian region. Still another disturbance has moved inland from the North Pacific and it is moving rapidly eastsoutheastward over the northern plateau region.

Pressure is high but falling from the Canadian Maritime Provinces southward over the ocean beyond Bermuda and from California southeastward to Texas.

There will be rains in the Atlantic States Tuesday, probably followed by clearing south of Maryland Tuesday afternoon, and there will be light rain, probably changing to snow flurries, in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region Tuesday. Mostly fair weather will prevail in the Washington forecast district on Wednesday, except that light rains are probable Wednesday afternoon or night in the Ohio Valley and Tennessee.

Colder weather will overspread all sections east of the Mississippi River, except Northern New England, within the next twenty-four hours.

The following storm warning was posted today by the Weather Bureau:

"4:00 P. M.—Southeast storm warnings displayed south of Delaware Breakwater to Cape Hatteras. Storm of marked intensity central over northern lake regions, with a trough extending southward to Florida."

The Civil Service.
City.

AXEMAN, GRADE B.—CERTIFICATION WILL ALSO BE MADE TO VACANCIES IN GRADE A—Duties are to perform elementary work in connection with engineering project; to assist field parties and to make minor computations in connection with office or field work. Candidates should have training and experience of sufficient scope to enable them to handle, care for and occasionally use engineering instruments; they should have sufficient knowledge of mathematics to assist in computation incident to engineering work. There is one vacancy in office of President of Borough of the Bronx at $1,560. There are several vacancies at $1,200 and $1,260. Other vacancies occur from time to time.

JUNIOR ENGINEER, GRADE C (BOARD OF TRANSPORTATION)—Duties are to act as assistant to assistant engineers, with occasional assignment as chief of party; the use and adjustment of various engineering instruments; computation and plotting of survey notes, and such field and office work (other than structural drafting and design) as relate to the field operations of the Board of Transportation. Candidates must have had two years' field experience as engineer assistant, instrument man, or its equivalent; or technical education equivalent to three years of an engineering course in an institution of recognized standing. There are 200 vacancies in the Board of Transportation at $2,400.

ENGINEER INSPECTOR (ARCHITECTURAL), GRADE C—Duties are the examination of structural conditions of buildings during repair and erection; the testing of foundations; the verification of interior dimensions; checking loads on, and the weight of beams, columns, &c. Familiarity with the interpretation of drawings and taking of estimates of materials from the same is essential.

Candidates must have had an experience of at least five years as architect, engineer or inspector of buildings, or in similar position with a contractor or builder. Credit will be given on experience rating for completion of engineering courses in a technical institution. Candidates should have a working knowledge of the application of the Building Code and an intimate knowledge of the fundamentals of constructions. Vacancies occur from time to time. Usual salary on appointment, $2,400 annually.

Persons who filed applications for Engineer Inspector (Architectural), Grade C, between July 14, 1926, and July 28, 1926, need not file applications for this examination.

CLERK, GRADE 2 (WITH KNOWLEDGE OF ADDRESSOGRAPH MACHINE)—Duties are to operate the Graphotype machine in embossing plates for use in the addressograph; to operate the addressograph in the preparation of payrolls, checks, letters, and to perform other clerical work.

Candidates must be familiar with the care and operation of the Graphotype and Addressograph machines, both hand and motor driven. There is one vacancy in the Department of Finance, at $1,260. Other vacancies occur from time to time.

TRANSITMAN, GRADE C—Duties involve the use and adjustment of various engineering instruments, computation and plotting of survey notes and such field and office duties as relate to the engineering operations of the department; occasional assignment may be made as chief of party. Candidates must have had two years' field experience as engineer assistant, instrument man or its equivalent. Suitable credit will be given for training in technical or trade schools. There are more than sixty vacancies in various departments at $2,160.

STOREKEEPER—Candidates will be examined as to their knowledge of the methods used in the storage, the care and the distribution of supplies and in their ability to keep accounts showing the disposition of supplies. They will also be examined as to their capacity to exercise supervision over the work of subordinate employes in the storeroom and in the duties which usually appertain to the position of storekeeper. Candidates will be required to present evidence of at least two years' experience as a salesman or purchasing agent; as an inspector of supplies; in a position involving the storage and handling of supplies, or in a similar position. Vacancies—One vacancy in the Board of Education at $5 a day.

PROCESS SERVER, GRADE 2—Candidates should have had experience in the service of legal papers or investigating experience, such as service as an examiner or inspector in a city department; or service in the claim department of a railroad, express or insurance company; a tracer or credit investigator in a mercantile house or other similar investigative experience. Candidates should possess a thorough knowledge of the law relating to the service of legal process, should be familiar with city localities and have a knowledge of investigating methods. Salary, Grade 2, is from $1,560 to, but not including, $2,160 annually, or a fee of $1.67 for each paper served. Those employed on a fee basis will not be required to give their entire time to the work.

ASSISTANT ENGINEER, GRADE C—Duties include the responsible charge of minor portions of engineering operations of construction or design with supervision over draftsmen or survey parties; these duties involve investigations, calculations, designs, specifications and reports. Assistant engineers appointed by or under the authorization of a Borough President must be civil engineers of at least three years' experience in accordance with Chapter 336 of the Charter. Section 453 of the Charter directs that assistant engineers appointed in the Departments of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity and Plant and Structures must be civil engineers of at least five years' experience. Salary of Grade C is from $2,160 to, but not including, $2,760 annually. There are two vacancies with the President of Brooklyn, four with the President of Queens and four with the President of Richmond. Other vacancies occur from time to time in the various departments.

MECHANICAL DRAFTSMAN (ELECTRICAL), GRADE B—Duties are to make computations, to sketch layout of electrical circuits, attachments and fixtures, to prepare drawings of the same and to do such other work as may be required in connection with the design, construction or maintenance of the electrical equipment of buildings. Candidates must have had training and experience in the office of a contractor, engineer or architect as draftsman on electrical work. Training in trade or technical school will be accorded additional credit for experience. One vacancy exists in the Department of Education at $1,638. Additional appointments are made from time to time.

TOPOGRAPHICAL DRAFTSMAN, GRADE B—Duties are to prepare plans, sketches, charts and maps and to make computations, studies and designs pertaining to the particular department to which they are appointed. They may be assigned to the supervision of draftsmen of lower grades. Candidates must have a thorough knowledge of topographical drawing and ordinary design. They must have at least three years' experience as a draftsman, designer or engineering assistant, or in a similar capacity such as to fit them for work of this character. They must be familiar with surveying and plotting and computations incidental to construction and other engineering work. There are twenty-two vacancies in the office of the President of the Borough of Queens at $2,760.

Public School Notes.

NEW EVENING SCHOOL COURSES—A special typewriting course is offered to the public in Evening School 90, 109th Street, near Jamaica Avenue, Richmond Hill, N. Y. The course is short and complete in touch typewriting and is conducted by able, experienced instructors, who are expert typists. Enroll any Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday evening. Pupils have choice of one other subject in addition to typewriting. Among these subjects are stenography, business English, bookkeeping, art, dressmaking, millinery and cooking. There are also classes in English to foreigners and common branches (review of elementary school subjects leading to a diploma of graduation). Classes are in session on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from 7:45 to 9:45. The school is easily accessible from the Jamaica Avenue surface line, the Brooklyn "L" (station at 111th Street) and the Long Island Railroad station at Clarenceville. There are also classes in stenography and typewriting, Italian, French and bookkeeping in the Jamaica Evening High School, Hillside Avenue and Union Avenue, Jamaica, N. Y.

"ATHALIE" TO BE PRODUCED—Two performances of "Athalie," famous tragedy of Racine, will be given by the French Graduate Club of Hunter College, on Thursday, Nov. 18, at 8:30 P. M. and on Saturday, Nov. 20, at 2:30 P. M. The play is offered as a tribute to Monsieur Henry Barry, former director of the French department of the college. The proceeds of these performances are to form part of the fund given annually as a traveling scholarship to a teacher of French in one of the city high schools. Tickets are $1 for the evening and 50 cents for the matinee.

Women Find

Great comfort in this new hygienic pad that discards easily as tissue —no laundry

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

COOLIDGE NOW BACKS TAX CREDIT IN 1927; WANTS HOUSE TO ACT

President Feels That Ways and Means Committee Should Initiate Detailed Plan.

MEMBERS WANT GUIDANCE

Given-Garner Proposal to Take Up Surplus by Corporation Tax Cut Finds Support.

BALANCE OF $400,000,000

Some Official Estimates Even Put Surplus as High as $450,000,000 by June 30.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Another chapter was added to the proposed tax reduction program today when an executive, made at the White House in behalf of President Coolidge, showed that the President was now in accord with Secretary Mellon's view that the treasury surplus should be utilized in giving income tax payers a credit on 1926 taxes paid in 1927. The President's original idea was that there should be a rebate or refund on 1925 taxes paid in 1926. His new proposal, which is essentially the same as that of Secretary Mellon, would permit taxpayers to deduct the amount of credit given them their first two instalments of tax payments on March 15 and June 15, 1927.

It became known today that Treasury officials see the likelihood that by the end of this fiscal year, that is, on June 30, 1927, the Treasury surplus will amount to $400,000,000. Some officials surmise that the surplus may reach $450,000,000 by that time.

The surprising intelligence contrasts sharply with the recent expression of belief on the part of those officially concerned that the surplus might reach $300,000,000. Only a short time ago it was estimated that the surplus would be about $260,000,000.

Surplus Estimates Mount.

At the time President Coolidge made his first suggestion of a tax refund—Nov. 5, three days after the election—he was figuring on a possible refund of 10 or 12 per cent. of taxes paid in 1926, with that refund based on an estimated surplus of $250,000,000. In the brief period since then there have been intimations that $50,000,000 might be added to this sum, and today the estimate goes to $400,000,000, or even $450,000,000.

In making known today his view of the situation President Coolidge indicated that the question was becoming involved in a confusion of terms, and it was mentioned that rebates, refunds and credits were the terms which were causing the confusion. It was explained that the main point to keep in mind was that the Administration was aiming at a reduction of taxes that would apply on the first two tax payment instalments of 1927. The President's idea, as explained authoritatively, was that the surplus should be absorbed in a temporary refund of taxes through credits on income tax bills. The President, it was said, had no intention in his original statement of undertaking to propose any different plan. To this was added that as revenue legislation must originate in the House of Representatives, it is for the House to determine the form any tax reduction legislation shall take. The matter will be handled by the Committee on Ways and Means. The President took the position that when the committee has information as to the amount of the surplus, it will be able to determine the form of tax reduction legislation and how the reduction shall be applied.

Ways and Means Opposition.

Meanwhile, the Committee on Ways and Means, now in session here, deliberating upon legislation for the return of seized enemy property, is taking no formal cognizance of the suggestions that have come from the White House and the Treasury Department in regard to a tax refund program. There have been various informal views expressed by members of the committee which indicate that there will be considerable opposition to the expected proposal of the President that the surplus be utilized in returning to taxpayers part of the money they have paid in taxes.

Representative William R. Green, Republican, of Iowa, Chairman of the committee, and Representative John N. Garner of Texas, the leading Democratic member, have expressed themselves as in accord with the plan to take up the surplus indirectly by means of a permanent reduction of the corporation tax. Mr. Garner suggested a reduction in this tax from its present 13½ to 12 per cent., and figured that the many millions that corporations would save through the reduction would be reflected in lower prices of their products, from which the people generally would obtain benefit.

A somewhat prevalent idea among the membership of the Ways and Means Committee appears to be that no move should be made by the committee toward tax reduction legislation unless President Coolidge recommends it in a direct way. The committee will be busy until Congress meets on Dec. 6 in perfecting its bill for the restoration of seized enemy property, and it was said today to be unlikely to have any time, even if disposed to consider other matters, to take up the troublesome problem of taxation.

In the opinion of some Ways and Means Committee members no effort to formulate a tax reduction program

Girls at Yale-Harvard Game Will Cost Swains $1,273,000

The 30,000 lucky girls on whose coat collars the crimson of Harvard or the blue of Yale will bloom on Saturday will have cost their college swains approximately $1,273,200 f. o. b., Yale Bowl, says The Associated Press.

This estimate of the high cost of taking one's girl to the football game has been computed by sons of Eli and John Harvard, from whom the early season feminine football attendance has already taken a high toll.

Tickets from New York, starting point for most New Haven rooters, $2.61 apiece each way, or a total of $10.44.

Luncheon for two before game, $6.

Two tickets for the game, $10.

MARIE CAME TO PUT RUMANIA ON MAP'

Queen's Cheeks Are Wet With Tears as Over Radio She Tells of Her Country's Sufferings.

GAVE RUMANIA CHILDREN

To Carry On Dynasty and Was Her Nation's "Face" at Paris Peace Conference.

New York Times Associated Newspapers, From a Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—For the second time since she came to America, Queen Marie of Rumania spoke extemporaneously and emotionally today of the reasons why she had come to this country.

Her first such address was uttered at the Maryhill Museum of Fine Arts when she defied the world to criticise her loyalty to and her friendship for Loie Fuller and Samuel Hill. Today, the Queen told of her war-scarred little Rumania; of how she, an English Princess, had been called to be its Queen and had borne for her new country six children; of how her country had stood fast when the Germans were conquering it and how her soldiers had remained loyal when a million Russians in the trenches beside them had turned Bolshevist. She told why she had gone to Paris after the war to fight for her country's place in the sun, and now she had come to America, she frankly said, "to put Rumania on the map."

Rumania's Face at Paris.

"When I went down to the peace conference at Paris," the Queen recalled, "they asked me why I had come. And I told them this: 'Every country needs a face. So when you all gather about for your deliberations, I want Rumania to have a face. I am here to be that face, to make Rumania something more personal than statistics and maps."

There was no mention in her speech of the recent rumors, which she herself denied last night, that her visit here had to do with loans to Rumania, but it seemed that without saying so she was aiming her speech at such rumors.

Before the Queen had finished her eyes were full of tears and her voice was near to breaking. Many also of her auditors, guests at a luncheon at the Union League Club, were moved by her address.

Queen Marie's words were being carried out over the radio and she appeared a little abashed as she began.

"The very first time I ever talked in public in my life was when I came to New York," she said. "All my life I have considered myself a soldier, going forward, doing what I must do, and doing it more or less well, in accordance with my powers. I made no

Chinese, He Asserts, Will No Longer Submit to Manifold Evils of Foreign Domination.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Senator Borah, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, in a speech before the National Council of Jewish Women tonight warned the United States and other powers against the adoption of any imperialistic or ruthless attitude toward China.

Predicting that the report of the special conference of this country and European nations on the Chinese customs tariffs, extraterritoriality and other questions would declare China to be in such a chaotic condition that she could not be considered as having a Government with which it would be possible to deal, and insinuating that such a report might be used as an argument for intervention, Senator Borah demanded the fairest treatment for China by the United States and the other powers. Disclaiming any specific accusations against this or any other Government at this time, Senator Borah added:

"The nation which, under the circumstances now existing in China, invokes the brutal policy of force in China will be the deliberate assassin of justice to the Orient for decades and decades. It will dedicate that land to misery and bloodshed for years to come, and in the end it will settle nothing. Force never does. The time has gone by in China when you can shoot down men, as they did last July, and see a nation bow like whipped slaves."

The Spirit of Nationalism.

Putting the powers on notice that, after long years of exploitation by European countries, the spirit of nationalism was rising high among the 400,000,000 Chinese, Mr. Borah said that here was a chance for the world to demonstrate whether the theory of self-determination laid down at the end of the World War really worked.

"China may furnish the acid test of whether the world has been converted to justice as a basis of international dealing or whether it proposes to retain the barbarous creed of force."

Existing turmoil in China, Senator Borah warned, may be welded into a concerted force by the growing spirit of nationalism and the demand for "China for the Chinese."

"There is no power," he said, "which can master or hold in subjection 400,000,000 people."

The nationalistic ambition, he declared, was the "most tremendous thing" in the present life of China. He urged that the United States, which had always maintained a policy of fairness toward China, should not now alter its course.

The speech was received with intense interest by that part of official Washington which heard it, particularly in view of the long-awaited Chinese conference report. There are rumors here that the report will maintain that, with conditions disturbed as they are in China, no government exists there with which disputes over customs, tariffs and extraterritoriality could be adjusted. Senator Borah has long been insistent that China should have the right to exercise control over her own customs tariffs and the trial of foreigners.

"You have asked me to speak to

M. P. Tells Lady Astor to 'Hold Her Tongue,' Laborite's Outburst Is Rebuked by Chairman

By T. R. YBARRA.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Lady Astor was told in the House of Commons today to hold her tongue.

This startling interlude occurred in a debate on unemployment relief, during which Sir Kingsley Wood and other speakers presented gloomy statistics of the heavy inroads made by the coal strike and the general unemployment situation on the Government relief funds.

Sir Kingsley told the House that in the six months ended September 30 last the local authorities had distributed £13,000,000, as against £7,000,000 for the same period last year, and that today more than 2,000,000 persons in Great Britain were paupers. In one district, he said, half the population is dependent on Government relief.

Another speaker said that £50,000,000 yearly is now being spent in Great Britain for outdoor relief of all kinds, against £3,000,000 before the war.

Then George Lansbury, a noted Labor member, started a speech on unemployment, violently attacking the Government.

Lady Astor made some comment, whereupon Lansbury, turning to her, said:

"Take it from me, you'll be much more respected if you can learn to hold your tongue."

This provoked cries of "Order!" and the Chairman told Lansbury that his was not the proper remark to make to a member of the House, but should be made through the Chair. Lansbury then said:

"Then, through you, sir, I will invite the honorable lady to hold her tongue."

Lady Astor jumped to her feet to reply, but the Chairman interposed, "That is not a parliamentary expression. I trust it will not be repeated," amid cheers from the Ministerial benches.

Lady Aster get into another altercation before the session closed. This time it was with Mr. Buchanan, member for Glasgow, who declared there were cases of starvation due to the coal strike in his district. Lady Astor promptly interrupted:

"Can the honorable member give the names and addresses of the people who are starving?"

Mr. Buchanan replied that if she would come to his district he would show her scores of starving people. He added that if she would go to Glasgow tonight he would go with her.

She retorted that Mr. Buchanan had no right to make his assertion about starvation unless he could prove it.

TOWANDA, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP).—Breaking under the strain caused by swollen streams tonight, fifty feet of the breast of the dam holding Lake Mokoma at La Porte, Sullivan County, gave way, releasing enormous quantities of water down the valley. Directly in the path of this flood is Forksville, native heme of "Red" Grange, who visited there this Summer.

Sheriff Bigger of La Porte sent warnings to residents of Forksville about 8 o'clock, but since that time has been unable to get in communication with the town.

Lake Mokoma contains 127 acres and the waters were gradually emptying into the big Loyalsock Creek, which already was overflowing.

Forksville, with a population of a little more than 100, is about three miles to the north of Lake Mokoma in Sullivan County, Pa., which is in the northern part of the State.

STOCK FRAUD LAW UPHELD ON APPEAL

Highest State Court Decides Martin Act Provisions Are Constitutional.

DENIES INQUIRY IS JUDICIAL

All Objections of E. F. Dunham, New York Broker, Are Cast Aside in Hiscock Opinion.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 16.—The validity of the Martin Anti-Stock Fraud law was upheld by the Court of Appeals today. The highest court in the State unanimously upheld the contention of Attorney General Albert Ottinger that the power of subpoena conferred upon the Attorney General by the statute was not in violation of the Constitution.

Chief Judge Frank H. Hiscock, writing the opinion, declared that "a law preventing the widespread practice of victimizing the public by the issue of fraudulent securities was not only necessary for the protection of prospective victims, but also was in the interest of the great majority of brokers who conduct their business on an honorable basis."

The attack on the Martin act was made by Louis Marshall and Joseph W. Bymner in behalf of Ernest E. Dunham, a New York City broker, who sought to restrain Attorney General Ottinger from examining him and books of his concern under a subpoena and order issued under the authority of this law. Keyes Winter of the New York City Bureau of the Attorney General, assisted in the appeal.

Court Answers Three Objections.

Judge Hiscock, outlining the three objections made to the statute, that it confers upon the Attorney General judicial powers, that it denies to a person subjected to subpoena the benefit of due process of law, and that it compels self-incrimination of a person affected by a subpoena, declared:

It does not seem to me that the statute when fairly interpreted furnishes a basis upon which may be successfully rested any of these contentions, and some pertinent general consideration may properly be taken into account in passing upon them. It is a matter of general knowledge that dishonest members of the business of dealing in securities such as are described in the statute have been accustomed to pursue fraudulent practices whereby the rights of their customers were violated and on occasions the public widely victimized.

"Of course, it was not only the privilege but the duty of the Legislature, if possible, to prevent these fraudulent practices. This was not only a duty which it owed to the public, but incidentally it was for the benefit of those honestly carrying on this business and who were more or less discredited by the evil practices of a comparatively small number, that the latter should be punished and stopped.

Says Honest Men Back Law.

"In the attempt to discharge this obligation the Legislature adopted various laws, such as those making it a criminal offense for a broker to bucket a customer's order or to unlawfully pledge or use his securities, and now, in addition, has enacted the statute which is now before us. Honest brokers, as well as intended victims, are interested in its enforcement, if constitutional and limited by an administration which is reasonable and fair."

Chief Judge Hiscock dismissed the claim that the law imposes judicial powers upon the Attorney General with this statement:

"I find no bestowal of any of those judicial powers which by our Constitution are lodged with the courts. The Attorney General decides nothing in a judicial way. He passes upon no question of civil violation or of criminal guilt. The ultimate and only end to which he can proceed is by action or criminal prosecution to submit to the Court the question whether a person has been guilty of such unlawful practices that he should be enjoined from further pursuing them or should be subjected to a criminal prosecution.

"Everything which he does leading up to this point is the performance of an executive or administrative power such as has long been recognized as perfectly appropriate and valid, and whatever judicial decision follows is made by the Court. It is the performance of administrative duties by an executive official and in no sense the decision of justiciable questions, exclusively delegated to the jurisdiction of judicial tribunals."

Denies Undue Process of Law.

The opinion disposes of the contention of undue process with this comment:

"Neither can I find any viewpoint from which it can be successfully argued that the provisions of the statute authorize unreasonable seizure, deprive any one of due process of law or compel him to furnish incriminating evidence against himself for the purpose of a criminal prosecution."

Judge Hiscock said that any person of whom examination is sought is immune from punishment for refusal to

ALTHOUGH NOT NAMING HIM

Koenig Says Wadsworth Defeat Blights Modification Hopes—Sees Both Parties Dry in '28.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Plans to checkmate any wet candidate who may be put forward for the Presidential nomination and prevent incorporation of a wet plank in either major party platform in 1928 were considered at a meeting today of the Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America. Governor Smith's name was not mentioned in a report of the proceedings, but it is known the managing body of the league had the New York Executive in mind in making an announcement as follows:

"The movement to nominate a wet candidate for the Presidency and to insert a wet plank in the national party platforms was viewed as a challenge thrown down to the dry majority by a small but highly organized minority. Plans to meet that challenge effectively were discussed."

The committee declared after canvassing the results of the November election that it found "positive evidence of the popular support of the Eighteenth Amendment in the election of a large majority of Senators and Congressmen favorable to the maintenance and enforcement of the prohibition law, in the victory of dry Governors, legislators and other State officers over their wet opponents." It continued:

"The committee noted that the wet vote recorded on the referendum propositions was less than on similar propositions presented at previous elections. Nevertheless, the size of the vote cast was taken to indicate the necessity for a continued and vigorous educational program and organization work to reach the indifferent voter with information on the issues involved and to arouse the non-voter to the need for his exercise of the franchise to defend the highly organized wet minority.

"The committee urged that early action be taken by Congress on the enforcement legislation which is now on the calendar to put prohibition agents under civil service, to establish a prohibition bureau and to enact the legislation recommended by the prohibition unit to strengthen the national prohibition act. The announced policy of the wets to filibuster against the last-named measure was considered by the committee as a revelation of the enemy's indefensible tactics, as well as their weakness in attempting to break down enforcement laws they cannot repeal.

"The committee expressed opposition to the reported recommendations of Traffic Commissioner Eldridge of the District of Columbia that the mandatory prison penalty for drunken drivers be repealed. Such drivers are a menace to public safety, as well as violators of the prohibition law."

KOENIG SEES WETS DEFEATED.

Says Wadsworth's Beating Blights All Hope for Modification.

When United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. was beaten on election day the wet cause in the United States went down to defeat with him, according to Samuel S. Koenig, President of the New York County Republican Committee and one of the foremost Republican leaders in the State.

Mr. Koenig in one of the interviews he so rarely gives said last night that with the failure of Senator Wadsworth to overcome the opposition of the Anti-Saloon League all hope of Congressional action to modify the Volstead law vanished. In the face of Wadsworth's defeat the overwhelming affirmative majority for the prohibition referendum in this State will be without effect on Congress, Mr. Koenig said.

From now on, he added, the wets must depend on the Democratic Party for Volstead law revision. And the Democratic Party, as Mr. Koenig pointed out, is wet only in spots.

Speaking of the Wadsworth defeat, Mr. Koenig said:

"To punish him and at the same time afford an object lesson to the country the drys put a third candidate for United States Senator in the field and, of course, defeated Mr. Wadsworth. The wets stood by and allowed this thing to be done without protest; in fact, they supported the Democratic candidate for United States Senator.

"No Republican Senator or member of the House of Representatives, placed in the same position as was Senator Wadsworth, in the long future will join hands with the wets, knowing in advance what his fate would be at the polls. It is apparent that as far as this wet city is concerned the Democratic Party is in position always to command the full wet support; for the obvious reason that before ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment the Democratic Party locally always was on an exceedingly friendly footing with the liquor interests."

"The Democratic South is and will remain solidly dry." Mr. Koenig de-

TWO DIE, FIVE HURT IN A 70-MILE GALE; WHOLE EAST FEELS IT

HORSES SWEPT OFF FEET

PENNSYLVANIA HARD HIT

Two persons were killed as the result of the storm which swept the entire eastern part of the country yesterday. Between 1:30 and 2 o'clock the wind became a "whole gale," as the Weather Bureau termed it, with a force of seventy miles an hour in New York City. Five persons were reported to the police as injured here and probably a few more were cut by broken glass or injured by pieces of wood torn from broken signs and other obstacles to the wind.

Both those killed were children. Margaret Paxtro, 2 years old, of 630 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, was blown from a fire escape on which she was playing at the fourth flour to the rear yard. She was instantly killed.

Vincent Schultz, 15 years old, an errand boy, of 1,821 Park Avenue, Weehawken, was killed when he stumbled into a broken electric wire on a flight of stairs up the Palisades. Some women saw him lying on the stairs and notified the police, who pulled his body from the wire with hooks.

Those injured were:

ARDT, ANNA, 28, 49 Gold Street; struck by falling glass at 100 West Twenty-fifth Street; went home.

DAVISON, ANNA, 26, 24 West 120th Street; cut on left leg by metal blown from building at 47 Broadway; went home.

Wind Rises to 70 Miles an Hour.

The wind was from the southeast, and came up steadily during the night and morning, driving before it gusty sheets of rain, which at times fell so heavily as to obscure vision. At 9 o'clock yesterday morning it was blowing forty-eight miles an hour, and at 11 sixty miles an hour. Then it jumped to seventy, smashing windows, hurling signs to the ground, blowing pedestrians and even horses from their feet, turning umbrellas inside out, and making efforts to cross the street adventures from which one was sure to emerge soaking wet.

At the Municipal Building, always a centre of whirling currents during a blow, many persons were marooned and some blown over at 1:30 o'clock. One man landed sitting down in a puddle, and several girls, their movements impeded even by their short skirts, were toppled over. A horse attached to a laundry wagon couldn't meet the combination of slippery pavements and wind, and went down on his side, from which he made no attempt to rise. The gutters were littered all over town with umbrellas which had been turned inside out and broken. Many a girl after trying to make headway against the rain and wind, gave up and turned in the other direction, skidding ahead like a ship under full sail.

Waves Dash Over Sea Wall.

Waves dashed over the Battery wall and along the Brooklyn waterfront. At Ellis Island the waves went over the sea wall with such force that sixty immigrants who arrived yesterday morning on the Cunard liner Franconia were unable to land, and went back to the ship to spend the day. The beaches of Gravesend Bay were littered with ling fish, and great schools of mackerel were washed up at Sea Girt and Coney Island.

The most extraordinary accident of the day, however, was what happened to Peter Zajakowski of 218 East Third Street, who was working on a new skyscraper at 783 Fifth Avenue

SWEARS HALL DETECTIVE TRIED TO BUY SILENCE; RECTOR'S DIARY IS READ

Mrs. Mills Would Be 38 Today; Daughter Glad Trial Is Halted

Had she lived Mrs. Eleanor Mills would have been 38 years old today. Her daughter, Charlotte, who is covering the trial for a news syndicate, observed this fact yesterday. Her mother, she said, had been born in New Brunswick.

Miss Mills said both she and her father, James Mills, who is also at the trial, were glad to know that there would be no court today.

"For father and myself the trial has been trial enough. It would have been difficult to sit in court on mother's birthday and hear the testimony of Mrs. Gibson describing the murders."

EX-MAHARAJAH HERE DESPITE SCANDAL

Deposed Ruler of Indore, in Utah, Is Silent on Nautch Girl and Two Murders.

ENTERED USING INCOGNITO

He Wants to See America Quietly—Moral-Turpitude Rule Is Recalled.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 16 (AP).—Now that his incognito has been penetrated, his Royal Highness, the former Maharajah of Indore, who is on a tour of America, admitted today that he was the Indian ruler who abdicated in favor of his son, Yeshwant, because of the scandal following the flight from his palace of the nautch dancer, Mumtas Begum.

In a written statement passed to a reporter through his English secretary, the former ruler of the richest province in India said he was the Prince who was involved in the two-year-old scandal following the murder of the child Mumtas bore him and of the merchant, Dawla, who befriended her after her escape from the palace.

"People in high positions and with heavy responsibilities," the former Maharajah wrote, "cannot comment on such matters, one way or another. It is their fate to submit to every kind of criticism and bow to it."

"His Highness requested me to make no comment," M. F. Becntier, the English Secretary said, "but there are two sides to every story and there are two sides to this one. I am sorry his Highness does not wish to give it to you, or to allow me to give my version of it."

Ignorant of Mumtas's Whereabouts.

"Does his Highness know the whereabouts of Mumtas at present?" the Secretary was asked, and he replied that he was quite sure he did not, nor was he much concerned about it.

Prince Yeshwant is attending college in England and is 19 years old, Mr. Bechtler said, adding that following the completion of his American tour, the former ruler planned to return to Indore. The exact date is uncertain.

Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., and her mother, Mrs. J. Miller, who are accompanying the former Maharajah across the continent, took luncheon with him before going on a motor sightseeing trip this afternoon. The American women first met their companion during his reign in India and later in Paris and more recently in New York. The party will leave tomorrow for San Francisco and Los Angeles and return East by way of the Grand Canyon.

The former Maharajah's passport reads "T. Raje," a native of India, and as such he entered the United States.

Right to Enter Was Not Questioned.

DI MARTINI IS ACCUSED

Mrs. Demarest Testifies He Offered Her $2,500 to End Disclosures.

HIS AIDE BARES ACTIVITIES

Hired to Get Names of Persons Hostile to Mrs. Hall and to Break Gibson Story, He Says.

PLANS FOR DIVORCE TOLD

Sister of Mrs. Mills Reveals Scheme—Mrs. Gibson on Stand Tomorrow—No Trial Today.

Mrs. Marie Demarest, a middle-aged housewife, with keen eyes that flare in the stress of excitement, took the stand yesterday in the Hall-Mills trial at Somerville, N. J. She swore a bribe had been offered to her four years ago to remain silent on what she knew of the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills.

She named Felix Di Martini as the person who offered the bribe. Di Martini, who was a private detective for Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, now separated, with her brothers, Henry Stevens and Willie Stevens, of the mystery, has flitted in and out of the case for months. Yesterday's allegation was the first definite charge against him.

A short time before Mrs. Demarest contributed her startling chapter to the history of the famous crime, Peter Sommers, who was an operative for Di Martini in 1922, added his testimony. He declared his chief function in the case had been to take down the names and addresses of persons whose sentiments were "offensive" or anti-Mrs. Hall. He disclosed how he had been planted in a New Brunswick factory to get material to "break down Mrs. Gibson's story."

Mrs. Gibson on Stand Tomorrow.

Sommers referred to Mrs. Jane Gibson, alleged eye-witness to the killing, whose story led to the indictments against Mrs. Hall and her brothers. Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson announced at the close of court yesterday that he would put Mrs. Gibson on the stand tomorrow. She will utter her graphic accusation against the widow and the two brothers from a reclining stretcher. Indicating he had neared the end of the State's case, the Senator sought and obtained an adjournment over today, saying that Mrs. Gibson was not well enough to appear before tomorrow.

Mrs. Demarest told her story of the alleged bribe offer with a great deal of emphasis after she had been helped to the stand by investigators for the State. She was injured in an automobile accident last month, but she did not let her temporary infirmity interfere with her testimony. She glared at State Senator Clarence E. Case, who had cross-examined her rather stiffly last week when she identified Henry Stevens as having been in New Brunswick on Sept. 15, the day after the crime. Stevens in his alibi said he was in his home in Lavallette, N. J., on that date.

Story of Di Martini's Visit.

Senator Simpson drew from the witness the fact that she was a cousin of Mrs. Minnie Clark, who is out in $5,000 bail on the charge of being an accessory after the fact of the murders. He then guided the more-than-willing witness down to the visit of Di Martini. He had Mrs. Demarest relate how Di Martini had advised her that an identification of Henry Stevens would injure Mrs. Clark.

" 'Listen,' was the way the witness quoted Di Martini, 'you have not seen Henry Stevens in New Brunswick.'

"I says, 'Oh, yes, I have.'

"He said, 'Oh, no, you did not.'

" 'New,' he said, 'you know you are hurting him, too. Now, you have just taken over this place.' I said that I had. He said, 'You have got a mortgage on this place of $2,500.' I says to him, 'How did you know?' He says, 'I found out. How would you like to have that $2,500 and a little bit more to keep your mouth shut?'

"I said, 'No, thank you. If I wanted to clear the mortgage off the house I would rather go to work in a factory in preference to taking Dr. Hall's blood money to keep my mouth shut.'"

Senator Case went after the witness with his customary vigor. He had a smile on his face, however. Mrs. Hall and her brothers were smiling broadly, and in the end Henry Stevens's shoulders shook as he tried to control his amusement at Mrs. Demarest's positive manner on the stand. Her story, however, went into the record unchanged by the cross-examination.

Mrs. Mills's Sister Testifies.

More evidence on the liaison between the rector and Mrs. Mills came from a younger sister of the dead woman. She was Mrs. Marie M. Lee, a widow, who formerly lived in Minneapolis. In

Chinese Pirates Capture a British Steamer Near Swatow and Flee With Women Hostages

By Wireless to The New York Times.

HONGKONG, Nov. 16.—A sensational case of piracy has taken place near Swatow. The British steamer Sunning of 2,555 tons, belonging to the China Navigation Company, which left Shanghai on Thursday, was seized by pirates. The officers resisted and the chief officer was severely wounded. The pirates thereupon set the ship on fire and decamped in boats, taking two white women as hostages. One of these women has since been rescued.

It appears that the pirates traveled as passengers on the Sunning and seized the ship early in the morning after she had left Amoy. They apparently disabled the engines and the wireless. A Japanese ship sighted the drifting burning vessel and went to her help. In response to wireless calls the British cruiser Bluebell also arrived.

The Bluebell placed an armed guard on board the Sunning, who searched the vessel for pirates, arresting nine men. Other steamers arrived and, the fire having been subdued, the Binebell left them to tow the Sunning here, while she set off in search of the other pirates. She found a boatload in which were ten pirates, one of whom jumped overboard and was drowned.

The British warship Vindictive and Despatch left to take part in the search while four seaplanes from the Hermes, which were exercising in Mirs Bay, also set out. The seaplanes found an empty lifeboat and later the Norwegian steamer Ravensjell picked up a boat containing the Sunning's second officer, third engineer and wireless operator, two Chinese quartermasters and one woman passenger.

SOCIAL WORKER HITS REFORM SCHOOLS

Miss Palevsky Tells Charities Meeting Such Institutions Fail of Their Purpose.

WELFARE EXPERTS PRAISED

Justice Harris Says Some Private Agencies Cause Evil by Ignoring Trained Aides.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Nov. 16.—Criticism of reform schools as failures and of the State for what was called neglect of education, with its consequent crimes of violence, marked the opening session at the Hotel Statler here tonight of the New York State Conference of Charities and Correction, which met jointly with the New York State Conference of Probation Officers.

An attack on the reform schools was made by Miss Mary Palevsky, executive director of the Jewish Social Service Bureau of Brooklyn, who said that such institutions served as "dumping grounds" for the failures of the community.

"The subsequent failure of children discharged from institutions of this character," continued Miss Palevsky, "is a significant fact. Work with delinquents requires a very high psychological and psychiatric training and study of each child. Special recreation also is necessary, yet the greatest part of the time in these institutions is spent in making the children scrub the floors and in other ways contribute to their own maintenance.

"Wherever possible, institutions of this kind should be run on the cottage plan and should not be expected to support themselves. The children admitted should be classified and each classification should be kept by itself. Complete programs for the training of character and personality and for recreation should be adopted."

Harris Decries Crime Increase.

In the presence of some 300 or more members and guests, Supreme Court Justice Samuel J. Harris, President of the New York State Conference of Charities and Correction, delivered an address in which he held the State at least partly responsible for existing criminal conditions among the young. He said, in part:

"Corrective means other than punishment, such as probation, modern day reform and indefinite sentence, are the development of the last two decades. The last decade has seen an enormous increase in crimes of violence, and, justly or unjustly, these crimes have been blamed on the corrective means which have been developed in the past two decades.

"Recently, as a result, legislation in this State has provided for more definite and stringent penalties for crimes of violence. Such legislation is being unfavorably criticised. In my opinion such criticism should be held in abeyance until the effect upon the community of the most stringent penalties can be ascertained.

"As most of us undoubtedly do, I feel that the State, through neglect of education and opportunity, may have permitted some of its youth to go wrong, but surely we must also feel that, even though the community be responsible for the wildness and weakness of its youth and the consequent crimes of violence, the State and its inhabitants must be protected from such weakness and wildness."

Justice Harris discussed the need for greater financial support for social work. He said a definite evil often was created in such private agencies by persons who contributed large sums and thereby controlled the policies of such organizations, ignoring the advice of trained workers, rich in experience but poor in pocket.

"I have never been convinced," he declared, "that wisdom is the sole property of the wealthy, and I often feel that the wisdom of a volunteer worker of limited means who has made a study of the problem and whose work is given to the agency should be regarded equally as great an asset as the person who gives largely but is not acquainted with the work."

Probation Methods Criticised.

The joint meeting represented the final session of the probation officers, who had been meeting here for two days, but it was the opening meeting of the State Conference of Charities and Correction, which will hold three meetings daily for the next three days.

Discussions on delinquency were opened today by Miss Stella A. Miner, New York, Secretary of the Girls' Service League of America, and William E. Wiley, chief probation officer, City Court, Buffalo.

Leon C. Faulkner, managing director of the Children's Village at Dobbs Ferry, told the conference that there were many "tragic examples in institutions of unwisely protracted probation." He added:

"Our modern social order is one of misunderstanding, lack of tolerance, appreciation and comprehension of what our charges need. What is required most of all today is the conservation of American manhood."

Praise for the Baumes Law.

During a round-table discussion at a session of the probation officers J. I. Cotter, a Clerk of the Court of Special Sessions in New York City, explained the Baumes law.

Mr. Cotter said that the more stringent penalties for certain classes of criminals provided in the Baumes law had been made necessary by the fact for a long time criminals had made terrible inroads in New York City and little had been done to check them. The bail situation had been "absurd," he said, and for two years there had been several "stick-ups" a day.

Today, Mr. Cotter declared, that character of crime had been reduced to a negligible factor and the "cops are starving for a collar because the organized bandits have seen fit to give New York City a wide berth."

A resolution asking the State to "subsidize" probation work as it does health and education failed of passage until "subsidized" had been stricken out and the words "financially aid" substituted therefore.

The New York State Board of Charities, which also met here today, reported that 659,830 patients in public and private hospitals of the State had received 13,215,160 days of treatment in 1925 and that the cost of hospital treatment per day per patient had doubled since 1913. It is now $3.08 in public and $4.90 in private hospitals with the exception of New York City, where in private hospitals it is $5.97.

The board disclosed that the valuation of hospital property in the State was now $197,561,125, the valuation placed upon the public hospitals being $55,847,919 and that upon the private hospitals being $141,703,205. The figures represent an 8 per cent. increase in values of public hospitals and 7 per cent. in private hospitals during the last year.

WOMAN WITH ROBBERS THAT KILL GROCER

She Waits in Auto Outside Brooklyn Store—Four in Band Escape.

Two armed men entered the grocery store of Frank Fruchman, at the corner of Ditmas Avenue and East Fifth Street, Brooklyn, this morning, leaving a third man and a woman in a touring car waiting at the door. The men were seen going in by Max Kranhitz who lives in an apartment above the store. A minute after they entered, Kranpitz told the police, he heard a shot. Rushing down to the street, Kraubitz caught sight of the touring car speeding for Ocean Avenue two blocks away.

Entering the store Krabit found Frenchman on the floor unconscious. An ambulance was summoned from the Coney Island Hospital, but the wounded man died before he reached the hospital. Detectives of the Parkville Station are investigating.

MATADI, West Africa, Nov. 16.—The expedition of Count Da Gama has disembarked and is about to leave for Kinshasa, where a caravan, prepared by the authorities, awaits. The expedition will proceed immediately into the interior.

Matadi is on the Congo River, and is the western terminus of the railroad which runs up to Leopoldville, just southwest of Stanley Pool. Kinshasa is on the edge of Stanley Pool, a little further east.

COOLIDGE NOW BACKS TAX CREDIT IN 1927

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

will be made by the committee unless President Coolidge formally recommends it in his annual message to Congress next month. Even then, according to some sentiment in the committee, its members may feel that they must have some guidance from the President or from the Secretary of the Treasury as to just what line should be followed in undertaking tax legislation.

This is not entirely in harmony with the view of certain members of the House, including some who serve on the Ways and Means Committee. They contend that better progress will be made if the President and the Secretary of the Treasury leave the committee to its own devices in seeking a method for relieving the tax burden. In support of their position they point to the opposition aroused by the original Mellon tax reduction plan of 1923, with this opposition ultimately resulting in the virtual defeat of the plan through the enactment of a measure differing markedly from the Secretary's proposals.

It is now admitted that much of the resentment, especially on the part of Democratic Representatives and Senators, was due to the feeling that the Coolidge Administration was proceeding on the assumption that it was its business to lay down a cut-and-dried plan for Congress to swallow whole, or nearly so. Subsequently, a law approximating the original Mellon plan was put through Congress under the remarkable condition of bi-partisan preparation and support. As the prospect for the coming session of Congress now appears, the so-called "era of good feeling" which then prevailed between the Republican and Democratic forces in Congress is not likely to be repeated in connection with reducing taxes.

A Problem for the House.

But, the thread of opinion in the Ways and Means Committee that there should be no move toward tax legislation until President Coolidge or Secretary Mellon points the way through specific recommendations is not in line with the views of the President as expressed at the White House today. He would leave it to the Ways and Means Committee as the executive agent of the legislative body empowered under the Constitution to originate all revenue legislation to determine what form the tax legislation should take. This attitude of the President suggests that he has not forgotten the opposition aroused by the fact that the original Mellon tax reduction plan was all down in black and white when placed before Congress.

At the same time the President appears to be unwilling that Congress shall do anything more than provide for dissipating the surplus through a temporary tax rebate or credit. His idea, as it has come to be understood from oral statements made at the White House in his behalf on Nov. 5 and today, seems to be out of harmony with the view, for example, of the Republican and Democratic spokesmen of the Ways and Means Committee that there should be no direct return of the surplus to income tax payers, but a reduction of the corporation tax in the hope it will lower the prices of corporation products and thus reduce the cost of living.

At the end of the last fiscal year, that is, on June 30, 1926, the Treasury surplus was $230,000,000. It has mounted since then, and, with seven months remaining of the current fiscal year, it gives promise, in the opinion of officials competent to judge, of going to the $400,000,000 mark and perhaps higher.

The bill for the restoration of seized enemy property, which the Ways and Means Committee is now considering, is expected to provide for the appropriation of something like $100,000,000 from the Treasury. Granted that figure, there would still remain from $300,000,000 to $350,000,000 to be applied to tax refunds or credits, if the estimates of officials are not awry.

FOR AID TO MINOR TAXPAYERS

Weller Would Exempt Small Incomes Instead of Giving Refunds.

Representative Royal H. Weller of the Washington Heights district announced yesterday that as an alternative to the proposed Fedcral income tax refund he would introducc a bill soon after the reopening of Congress next month to allow complete tax exemption for all taxpayers having children whose income does not exceed $5,000 a year. Mr. Weller said he proposed thus to redeem pledges made during his campaign for re-election.

"My bill," he said, "will be put in with a view to affording some aid to the 'little fellow.' It is said there are 3,804,045 taxpayers in the United States in the class of $5,000, or below, who paid a total tax for the year 1925 of $47,650,694. If these figures, which are furnished by the Treasury Department are correct, why not release a man or a woman of family and put the burden of taxation where it properly belongs?

"A 10 per cent. rebate or refund or a credit on next year's taxes, divided among 4,000,000 taxpayers, would amount to little more than $1 for each taxpaycrs in this class. On the other hand, a man with an income of $1,000,000 per annum would also receive a 10 per cent. refund, which would amount to about $450,000."

COOLIDGE BELIEVES HIS SPEECHES CLEAR

President Thinks the Kansas City World Court Address Needs No Interpretation.

HOLDS UTTERANCES DIRECT

People, He Considers, Understand Only Terms on Which This Country Would Join Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—President Coolidge seeks to make his public addresses so plain and to the point that they will speak for themselves, and for that reason he is not disposed to make any comment by way of interpretation of the Kansas City speech, in which he indicated that this Government's admission to the World Court was contingent on acceptance of the Senate reservations, and that otherwise the United States would remain out of the tribunal.

This is the substance of a statement made at the White House today in behalf of the President in response to inquiries in which Mr. Coolidge was asked to make his Kansas City declaration more specific. It was stated that the President believed the utterance was direct and in no way confusing, and that the country understood from it that unless the United States was admitted to the World Court as stipulated in the Senate reservations the chances were that this Government would continue on the outside, ready to enter only upon acceptance of the Senate reservations.

OBJECTS TO NAME IN NOVEL.

Sir Thomas Comyn-Platt Thinks "Comyns Platt" Too Like His.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Because she called a character in her newly published book by a name resembling that actually borne by a living woman, Miss Mary Borden, novelist, and her publishers may have to defend an action in the courts.

In a story called "No Verdict," Miss Borden, who in private life is the wife of Brig. Gen. E. L. Spears, describes how Lady Comyns Platt watched a murder trial at Old Bailey.

Miss Borden and her publishers were astonished soon after publication of the book to receive a letter from the lawyers of Sir Thomas Comyn-Platt demanding withdrawal of the book and threatening action unless this were done.

Miss Borden says she did not know that a real Lady Comyn-Platt existed, and anyway she is unable to see any libel in what she wrote. She offered to change the name of the character in the second edition of the book.

BORAH DEMANDS JUSTICE FOR CHINA

you," Senator Borah said, "on peace. • • • If nations having the power to do justice are unwilling to do justice, there will be no more peace in the future than there has been in the past.

"I am going to say something of a situation which has in it all the elements of conflict, a situation which is to test the good faith and the sense of justice of great nations.

"Silas H. Strawn, the able representative of the United States to the special conference on Chinese customs tariff, has said in a public address since his return that there is no government in China and that there is little hope for China unless, as I infer from his remarks, she finds a dictator of the type of Mussolini. He then states:

'"The real trouble with China today is not that she is suffering from imperialism, from unequal treaties, from extraterritoriality, or from the lack of tariff autonomy; it is that there is no government but that dominated by war lords who have but two motives, greed and aggrandisement.'

"I do not see how we can deal successfully with that situation if we persist in ignoring the facts which have so materially contributed to the turmoil and strife, the dissension and the looting now going on in China. For years foreign powers have been closing in, as it were, upon China. Her natural wealth and the almost unlimited possibilities of commerce have been the great temptation. In dealing with the problems which the Chinese situation now presents we cannot ignore the fact that more than forty of her important cities and many of her great ports are now under foreign control. What would be the possibilities as to peace and contentment, of progres and development, in any country under such circumstances?

Foreign Domination.

"China's natural resources are being divided among outside powers. Her tariff duties are fixed by thirteen different nations. These nations determine what tariff duty China may collect and what tariff duty she must pay when importing into these respective nations. The Chinese have been permitted for years to enjoy but 5 per cent. tariff rate on imports. There is not a nation, even a professed free-trade nation, which could, or would, live under such a revenue law.

"The foreigner in China is exempt from Chinese laws. Foreign warships patrol her defenseless coast and foreign gunboats police her rivers. In foreign factories Chinese children work under conditions and environments which human language is inadequate to describe, under rules as merciless as death. The child labor conditions in China, according to reports made by impartial investigators, stand out in hideous cruelty—an indefensible thing.

"China, in other words, is dominated in all matters essential to a nation's prosperity and growth by foreign powers. In addition, specific demands have been made upon China, not only to give over her natural resources, but also her sovereignty as a people. In this condition you have the first great fact with which we must deal if we are to have peace in the Orient.

"The second important fact is this: The spirit of nationalism is fast laying hold upon the hearts and minds of 400,000,000 people—not nationalism as it has always existed there, but nationalism as Western nations have practiced and taught it. This is a fact which foreign powers are reluctant to admit.

"'China for the Chinese' has come to be the battle-cry of that vast, seething sea of humanity. It is particularly and especially the cry of the young and coming generation.

"The world at large has come to entertain some doubt as to just what the allied and associated powers meant when they declared for self-determination and the right of all peoples to have their own form of government and live their own lives.

"We will not pause to discuss what they meant. But there were peoples all over the world who accepted this creed in all its breadth and depth and have been striving ever since to come into the enjoyment of its uplifting and healing power.

A Holy Passion That Will Not Down.

"It is with this spirit, this holy passion, with which we now have to deal. It will not down. It ought not to down. • • • We may write and sign treaties and devise schemes for world peace, but all these things may disappear in a night if there is buried beneath your structure of peace the inexplicable urge of a people 'to live their own lives' in their own way.

"This spirit of nationalism was augmented and stressed by the World War and it is today the most tremendous fact in the life of the Chinese people, a people who constitute one-fourth of the population of the earth and occupy an area larger than that of the United States.

"China is asking for the right of self-determination. The Chinese believe that the great obstacle to that realization are these encroachments upon their territory of which I have spoken, this attack upon her sovereignty, which is now a matter of history. The Chinese problem at bottom is nationalism coming into the presence of imperialism.

"What is the world going to do about it? What are those going to do about it who are most interested in China? Here is your test in the peace program. Will we seek to adjust conditions through peaceful methods, in doing justice, or will China be tantalised into desperate things and then the appeal to force?

"I am not at this time seeking to put the blame here or there, especially I do not wish to be understood as criticising our own Government. But I do wish to say that the nation which, under the circumstances now existing in China, invokes the brutal policy of force in China will be the deliberate assassin of justice in the Orient for decades and decades. • • •

"We must recognize and deal with the Chinese as a great people. We must deal with them, in so far as we deal with them as a nation, upon terms of equality. We must deal with them in absolute justice to their own rights and to their right to live their own lives, and to possess and enjoy what in all justice is theirs as a people.

Fairness of the United States.

"The policy of the United States toward China has been characterized by a fine consideration for the rights and aspirations of the Chinese people. We have universally respected the integrity of her territory. We have returned to her funds which in technical right we might have withheld. As a nation we have respected those things which a nation most cherishes.

"For this policy we are now in certain quarters being subjected to ridicule or serious criticism. We are told that our policy means failure, that force must be accepted as the basic principle of a successful Oriental policy—that force is the only thing they understand and, therefore, the only thing they respect.

"This is the old, cruel, brutal, imperialistic policy, the revolting creed which not only made possible but certain the World War. China may furnish the acid test of whether the world has been converted to justice as a basis of international dealing or whether it proposes to retain the barbarous creed of force.

"It is within the power of the foreign nations to do justice to China and thus lead the way to peace. There is turmoil now in China, internal dissension. There could not well be anything else under policies which have obtained. But we must bear in mind that there are strong indications that these internal dissensions may disappear before a program for national integrity and national independence.

"The Chinese people have been deprived for years of means to sustain a government—they have been demoralised by demands for the breaking up of the nation, they have had fastened on them obsolete and unjust treaties, and they have had revolution, which always means turmoil. But it would be dangerous to assume that these things may not be molded into one concerted national force through the dominating spirit of nationalism.

"I believe that with fair and just treatment, with rights accorded to her to which every nation is entitled, with a clear, unmistakable policy upon the part of the foreign nations of help, instead of exploitation, China can take her place among the strong and prosperous nations. She would soon adjust her internal troubles. She has the man-power, the wealth, the territory—or should have—and, instinctively and innately, they are a law-abiding, frugal, industrious, home-loving people.

"National feeling in China will compel respect. Four hundred million people imbued with the spirit of independence and of national integrity are in the end invincible. There is no power which can master them or hold them in subjection. Warships and gatling guns and dead students may mislead some, but the forces which determine the actions of empires and great nations lie deeper."

STRAWN TALKS ON CHINA.

Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, Chairman of the International Commission on Extraterritorial Jurisdiction in China, spoke last night of conditions in China before more than 200 members of the Counsel for Foreign Relations, at a dinner at the Harvard Club. Paul D. Cravath presided.

Mr. Strawn went into many phases of the situation in China, where he spent eleven months, touching on subjects he has not discussed publicly, but which may be dealt with in the report of the commission which will be made public in about a week by the State Department in Washington. Being still a member of the commission, Mr. Strawn has preferred not to talk on these subjects for publication prior to the issuance of the report. Hence the meeting last night was a closed one.

Fight for Tax on Estate of Sage's Widow Will Be Kept Up to Establish Precedent

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A judicial determination of the question whether an estate shall pay income tax during the process of administration will be sought by the Department of Justice in the case of the estate of the widow of Russell Sage, which the Second Circuit Court of Appeals will be asked to review.

In this proceeding the District Court awarded the executors of Mrs. Sage's estate a refund of $1,841,913, which was attacked by the Collector of Internal Revenue at New York as erroneous. The Department of Justice wants the court to decide whether an estate that has been left to institutions which are exempt from taxation shall pay tax in the course of administration.

Section 231 of the act exempts religious, charitable and educational institutions, such as were named by Mrs. Sage as legatees, from payment of tax. Section 219 provides that a tax shall be paid on income received by estates of deceased during the period of settlement.

The executors of Mrs. Sage's estate received income from the property during the administration of the estate, but did not pay any part of it to the residuary legatees. It was on this basis that the refund was authorized.

The Internal Revenue Collector took the position that as there could be no residue until an estate was closed, the income was not entitled to exemption during process of settlement. He required the executors to include in their tax returns the income received from the residue as well as from other property of the estate. The executors paid the tax under protest and brought suit for its recovery.

Treasury officials said there were a number of cases of a like nature before the Internal Revenue Bureau and that a settled rule in disposing of them should be fixed by the courts.

DR. HENRY PRAISES CANTON GOVERNMENT

Lingnan University Head Calls It the Best Regime Since the Chinese Revolution.

"The Canton Government is probably the best Government Canton has had since the revolution," Dr. James M. Henry, President of Lingnan University of Canton, China, until recently known as Canton Christian College, declared in an address last evening before the Century Club.

"It is a mistake to view it with the apprehension that is commonly shown," said Dr. Henry, who arrived home from China a fortnight ago by way of Siberia.

"The Southern Government is the only Government in China that has had a real program and that has actually projected and introduced social and economic reforms.

"Among the achievements may be mentioned the coordination of Government finances. Taxes are no longer collected by the military but by the civil authorities. The Canton Government paper money stands at a slight premium today in spite of all the gloomy prophesies when it was first introduced over a year ago. Local banks have been assisted and steadied by the Government.

"The military forces have been consolidated under one supreme command and Canton soldiers have an enviable reputation throughout China for good behavior. Dishonesty in public office has been punished and to no small degree. Lazy and insufficient public officers are being gradually removed.

"The Chinese have many real grievances, and the West has made many serious errors, both of act and attitude. The greatest danger will lie in the failure of the West to make a serious effort to appraise what is a very practical situation and to make a really sympathetic approach to China's problems from the Chinese point of view."

'HOUSE OF DAVID' HEAD CAPTURED IN MICHIGAN

Purnell, Sought for Four Years on Morality and Fraud Charges, Is Taken in a Raid.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Wednesday, Nov. 17 (AP).—"King" Benjamin Purnell, fugitive leader of the House of David, was captured here early today when twenty-two State police swooped down on the religious colony.

The raiders assembled at the State Police station at Paw Paw and carried to the raid an automobile load of floodlights to use in illuminating the scene and prevent escape of the inmates.

Purnell fled the State in 1922 after warrants charging him with assault on girl inmates of the colony had been issued. In addition to criminal charges pending against him, Purnell is named by the State in connection with receivership suits started against the colony.

The State charges that Benjamin and his wife, Mary, converted valuable property to their own uses, and that they thus fraudulently obtained control of property valued "in excess of $50,000."

The State is now attempting to throw the colony into receivership and dissolve its membership.

FIRE WARNING FOR GARDENS.

Dr. Nathaniel L. Britton, Director of the New York Botanical Gardens, issued a warning to the public yesterday against danger of forest fires in the gardens and other wooded sections. From now until the first snowfall, with the woods carpeted with fallen leaves, Dr. Britton said, care should be taken by persons who light matches in the woods and no one should light a fire for any reason.

"The forests and woodlands of the Botanical Gardens," Dr. Britton said, "cover over 100 acres and their complete preservation is of inestimable value.

HARVARD MEN OFFER TO MEET PRINCETON

Student Council Head Suggests Conference at New Haven, Day of Yale Game.

TO PLAN HEALING BREACH

Council, in Meeting at Cambridge Next Week, Will Seek Way Out of Difficulty.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—The Harvard Student Council is making plans for a conference with representatives from Princeton in an effort to heal the breach in athletic relations announced last week by the Princeton Athletic Board, as a result of the letter of acceptance sent by Joseph Prendergast, President of the Princeton undergraduate body, in answer to the Harvard council's invitation to a joint meeting.

Leo F. Daley, President of the Harvard Student Council, sent a telegram today to Mr. Prendergast, making an appointment with the Princetor man for 10 o'clock at the Hotel Taft in New Haven the day of the Harvard-Yale football game. At this informal meeting definite plans will be made for the coming meeting between representatives of the two colleges to be appointed later who will get together some time early next month.

Mr. Daley said today that a regular meeting of the Harvard Student Council would be called next Tuesday, at which time the Harvard representatives are to be appointed, probably from the Harvard administrative body, and instructions given to the delegates as to the basis on which the athletic breach might be healed. At present both colleges are making definite plans to fill the canceled date on the schedules, Princeton having already completed her, so that probably nothing will be accomplished to bring the two universities together before a few years have elapsed.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 16.—The Daily Princetonian, discussing outside comment on the disruption of the "Big Three" in football through the severance of athletic relations with Harvard, said today that regardless of the fact that Princeton would no longer be able to assuage early-season defeats with victories over traditional rivals, the university should not lower the scholastic standards promoted by the "Big Three" in order to produce stronger football teams.

The editorial took issue with the general feeling of enthusiasm that the "Big Three" no longer exists because it placed strong emphasis on the last two games of the season. The scholastic requirements of the "Big Three," it said, made early defeats from colleges with lower standards inevitable, but that the real interest of Princeton was in the games with Yale and Harvard, which had the same standard. It admits defeats will come from other colleges and that these defeats will be final.

"There will be no balm of a 'Big Three' championship to soothe, and as a result great pressure will be brought on the respective athletic associations to lower scholastic standards and adopt machine methods so that success may be attained in the larger field of competition which they have now entered," the editorial continued.

"The prospect of seeing all the good that has come from the spirit of the 'Big Three' agreement go by the boards is not pleasant. The spirit of the agreement is worth the defeats which it is very likely, will be necessary to maintain it, and in maintaining it Princeton will be doing a real service to a cause far greater than the winning of Princeton victories."

The editorial suggested that future football schedules be made with colleges in sympathy with the spirit of the "Big Three" agreement.

"An Eastern football league," it said, "might not be such a bad thing as some would have us believe, if such a league were based on a common spirit of sanity in regard to football. Whether such an organization comes or not, Princeton now has the opportunity to be the centre of a wholesome influence radiating in a wider field. • • • Above all there must be no retrogression. The spirit of the 'Big Three' agreement must prevail if it means twenty seasons of Princeton defeats. The intellectual standards which were the true greatness of the 'Big Three' must outlive the partnership which sponsored them."

URUGUAY APOLOGIZES TO CUBA FOR SLIGHT

Havana Accepts, and Order to Minister to Come Home Will Be Countermanded.

HAVANA, Nov. 16 (AP).—Uruguay tonight apologized to Cuba for statements made by Alfredo Guani, Uruguayan delegate to the League of Nations, which Cuba regarded as derogatory to her national honor and which caused Cuba to sever diplomatic relations with Uruguay today.

The announcement of the apology was made by the State Department tonight.

Pedro Erasmo Callorda, the Uruguayan Minister, delivered a note of apology to Subsecretary of State Miguel Angel Campa a little before midnight, which the Cuban Government accepted as satisfactory.

Dr. Campa called President Machado on the telephone, and the President, after learning the contents of the note, accepted it as ending the incident.

"As a Cuban and a Latin-American," said President Machado, "I am glad."

Dr. Campa, immediately after the note was delivered, said the Cuban Minister to Uruguay, Ricardo Garcia y Fernandez, would be instructed to return to his post and take up the affairs of his Government, which were turned over to Consul Bachiller when he departed by boat tonight from Montevideo for Buenos Aires.

HEADS NASSAU COUNTY BAR.

Sanford A. Davison New President of Lawyers' Association.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 16.—The Nassau County Bar Association today elected Sanford A. Davison of Rockville Centre as President for the ensuing year. Frederick L. Gilbert of Cedarhurst was chosen Vice President and O. [illegible]ward Payne and Theodore N. Ripsom were re-elected Treasurer and Secretary, respectively.

A complaint was made that some notaries and others were drawing up legal papers which should be drawn by lawyers. A committee will investigate the report.

The association adopted a resolution expressing appreciation of the services rendered by the Building Committee of the Board of Supervisors in its supervision of the enlargement and improvement of the County Court House Building.

VARE SPENT $7,668 FOR HIS ELECTION

Report Filed With Senate Is in Marked Contrast With the $600,000 Primary Costs.

HE ISSUES A STATEMENT

Says He Understands That Republican State Committee Made the Campaign for 274 Candidates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—An account of his expenses in the campaign that led to his election, filed today by Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania with the Secretary of the Senate, is in marked contrast with the amount which, according to testimony before the Senate's special committee on inquiry, was expended in his behalf in the party primary campaign which led to his winning the Republican nomination over Senator Pepper and Governor Pinchot.

Mr. Vare's expenses in the election campaign, according to his sworn statement, were $7,668.28. It was testified before the Senate committee that more than $600,000 was spent in the primary in behalf of Mr. Vare, more than $1,800,000 for the Pepper-Fisher ticket and about $195,000 in behalf of the Senatorial candidacy of Governor Pinchot. Mr. Vare's personal expenditures in the primary, it was testified, were $71,000.

The statement sets forth that Mr. Vare received no contributions for his election campaign, and that his expenditures consisted of $5,000 contributed to the Republican State Committee and $2,500 to the Republican Campaign Committee of Philadelphia. To the total of these amounts should be added the totals of expenditures reported by Mr. Vare to the Senate prior to the election of Nov. 2. In one previous statement filed Oct. 20 he reported that he had spent $133.03 for personal travel and the expenses of assistants, and in a later report that he had spent $35.25 for personal travel and subsistence.

With his expense account the Senator-elect filed a statement explanatory of his expenditures in the election campaign. It follows:

"No other campaign expenses were incurred by me in the conduct of my campaign, but I understood that the Republican State Committee made a State-wide campaign in behalf of all Republican candidates in Pennsylvania seeking election to State or national office on Nov. 2, 1926, to the number of 274 candidates, including 29 candidates for Congress, 26 for the State Senate, 208 candidates for the lower house of the General Assembly and candidates for Governor, United States Senator, Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs.

"I understand that the Republican State Committee held meetings and incurred legal and legitimate campaign expenses for meetings and other purposes, but I have no detailed knowledge of what moneys were received nor what expenditures were made.

"I made no promises nor pledges nor was any promise or pledge made by any person with my knowledge or consent relative to the appointment of any person to any public or private position or employment for the purpose of securing support for my candidacy."

MILLS SPENT $10,000, WADSWORTH $5,706.92

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. and Ogden L. Mills, defeated Republican candidate for Governor, filed statements of their receipts and expenditures in the recent campaign with the Secretary of State today.

Mr. Mills's statement showed no receipts and expenses of $10,000, all paid to Perry Osborn, Treasurer of the Mills Campaign Committee. Senator Wadsworth received $1,025 and spent $5,706.92, divided as follows: Republican State Committee, $2,000; Treasurer of the Wadsworth Campaign Committee, $1,000; Livingston County Republican Committee, $100, balance for motor bus, hotel and other expenses.

It was announced yesterday at Republican State Committee headquarters in East Forty-first Street that a report had been sent to the Secretary of State, showing receipts in the recent campaign of $387,013 and expenditures of $386,743, leaving a balance on hand of $270.

There were 858 individual contributors and the average contribution, according to the statement, was $437. It was said at committee headquarters that information as to who the contributors were, what amount each had contributed and how the funds had been expended could be obtained only from the itemized statement on file with the Secretary of State.

The amount spent in the recent election is less than was disbursed through the Republican State Committee in either the Roosevelt campaign, two years ago, or in the 1922 Miller campaign.

Hoaxed Coolidge on Football Tickets, Says Youth, Sentenced as Boston Thief

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—Joseph Hall of Edgartown, who boasted while being brought here from Raleigh, N. C., to answer larceny charges that he had attended the Navy-Michigan football game on tickets given him by President Coolidge, smiled his way into Superior Court this afternoon but left with serious mien. After pleading guilty to a charge of larceny of clothing from merchants here, he was sentenced to the reformatory at Concord for an indefinite period.

According to Hall, this is the way he hoaxed the President.

He was stopping at the University Club in New York and had been having tickets to football games sent to the club and charged to him. He had no difficulty in obtaining tickets to the games that interested him, until the Michigan-Navy game Oct. 30. Then he was stumped until he thought of the President, who, he felt confident, would have tickets.

So off he went to Washington to call upon the President. He told the President, he said, that he was the son of Alfred Hall, prominent in politics in this State at about the time that Mr. Coolidge was Lieutenant Governor. He mentioned his embarrassment at being unable to get tickets after having invited a girl to go with him.

The tickets were immediately placed at his disposal, he said, and he rode from the White House to Baltimore accompanied by a Secret Service man.

Hall said he occupied the President's box and was photographed beside Governor Ritchie of Maryland. He said he enjoyed every minute of his adventure, except that he was afraid the photograph taken would be seen by Boston police. It was.

ACCUSED OF SELLING FRENCH DECORATIONS

Paris Police Arrest Count for Offering Legion of Honor to Business Men.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Count Alfred du Moulin de Peyronnet, a Paris advertising broker, was arrested tonight and placed in a cell in Sante Prison on the charge of being implicated in a plot to sell Legion of Honor decorations at 100,000 francs each.

An inquiry was begun more than a week ago, when several prominent business men who were scheduled for decoration complained to the police that Count de Peyronnet and another man approached them with a proposition to obtain the Legion of Honor for them through influence they had with an official of the Ministry of Commerce and the head of the Department of Decorations for that Ministry. This official is still under investigation in a plot the ramifications of which appear to be more serious that at first suspected.

The French judicial authorities, aided by the Secret Service, are conducting a thorough investigation into the whole question involved, to determine how many persons were induced to give up money in this fashion.

Departure of New Minister to Greece Sets Diplomatic Precedent.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Consul General Robert Piet Kisner left Paris tonight on the Orient express to take up his new post at Athens as United States Minister to Greece.

Mr. Kisner spent the last day in his consular capacity at his desk in the Consulate and received many calls from his friends here. The new Minister's departure was a precedent, as this is the first time a consular officer has proceeded directly to a new post without first going to Washington to confer with the State Department.

The appointment was made on July 2 and was the first important application of the Rogers bill uniting the American consular and diplomatic services.

Spanish Loan Rapidly Taken.

MADRID, Nov. 16 (AP).—Subscriptions were opened today for a 225,000,000 pesets Government loan (about $33,800,000) and by 2 o'clock in the afternoon amounted to 150,000,000 pesetas through the bank of Spain and 55,000,000 through branch banks. The loan is tax free, carries 5 per cent. interest and is amortizable in fifty years, beginning with 1937.

ROSENBACHS PURCHASE FIRST COPY OF LODGE

Acquire Book Dated 1589, Which Caused Controversy Over Shakespeare Work.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The Rosenbach Company of New York City paid at Sotheby's today $3,250 for a copy of an exceedingly rare first edition of Thomas Lodge's "Scillae's Metamorphoels," published in 1589.

This is the first volume of Lodge's poems and is written in the same meter as Shakespeare's "Venus and Adonis," which was not published until 1593.

The late Sir Sidney Lee pointed out in the Dictionary of National Biography that the general resemblance of the two books is conspicuous enough to make it probable that Shakespeare was indebted to Lodge for the general plan of his poem, while Lodge, in 1595, complained that he had been "unjustly taxed" with plagiarism.

The copy of Lodge's poems sold today was the property of Mrs. Hill of Hothfield, Kent, and had previously belonged to the Marchioness of Downshire and her son, Lord Angustus Hill. Not more than three other copies appear to be known. A Britwell example was bought in 1922 by the Rosenbach Company for $3,800.

Tube Authorities Cut Down the Number of Non-Smokers' Seats.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Non-smokers are gradually becoming extinct in London. This trend of evolution is seen in information issued by officials of the London underground railway today that, beginning Monday, the percentage of seats for smokers will be raised from 60 to 70 per cent., and, instead of compartments for smokers being marked, those for non-smokers will be marked.

This action is due to women taking up the tobacco habit. Since 1910 the amount of tobacco imported into Great Britain has increased from 90,000,000 to 133,000,000 pounds.

Almoners to Give Card Party.

The Almoners, group of young women once known as the Catholic Junior League, will hold a card party at the Plaza on Friday afternoon to raise funds for the various charitable enterprises which it helps support. Miss Dorothy Kane is President of the Almoners and other officers include Mrs. John McLaughlin Jr., Mrs. Arthur C. Byrne and the Misses Edwina Shanley, Ruth Leyendecker and Ethel Mitchell. Mrs. Arthur C. Byrne, 995 Fifth Avenue, has charge of the sale of tickets.

MAHARAJAH IN UTAH DESPITE SCANDAL

although the former Maharajah's name was mentioned some months ago in connection with the scandal in India, the incident apparently was not brought out in the proceedings that marked the admission of his Highness at New York.

In fact, authorities here say that they have no official knowledge about the case at all and that the former Maharajah obviously was admitted at New York as a matter of routine, no question being raised on his right to enter as a tourist.

It was explained tonight in an official quarter that the bureau here is not informed of tourist arrivals at American ports, except where reviews are sought, as in the case of the Countess of Cathcart, who appealed to Washington and secured a reversal of the decision of the immigration authorities at New York that she was not entitled to entry because of her admission that she was guilty of an offense involving moral turpitude.

The former Maharajah is likely to continue his travels here unmolested unless his right to remain is challenged by some responsible person or organization.

Unless the tour of the former Maharajah is interrupted he plans to go as far as the Pacific Coast, returning East by way of the Grand Canyon in Colorado, according to unofficial advices received here.

Used Diplomatic Passport.

The ex-Maharajah of Indore arrived in New York on the White Star liner Majestic Oct. 26 under the name of "I. Raje" and was accompanied by three attendants who traveled with him in the first class. As he had a diplomatic passport, very little attention was paid to him, and the members of his suite were not questioned or detained by the immigration inspectors as East Indians usually are who arrive at this port.

The former Indian potentate traveled under the auspices of Thomas Cook & Son, the tourist agents, and his identity was not discovered until he was in Chicago on Sunday, Nov. 7, when he was stopping at the Hotel Blackstone. Joseph I. Young, general manager of Thomas Cook & Son in America, said last night that he saw the former Maharajah of Indore at the Blackstone on Nov. 7 chatting with a party of friends, and was under the impression that he had landed in this country under his own name until he read THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday morning.

"He was a young looking man, slight in build and rather under the average height," Mr. Young continued, "and different altogether from the haughty, tall, imperious-looking Indian Princes who have visited the United States during the past quarter of a century. So far as I was informed by our representative, William Evert, who is traveling with him, the ex-Maharajah has no fixed plans but is moving from one place to another as he feels disposed." Mr. Young said.

The Indian Prince and the members of his party dressed very unotentatiously on the voyage over and were taken by the officers of the Majestic to be East Indian jewelers or silk merchants on their way to the Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia as some of their countrymen had crossed on the ship the previous voyage to New York.

The presence of the former Maharajah in the United States raises the question as to whether he deliberately deceived the immigration authorities by his pseudonym to avoid the risk of being disbarred on grounds of moral turpitude.

The former Maharajah explained to a Salt Lake newspaper man that he wanted to see America "not as Queen Marie is seeing it but quietly, unobserved. I wanted to study conditions unhindered, and that is why I preferred my incognito of 'Mr. T. Raje.'"

That there may be other reasons for his pseudonym exist will be recalled by the fact that last February Lord Reading, then Viceroy to India, gave him the choice of standing trial before a special commission for being accessory to murder and abduction or of abdicating.

The Maharajah, after spending large sums of money consulting legal experts in London, chose the latter course. His 18-year-old son Yeshwant Rao succeeded him, and while the heir is finishing his education in England, Indore State, which has an area of 9,500 square miles, and a papulation of 1,150,000, is being governed by a commission appointed by the Viceroy.

Murder Shocked India.

On Jan. 12, 1925, India was shocked by a daring murder and attempted abduction. An attractive young woman known as Mumtaz Begum, while driving on Malabar Hill, Bombay's fashionable residential suburb, with her protector, Abdul Bawla, a rich Moslem merchant, was attacked by nine Indians who tried to abduct her. Bawla, in defending her, was shot dead, and but for the intervention of three British officers who happened to be passing the conspirators might have gained their object. As it was, they left her face disfigured by their knives before they disappeared in the dusk in an automobile.

The car was traced by the police, and, aided by the girl's testimony, the crime was definitely ascribed to the independent State of Indore. In the affray one of the nine men, who were found to be high Indore officials, was shot in the leg and easily identified. The nine were arrested, together with Bawla's chauffeur, and placed on trial for murder. The chauffeur of the Moslem merchant turned State's evidence.

The fact that of the nine Indore officials one was the Adjutant General of the Indore troops and five others military officials, together with the injured girl's statement that she had been a Nautch girl in the Manarajah's palace and had made her escape to Bombay, implicated the Maharajah. Three of the prisoners were sentenced to death and the rest to penal servitude.

BUTLER WILL STAY AS PARTY CHAIRMAN

Says He Never Intended to Resign Unless He Was Returned to Senate.

DEVOTES SELF TO POLITICS

Republican National Committee Is Not Expected to Meet Until Late Next Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—William M. Butler, former Senator from Massachusetts, defeated for election by David I. Walsh, will continue at the head of the Republican National Committee. He made this plain to callers at the Washington headquarters of the committee today.

"I never had any purpose other than to retain the chairmanship of the National Commitee unless I was elected," he said. "In other circumstances it might have been another story."

Mr. Butler's statement was interpreted to mean that if he had defeated Mr. Walsh on Nov. 2 he would have felt constrained to vacate the chairmanship, the demands of the two offices being more than he could meet. Having been relieved of his Senatorial duties, Mr. Butler indicated that it was now possible for him to give practically all of his time to politics.

Unless there is a change of program, no meeting of the Republican National Committee will be held until late in 1927, when it will assemble to fix the time and place for the party convention of 1928. This also was made known by Mr. Butler and was accepted as notice that he expected to remain at the head of the organization until the national convention of 1928 adjourns.

When asked about the Senatorial election in 1928, Mr. Butler said he had no comment to make on that subject at this time.

Senator Walsh's term will expire March 4, 1929, and the succession will be determined at the Presidential election in 1928. It had been assumed that Mr. Butler would make another try for the Senate two years hence, but he refused today to commit himself on this point.

In administering the office of Republican National Chairman Mr. Butler will divide his time between Boston and Washington.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Eleanor Joy Pettinos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Charles Pettinos of New York, was married today in the American Pro-Cathedral to Richard Allmand Blow, son of Mrs. George Preston Blow of Chicago. The bride wore a lovely white gown and a cape with a fur collar. A wedding breakfast followed at the Ritz.

The marriage of Miss Pettinos, who has taken an active part in social life in New York since she made her début two seasons ago, was attended by many Americans who went to Paris especially to be present at the ceremony. According to a previous announcement, it was planned that the Very Rev. Frederick Warren Beekman, Dean of the Cathedral, would perform the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Blow will return shortly to make their home in New York.

The engagement of Miss Pettinos and Mr. Blow was announced from Paris on July 20. Mr. Blow is the brother of Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor. The bride and her mother sailed for France early in the Summer and have been there since. Her father returned to this country and recently sailed for Paris to be present at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Pettinos have a country home at Centre Island, N. Y., and in New York they make their home at the Plaza.

FIVE SHOT, TWO KILLED BY DAKOTA FARMER

Slayer Tells Sheriff He Believed His Father-in-Law Divided Property Unfairly.

SCOTLAND, S. D., Nov. 16 (AP).—Walter Zwiefel, a farmer, 34 years old, confessed tonight to Sheriff Koenig to the killing of two persons and the wounding of three others in a shotgun assault near here last night.

Jealousy over division of lands was the motive given for the crime, according to the report of the confession made public by the Sheriff.

After the crime Zwiefel took poison in an attempt to end his life. He is in a hospital at Parkston, where it is believed he will recover.

He was captured at his home near Parkston after authorities had sought a maniac in the wholesale assault made at the John Grosz farm, northwest of here, last night.

Zwiefel is a son-in-law of John Grosz. According to his story, as related by the Sheriff, Zwiefel believed that his father-in-law was favoring other children in the division of property.

Robert Zwiefel was slain as he sat playing cards at the John Grosz home with several other persons. Mrs. John Grosz and Mrs. Solomon Grosz rushed from the farmhouse toward the Summer kitchen and were met with a double fire of buckshot, one charge killing the former and seriously wounding the latter. Clarence Zwiefel and Emanuel Grosz fled from the kitchen to a road and were chased for a quarter of a mile, each being fired at and wounded as he ran.

GERMANS SAVE EVEN MORE.

Lord Dabernon Notes That Debt Default Does Not Deter Them.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Lord Dabernon, former British Ambassador to Germany, speaking today before the Royal Statistical Society on the recent German financial crisis, declared that one of the most interesting facts regarding the German inflation was that although Germany practically defaulted on her public debt, entailing a loss to her creditors of about £10,000,000, the Germane continued to believe in placing their money in savings banks.

From all parts of Germany, said Lord Dabernon, reports show that the saving habit is greater now than before the war, fear that the debtor might not meet his obligations being offset by the consideration that he has not much to repay, having cleared off all his earlier indebtedness.

PRINCE EITEL QUITS GRAND MASTER'S POST

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—Though Prince Eitel Friedrich has been forced to resign his position as Grand Master of the exclusive Knights of St. John, the Executive Committee relented sufficiently to ask him to accept honorary membership in the order.

After a court declared him the guilty party in recent divorce proceedings fastidious knights immediately examined their sacred oaths and holy vows and asked Prince Eitel to step down and out.

What prompted the nobles to decide on leniency and retain in their fold one who was not qualified to be their leader is known only to the twenty officers whose conclave is held in the fastness of secret chambers donbiy guarded against profane ears. Whether a clause in those hallowed pledges makes an exception of those guilty of breaking their marriage vows and does not require their expulsion, or whether a timely letter from the ex-Kaiser at Doorn, who is the patron of the order, interceded for his son must remain a secret, but the German bourgeoise hint that the latter reason caused the knights to write to "his Royal Highness" a letter in the style of the feudal days thanking him for his excellent services and regretting his decision to resign, and after stating that his knightly soul was whiter than snow asked him please to accept an honorary membership, which Prince Eitel did.

Princess Eitel Friedrich, who before her marriage was the Duchess Sophie Charlotte of Oldenburg, obtained a divorce at Potsdam, late in October. The proceedings were conducted in secret and the attorneys refused to divulge the details, but it was announced that the grounds on which the decree was granted were illtreatment and incompatibility of temperament.

Reports at the time were that both parties intended to remarry. The Princess's choice was said to be Harald von Hedemann, a former Captain in the Royal Dragoons. Prince Eitel was reported to be planning to marry the Countess Mellin, a member of the Baltic nobility and a resident of Potsdam.

COMMUNIST REVOLT SPREADS IN JAVA

Twenty-five Persons Are Reported to Have Been Killed—Leaders Are Being Seized.

BATAVIA, Java., Nov. 16.—Communist activities which last week culminated in revolutionary outbreaks now extend to every part of Java.

Twenty-five rioters were reported to have been killed and twenty-nine prisoners taken when 500 last night attacked the garrison at Laboen and were repulsed.

The arrest of Moentalis, described as the ring leader at Sharibon, led to the discovery of the whole conspiracy in Central Java. Ten thousand handbills were distributed during the past few months, in which plans for a simultaneous outbreak were set forth. Thirty agitators, including the notorious Mohammed Ali, were arrested at Soerabaya.

House searches have yielded important information about plans for an outbreak in Eastern Java. The principal Communist leader there, Hardjong, was arrested at Batavia yesterday.

All is reported quiet in Javan sugar plantations. The local press emphasizes that only a very limited part of the community was involved in the disorders, which, the papers say, were entirely due to outside Communist influences. The newspapers demand exemplary punishment to prevent further spread of the movement.

Agitators in Western Java are said to have established a base for arms and ammunition at Singapore, British India. Several persons were killed or wounded in attacks there.

Mohammed Ali, as the head of the Indian Caliphate Committee, five years ago was conspicuous in disorders between the British authorities and the so-called Swarajists during the noncooperative movement headed by Mahatma Gandhi in India. For supporting a seditious resolution at the all-India Moslem Congress in October, 1921, he was sentenced to two years in prison.

clared. "The West and Northwest and the Pacific Coast States as well, if a few localities are excepted, will stay dry on both sides of the political fence. Under the circumstances the wets must place their dependence exclusively upon wet Democratic organizations in the large cities.

"What hope there might have been for enough converts in Congress to make possible action looking to modification of the Volstead law fell to the ground with a crash when, on election night, the news of Senator Wadsworth's defeat was sent broadcast throughout the length and breadth of the land. 'Remember what we did to Wadsworth,' will be the avenue of approach by the Anti-Saloon League to any dry member of the Senate or the House at Washington showing symptoms of a change of heart."

"The wets have enthroned the Anti-Saloon League for many years to come."

Sees Both Parties Dry in 1928.

"Do you think the Democrats in the 1928 Presidential election will name their candidates on a wet platform?" Mr. Koenig was asked.

"They will not," he said with great emphasis. "Both parties in the 1928 Presidential election will have law enforcement planks in their platforms, in my opinion."

"The bulk of the Democratic Party in the nation is dry," he added. "Two-thirds of the States are dry on both sides of the political dividing line. A few States will send wet delegations to the Democratic National Convention, but in aggregate numbers there will not be enough wets in the Democratic National Convention to enforce their views in the nomination of candidates—which will require a two-thirds majority unless the party rules are changed—or even in the making of the platform, which can be done by a majority vote."

ITALY TACKLES DEBT OF 20 BILLION LIRE

Launches "Lictor Loan" Today to Consolidate Her Floating Obligation.

5 PER CENT. ISSUE AT 87.50

It Is Seventh of Measures Aimed to Fortify Country's Financial and Economic Position.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 16.—Tomorrow a new 5 per cent. consolidated loan to be known as the Lictor Loan [Named after the bearers of the fasces in Ancient Rome.], which has been rendered necessary by the consolidation of more than 20,000,000,000 lire worth of Treasury bonds will be offered to the public. It will be issued at 87.50 and will therefore bear interest at the rate of 5.62 per cent.

Judging from the way the stock exchanges have welcomed the announcement of the loan the Treasury's hopes of raising sufficient cash to meet any demands which may be made as a consequence of the consolidation of Italy's floating debt probably will not be disappointed. It is also a favorable omen that quotations of the old 5 per cent. consolidated loan have risen in the last three days by more than three points from 83 to 86.

Conversion Is Compulsory.

As is known, the consolidation consists in the forced conversion of Treasury bonds into the new consolidated loan. A considerable portion of the Treasury bonds are held by big industrial concerns which found them a convenient means of investing their surplus money since they could at any moment easily be converted back into cash.

If no special provisions had been made all holders of Treasury bonds who needed cash to meet some liability could have thrown their holdings into the market, causing a serious slump in quotations. The Treasury therefore guaranteed that it would advance money on security of the new loan to any holder of Treasury bonds in urgent need of ready cash. Since, however, the Treasury's reserves are not sufficient for this operation and there is no intention to increase circulation it was found necessary to offer the new loan to the public in the hope of thus raising sufficient money to meet any demands which may be made by holders of Treasury bonds.

It is thought that 600,000,000 or 700,000,000 lire in addition to the Treasury's reserves will be all that is required.

Is Seventh Rehabilitation Step.

Consolidation of the floating debt is the seventh of a long series of measures taken in quick succession to heal Italy's financial and economic situation. These steps may be summed up as follows:

1. Settlement of war debts to America and England.
2. The Morgan loan of $100,000,000.
3. Unification of the three banks of issue into a single bank of issue.
4. Payment by the Treasury of the $100,000,000 of the Morgan loan to the Bank of Italy to increase its gold reserves and a considerable reduction in the fiduciary circulation.
5. Various measures to increase production, such as Mussolini's "battle of wheat," the scientific organization of industry, steps to increase the mercantile marine and systematic exploration of the subsoil in search of coal, mineral oils, iron and other metals.
6. Measures to limit consumption and increase exportation, such as the re-establishment of war-bread, foundation of a national institute for exportation and a great propaganda drive in favor of Italian goods.
7. Consolidation of the floating debt and emission of the Lictor Loan.

The results of these successive measures are obvious. In only three months the lira has increased its value by about 25 per cent., exchange of the dollar having fallen from about 31 to under 24. During October, moreover, exportations showed an excess over importations, probably for the first time in Italy's history.

This great improvement in Italy's trade-balance is however only partly attributable to the increase of exportations, its greater portion being due to decreased importations. The latter is a consequence to a considerable extent of the sharp falling off of importations of coal due to the British coal strike. When the strike is settled, therefore, importations of coal greater than the average may be expected to refurnish depleted stocks, with the consequent reappearance of an excess of importations over exportations.

FRIENDSHIP IN ROYAL VISIT.

Rumanian Minister, Presenting Credentials, Speaks of Queen Marie.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—George Cretzione, the newly appointed Minister from Rumania, in presenting his credentials to President Coolidge today referred to the visit of Queen Marie as "an evident sign" of the friendly feeling between the two countries.

"I shall consider it the chief duty of my mission," he said, "to uphold and develop the feelings of good-fellowship and mutual confidence which fortunately exist between my country and the United States and of which the present visit of her Majesty, the Queen, my gracious sovereign, is an evident sign."

The President replied that the presence in this country of the Queen "is indeed a happy expression of that friendship and mutual confidence existing between Rumania and the United States to which you allude."

NEW NICARAGUAN CABINET.

Diaz's Administration Is Recognized by Salvador and Guatemala.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 16 (AP).—Salvador and Guatemala have extended recognition to the new Nicaraguan Administration under President Adolfo Diaz, who was inaugurated on Sunday to succeed General Chamorro, resigned. President Diaz announces his Cabinet as follows:

Foreign Affairs—DR. CARLOS OUADRA PASOS.
Finance—FERNANDO GUZMAN.
Government—RICARDO LOPEZ CALLEJAS.
War—SEBASTIAN NUNEZ.
Public Instruction—FRANCISCO RENAZZO.
Public Works—JOSE MARIA SIERO.

Rosendo Chamorro of Granada is named Nicaraguan Minister to the United States.

Rebels are reported to have ambushed Government cavalry at Chinandega, killing four, including the commanding officer, and wounding seven. The Government is sending 800 troops against them.

Favoritism to Athletes at Oxford Charged; Brasenose College Makes Indignant Denial

OXFORD, Nov. 16 (AP).—The familiar charge so often heard in the United States that colleges proselyte among preparatory schools for promising athletic material, has found its echo in staid old Oxford. Various newspapers have taken up the assertion that Brasenose College, at Oxford, had been relaxing its entrance requirements in the case of star crew men and Rugby players.

Brasenose has long been regarded jealously by the other colleges. For a number of years its crews and teams have topped the list in the intercollege sports and on the varsity teams. The majority of the "blues" have hailed from Brasenose.

The original charge was made by The Cherwell, a paper run by undergraduates, which hinted that the "responsions," or entrance examinations, had often been modified for promising athletes, and implying that the new university statutes which went into effect this Fall, and made such manipulation impossible, would dim the athletic glory of Brasenose considerably in the future.

These charges, which were broadcast in the London newspapers, aroused considerable indignation in the college, not only among the students, but with the Faculty as well.

In a statement given in the course of the controversy, C. H. Sampson, the principal of Brasenose, denied the charges emphatically, and declared that the only cases in which exceptions had been made in the entrance requirements were in behalf of students from the colonies, for whom special concessions were made by all the colleges in the university.

MARIE CAME 'TO PUT RUMANIA ON MAP'

speeches. I carried on as a soldier would.

"And so in New York I was a bit frightened when I found that I was expected to make a public address. And afterward I felt a thrill of flattery when my children told me, 'Mommy, you spoke well.'"

"I have been asked often about this or that and apparently with a sincere interest. Everywhere I have been received with open arms—whether I made public speeches or not—and I have discovered no cynical smiles, no indications of doubt that I had come in all sincerity on a visit of friendship to see all that you have done and are doing and to marvel at the way in which you do it.

"If I have had to speak I have always said just what has come into my mind and heart at the time without preparation. And so when I have returned to my own room frequently I have thought of many things that I might have said about my country that would enable you to understand it better.

A Tortured Rumania.

"My country has been for centuries a country of battle—a tortured country. For centuries it knew no peace nor rest. It was torn to pieces. And so, in a manner of speaking, it has become a poor country.

"I do not mean that it is poor in the matter of resources. It has its natural wealth, but, harassed as it has been, it was slow of development.

"Though it is very, very old, it has few old buildings. Its old buildings have disappeared in old wars. It has few big buildings.

"Rumania was used to being overrun. Its people became accustomed to rapine and murder. They built only such dwellings as they could leave at a moment's notice. It would do no good to erect great buildings that would be torn down by the first conquerer. The only thought of the Rumanian was to provide means of escape for his children and his sheep and himself into the mountains when new invaders should come.

"And so it was when King Charles, the uncle of my husband, was called from Germany to establish a dynasty and give this old country a stable government. Before they called him the people of Rumania were ruled by princes whom they elected themselves. But we are an Eastern country, and such a method of establishing a government has not worked. In the case of Rumania it led to jealousy between noble families and to discord in politics and strife in administration. The nobles of the country decided that Rumania needed a strong foreign dynasty—that where nothing seemed to stay fixed they by this means would be assured of peace and stability and that continuity of government without which there is no civilization."

Don't Believe All They Hear.

"King Charles gave the country hospitals, schools, a Government. We have prospered.

"You mustn't think of us as possessing that Western energy of yours—that love for work which my son calls your efficiency. We are a slow-going people, an ill-treated, persecuted people. And so progress was not so rapid as it might have been. Our people are excusably suspicious. They do not believe all that they hear.

"But Charles was a great man and eventually he obtained the confidence of his people. His Queen was a woman of remarkable intelligence and well known in the United States. They died childless, and my husband, a nephew, ascended the throne. And then, of course, he had to find a wife.

"My grandmother was Queen Victoria. Perhaps Rumania thought that it might be well to have the granddaughter of such a Queen become a part of their country and to carry on their dynasty.

"So I was chosen and went to Rumania, and I carried on. I took up the task of providing them with a dynasty that would go down from father to son, always strong and unchanging. And I gave to the Rumanian people six children, and I came to love the Rumanians as my own people.

"Little by little they began to feel that I was heart and soul in their interests. The children were a great asset to me. And little by little the people began to think that I was perhaps the right one.

"And the progress started by King Charles was carried on. When the great war came you know how we stood in it. Once more we went through every hardship that a war can bring to a country. Our bridges were blown up, our roads destroyed, our villages burned, our buildings torn down, our oil fields ruined, our people made homeless, our children starved to death.

"I have seen great hordes of them on the roads. Once when I came into a village in the white uniform of a Sister of Mercy the people came to me, and one of them said: 'All was hopeless. But you came and we believe in you.'

"Where could there be greater incentive to work for a country than such a faith as that?

"In March, 1917, the Russians, the only ally touching Rumania, blew up and went Bolshevist. For twelve months the Rumanian soldiers, starving on a diet of beans and water, fought in the trenches, with no relief.

"The Russians, a million of them, went Bolshevist in that tiny country of ours. They had everything. Our men had nothing. Yet, mark you, not one Rumanian surrendered his gun. Not one of my people went Bolshevist."

The Queen's words rang with pride. Then her voice fell and she added: "Remember, when you belittle Rumania, you are treading on the heart of a woman."

She turned and bowed in conclusion to Harry Eugene Kelly, President of the club, and those near saw that she was weeping. Her eyes were still wet as she made her way through the crowded aisles to the door to take up once more her rushing program through Chicago.

The Queen's day began with a swim, which she and Princess Ileana, with their dog, Krag, enjoyed together at the Woman's Athletic Club. Both wore gray one-piece suits. The day ended with the Queen's attendance at a performance of "Aida" by the Chicago Opera Company and a supper at the Blackstone Hotel. At both these latter events the Queen and her children were the guests of Ira Nelson Morris, who is in general charge of her schedule in Chicago. At the supper the Queen saw herself as Americans see her in a showing of the motion pictures of the royal family's tour in America up to the Wind River Canyon in Wyoming.

This morning Prince Nicholas and Princess Ileana visited the stockyards, and the Prince, driving his roadster, tried out his speed on Chicago's broad avenues after the motorcycle police escort had told him he could "let 'er out."

The Queen and her children also spent part of the day shopping in one of the big department stores and in a jewelry shop. A house detective kept the crowd, which quickly identified the Queen, from treading too closely on her heels. The Queen purchased fur coats, an overnight bag, a carafe and drinking glasses and ordered new shoes.

The Prince and the Princess hovered over a shelf of their mother's books. Princess Ileana purchased mechanical toys for her little nephew, Prince Michael, son of the former Crown Prince Carol and now heir to the Rumanian throne.

The party will depart for Indianapolis tomorrow.

PROTESTS FACE MARIE.

Detroit Rumanians and Cleveland Hungarians Assail Her Government.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Nov. 16.—While official Detroit will greet Queen Marie Saturday with a rousing welcome, many of her own 30,000 nationals here will be engaged in a spirited meeting of protest against Rumania's rulers. This became known today when it was disclosed that a mass meeting of protest against the treatment accorded the Rumanian peasants by the Rumanian ruling class would be held in the local Rumanian Hall within less than twelve hours' time after the arrival of the Queen in the forenoon.

This announcement was made by Joan T. Cucub, Secretary of the Rumanian Educational Club. At the meeting there will be vehement denunciation of the conditions in Rumania which Henri Barbusse, famous French writer, has professed to expose. One of the most startling assertions which he has made and which will be the subject of protest at the meeting is the alleged murder of 18,000 peasants by the Government.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16 (AP).—Cleveland's Hungarians, whose opposition to the plans for Queen Marie's reception next Monday caused a stir at a City Council session, joined together tonight in an indignation meeting. This was called for the purpose of denouncing Council leaders who refused to allow them a voice on the Council floor last night and to give an airing to a letter signed by Hungarian societies which Mayor John Marshall would not allow to be read.

This letter, which denounced in scathing terms the Queen's proposed reception and embodied bitter attacks against the Rumanian Government, nearly caused the eviction of Peter Witt, a Council member, who threatened to read it even after he had been ruled out of order.

DOMINIONS AGREE ON LOCARNO STAND

London Imperial Conference Decides Not to Sign Because of Lack of Unanimity.

NEW STATUS IS PROBLEM

Accord Is Sought on Statement of Equality of Parts of Empire With Mother Country.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The British dominions have decided not to ratify the Locarno Treaty. The matter was fully discussed at the Imperial Conference, and this was the decision. No criticism of the policy pursued by Britain in signing the treaty is implied, it is declared with emphasis, in this action by the dominions.

The Locarno treaty was drafted so as to exclude the dominions unless they specifically expressed their participation. At one of the early sessions of the Imperial Conference Sir Austen Chamberlain gave a long confidential explanation of the motives which had actuated his policy at Locarno. Whether the dominions wished to ratify the treaty or not, he stated that his chief object was to convince them it was the inevitable course for the mother country to pursue.

The dominions without exception agreed with him, but regarding their own participation they were not unanimous. New Zealand and Newfoundland were willing unreservedly to ratify; Australia was willing to sign if the rest of the dominions did. Canada, Australia and the Irish Free State did not see the necessity for their participation in the compact. After a long discussion it was decided—it is said on the advice of Premier Bruce of Australia—that in the interest of unity it would be better if no dominion signed the treaty. A resolution approving it in general terms was passed.

Will Exchange High Envoys.

Another important decision was that taken by the Imperial Conference to facilitate direct communication and consultation between the dominions and the mother country. Not only will the Dominion High Commissioners in London be elevated to a status approaching that of Ambassadors, but Britain, it is understood, will probably send representatives of her own with similar status to the dominions. These will represent the British Government and be independent of the Governors General, who in future will represent the King.

Regarding General Hertzog's desire that South Africa be represented in the Netherlands, it is understood that the request has dwindled to one for a consul general. This will be granted.

The situation in regard to a constitutional declaration of the Dominion's absolute equality with the mother country changes from week to week. In the early days of the conference the prospects were bright for agreement on the form of the declaration which should establish before the world the right of the dominions to the privileges of full nationhood. When it came to drafting the declaration so many difficulties were encountered that it was announced the effort to achieve a written formula would be abandoned.

Situation Is Changed Again.

Since then the situation once more has changed. Mackenzie King, Canadian Prime Minister, some of whose most influential political supporters are strong advocates of full autonomy for Canada, has urged that the conference continue its search for a formula. As a result it is said to be possible that some general form of declaration that the dominions and the mother country are absolutely equal in the control of their own foreign and domestic affairs may yet be achieved. Britain is understood to desire to insert a safeguarding clause expressing the essential unity of the empire, but there is some doubt among the dominions whether this would limit their powers.

The Committee on Treaties has been engaged in defining and restating the position reached at the last Imperial Conference in regard to the right of dominions to conclude treaties. It was then decided that any dominion could conclude on its own initiative a treaty which affected only its own interests. Before concluding treaties which might affect other parts of the empire it must consult them. Canada was the pioneer in this with the halibut fisheries treaty, which it signed with the United States in 1923.

DUEL KILLS VIENNA STUDENT

His Death Strengthens the Fight Against German Sabre Contests.

VIENNA, Nov. 16.—A student duel at the university here resulted in the death in a hospital tonight of Kurt Terboll, aged 26.

It is understood that it was one of the traditional German duels between representatives of rival student organizations and not meant to be fatal. The sabre of the other duelist, whose name is withheld, broke and the point entered Terboll's chest, severing the main artery.

The authorities have taken cognizance of the affair, which is likely to strengthen the movement to abolish this deep-rooted German custom.

HIGH DISCOUNT RATE AN ECONOMIC SNAG

SUB-COMMITTEES REPORT

Removal of Obstacles to International Trade Without Reducing Tariff Is Suggested.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Nov. 16.—The economic conference in preparation for the public session of the Preparatory Economic Committee was this afternoon given over to reports of the chairmen of the various sub-committees.

The sub-committees on industrial production and on trade and market indicated their satisfaction with the information at hand, but Mr. Gilbert, as Chairman of the sub-committee on agriculture, stated that additional statistics were needed by his section, while Chairman Dubois of the sub-committee on financial problems suggested that certain ev questions be added to the potential agenda of his section and asked that the League of Nations financial docnments be used as a basis of information.

M. Dubois urged the necessity of stabilizing the purchasing power of gold. Discussing the economic situation in Europe, he said high discount rates were one of the causes of economic difficulties. Central banks by co-ordinating their work had made a go-1 step forward, hnt capital should be made more available in order that the difficulty of discount rates might be overcome.

While he stated that public finance was really outside the limits of an economic conference, which despite financial aspects should not take up work belonging to a financial conference, M. Dubois pointed out the danger of short-term public debts. When such debts comprise big sums Governments risk demand for repayment, with possible disastrous effects. At present these debts exist in such tremendous amounts as to prevent a reduction of discount rates.

While nons of the sub-committees has as yet touched on the problem of selecting from their subjects items for the agenda of the future conference, Mr. Page said tonight that after stndying the problem before the sub-committee on trade and markets he had come to the conclusion that it would be well to limit the efforts in this direction to three subjects.

First is the removal of obstacles to international commerce. This does not necessarily mean a reduction of tariffs. Efforts could well be made toward simplifying the classification of tariffs—simplification of customs administration and consular charges and erratic changing tariffs.

Secondarily, Mr. Page considers that the conference shbuld deal with equality of treatment. It will have to decide what is equality of treatment, how it is attained and maintained. This means the study of commercial treaties and favored-nation clauses, internal legislation, &c. Finally, the conference will have to study the question of arbitration to settle difficulties which may arise.

The third item, Mr. Page considers, should be the preventing of unfair practices. Here the conference will have to determine what constitutes unfair practices as well as to provide a remedy against them. It will also have to provide for arbitration bodies.

LONDON SEES SIGNS OF REVIVING INDUSTRY

Award to British Firm of Contract for Singapore Admiralty Dock Causes Great Rejoicing.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Those who believe brighter days are coming for British industry were overjoyed today by news that the contract for the great admiralty dock to be bnilt in connection with Great Britain's mammoth naval base at Singapore has been awarded to a British firm. The successful bid was by Swan Hnnter and Wigham Richardson, Limited, of Wallsend-on-Tyne, and the amount involved is abont $6,000,000.

Work on the dock, it is expected, will keep thousands of men busy for eighteen months and thus help to reduce the vast army of unemployed, which is one of the gravest problems now besetting Britain.

The newe about the Singapore dock comes immediately after equally joyful tidings which arrived here a few days ago that a London firm had received a contract for building a network of new nndergronnd railways in Buenos Aires, capital of Argentina. This contract calle for nrhan underground lines with a total rail length of twenty-six miles. But to this choice prize a string is attached. It was stated when the news was published that the contract would go to the United States if the coal strike and other British industrial complications ebould prevent the British firm from fulfilling its terms. But optimism regarding the impending end of the coal strke is causing the people here to consider the Buenos Aires contract as definitely captured by Great Britain.

Still another large overseas order is adding tonight to British elation. It is for a large quantity of cotton mill machinery for Melbourne, Australia, which has just been obtained hy a big Lancashire textile manufacturing firm. It is felt here that these orders from oversea lands are the preliminary signs of a big British industrial revival wbich will set in as soon as the coal strike is ended.

The qnestion of the Singapore dock came up yesterday for discussion before the Imperial Conference now in session here. The suggestion made that the British dominions might share the cost doubtless will be the subject of further discussion, and decision for or against footing the bills for the great dock prohaby will he made later.

A member of the firm to which the dock contract was awarded said today that it was impossible yet to estimate how many men would he employed on the work, but he said it would be a large number. When finished the dock will be towed to Singapore.

Work on the Singapore naval base, of which the dock is a part, was resumed by the present British Government after being suspended by the Labor Government of Ramsay MacDonald. The original estimate of cost was about $55,000,000. The base comprises 2,500 acres.

POINCARE CABINET ESCAPES DISRUPTION

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Premier Poincaré's Cabinet, of all opinions and all parties, came today very near disruption. It held together only because the majority of its component parts foresaw the disaster which would follow a split and it survived in the Chamber for much the same reason.

Louis Marin, Minister of Pensions, was responsible. His speech last Saturday has caused such a storm of political rancor that the Cabinet had to do something about it. Even if Left Ministers like M. Herriot and M. Painevé were willing to forgive their colleague's aspersions on their capacity and their accomplishments, their followers were not.

The Radical Deputy Hnlin presented a demand for an interpellation and faced with the danger of an adverse vote of the combined Left parties, ths Government had to get together. At this morning's Cabinet meeting a joint statement was drawn up to be read by the Premier. It somewhat frankly disavowed the Minister of Pensions, laying emphasis on the fact that the opinions he expressed last Saturday were his personal opinions, not his opinions as a member of the Cahinet, and stating that he had no intention to wound his colleagues either in reputation or in party pride.

When the Premier read that statement there was a howl of derision from the Left. But the rest of the statement was grave enough. The Cahinet had been formed, M. Poincaré reminded them, for the urgent and delicate task of saving the franc and it had united in that common cause, men of widely different opinion, but of the same high patriotism. If this incident were permitted to disrupt the Cabinet or cause it to lose confidence, public interest would be gravely compromised.

This statement was received with curious absence of applause except from the Centre. The Right was embarrassed because it was well aware that their leader had exposed the weakness of their position. The Premier scored M. Marin heavily in the Cabinet statement for his lack of Ministerial discretion, and Deputy Hulin got far more applause than ths Government ever did, when hs spoke in condemnation of this memner of the Ministry who thought fit to take a Saturday off from his official poaition and revert to that of party leader with license to denounce his colleagues.

If a vots had been taken on the simple issue of M. Marin's speech, without involving the existence of the Governmen, there is no doubt that the majority would have been strongly against the Minister of Pensions. No one, however, is anxious just now to cause any upset and the Radicals abstained from taking part in the vote so as to permit the matter to be buried. The incident served, however, to show very clearly the depth and keenness of political party division, however united ths Cabinet may be.

By nsually accepted precedent, but not by law, the Cabinet has come to assume responsibility for the actions of one of its members. By the Constitution each Minister is responsible to the Chambers for his acts, while the Ministry as a whole is responsible for the general policy of the Goverament.

ROME, Nov. 16.—At today's sitting of the Senate, Premier Mussolini paid a high tribute to Senator Marconi, whose recently announced discovery of short-wave directional wireless stirred Italy profoundly, and to Major de Bernardi, whose victory in the Schneider Cup racee moved his countrymen no less deeply.

"The discovery of short-wave directional wireless," said Mussolini amid the applause of the Senate, "has solved one of the fundamental problems of wireless. In America the honor of European aviation was saved hy Italian machines and Italian courage. These facts are worth more than mountains of words."

Senator Marconi, who was present, was the object of an enthusiastic ovation on the part of his colleagues when he rose from his seat and, visibly moved by the Premier's words, walked across to the Ministers' bench and shook Musolini warmly by the hand.

Great Ovation to the Premier.

The Senate gave Mussolini a tremendous reception at the beginning of the sitting, this being his first appearance there after the latest attempt on his life at Bologna. When the Premier entered the hall the Senate rose, cheering, and kept this up for several minutes.

Senator Tittoni, President of the Senate, then spoke a few words, expressing the joy of the whole assembly at Mussolini's miraculous escape from danger. The Duce, however, evidently was impatient to get to work, for he answered with only eight words. "I thank you, Mr. President and this Assembly," he said, and sat down again, but cries of "Viva Mussolini!" set the whole Senate cheering again.

The Senate in this session is called upon to vote on the bill re-establishing the death penalty. A special committee appointed to report on the bill will sit tomorrow and probably complete its work in one day. It is therefore thonght that the present session will not extend beyond the end of this week.

Coolidge Receives Bernardi Today.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 16 (AP).—Major Mario de Bernardi has postponed until tomorrow or Thursday his attempt for the three-kilometer flying record, the only one he did not break Saturday in winning the Schneider Cup. Because hs will he received by President Coolidge at the White House tomorrow morning, he decided not to attempt the flight today.

Ths three-kilometer mark is held by Lientenant James H. Doolittle of the army, and, although Major de Bernardi in Saturday's race flew faster than necessary to hreak it, ths record was not considered officially at stake in that test.

De Bernardi arranged to fly to Washington today, to be on hand tomorrow morning with Captain Arturio Ferrarrin, his teammate, and Commander Silvio Scaroni, Italian Attaché at Washington, to receivs the congratulations of President Coolidge for his victory.

MEXICAN REBELS CUT WIRES

Federals Pursue Them—Mines in Chihuahua Reported Shut.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 16 (AP).—Federal troops from Chihauahau City have heen sent in pursuit of a small band of rebels which appeared between Villa Coronado and Jimenez, cutting telephone and telegraph wires, advices received here say.

No reports of rebel activities have been received from other parts of the State of Cbihauhau, an official announcement from Chibuahua City said.

Several mines have been shnt down and production has been sharply curtailed in others in the vicinity of Cbihuahua City hecause of Mexican labor legislation, it is reported here.

Business men are represented as much concerned over the situation at Chihuahua City, where prices of merchandise are said to have been increased by 10 to 20 per cent.

Mine operators declare they are threatened by new decisions of the Supreme Court which would practically nullify any appeal by employers on labor questions.

PANGALOS TO BE TRIED SOON

Guards Go to Crete to Bring Former Greek Dictator to Athens.

ATHENS, Nov. 16 (AP).—General Pangalos, former Greek dictator, who was overthrown hy General Kondylis last August, soon will be brought from his place of detention on the Island of Crete to face trial on charges of improper conduct while in power.

A military escort has been sent to Crete to hring the deposed dictator to Athens.

Recent dispatches to the Exchange Telegraph Company in London said that reports from Crete reaching Athene indicated that General Pangalos had been showing signs of mental derangement for some time. Lately, the dispatch said, Pangalos had imagined that he was the Emperor of Byzantium and had demanded that he be taken to Constantinople.

COSGRAVE OFFERS BILL TO CHECK DISORDER

Dail President Declares That a Conspiracy Is Shown in the Raids on Civic Guards.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State introduced a hill at the opening session of the Dail Eireann today to arm the Government with drastic powers for the suppression of disorders such as Sunday night's raids on the Civic Guard harracks in the South of Ireland.

President Cosgrave declared there was little doubt that a conspiracy had been formed for the purpose of subverting order in the State. The attacks on these unarmed police officere in many places simultaneously indicated that there must be some centre from which instructions were issued.

The Government believed that the force behind these raids was not strong enough to make a sustained attack on the forces of order, but felt that it was entitled to such powers as asked for to deal with these murderous attacks.

One of the guarde shot on Sunday night died today, this being the second death resulting from the night's raids on the Civic Guard barracks.

To Sell Effects of Corliss Palmer.

Smith's Knickerbocker Sales Rooms, Inc., announced yesterday that the personal effects of Miss Corliss Palmer, attached by Messrs. Davis, Auerbach & Cornell, attorneys for Mrs. E. V. Brewster, would be sold under the supervision of the Sheriff's office, beginning Thursday afternoon. The attachment is the result of Mrs. Brewster's suit against Miss Palmer for alienating her husband's affections to the extent of $200,000, and was brought in April, 1924.

PILSUDSKI SILENCES DIET CRITICS OF GAG

Marshal Hints That Sejm Will Be Dissolved if It Votes Against Press Decree.

SENDS GIFT TO MUSSOLINI

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Nov. 16.—Marshal Pilsudski, after threatening to invade the Sejm this afternoon to deliver his ultimatum, won another of his famous two-sided victories over his radical opponents of the Left, who opened the session of the Diet with a terrific onslaught on the new press decree. The decree puts power in the hands of the Government officials to punish persons who displeases any one, either in print or public speech, there being no appeal from the original prison sentence or fine.

Seeing that the law had more drastic possibilities than was believed at first, Marshal Pilsudski hinted to the Sejm that the Government was not anxious to be oversevere, but that extreme criticism had to stop and there would be no toleration of a vote on the floor killing the Presidential press decree. The Marshal intimated that if such a vote were taken the Diet would be summarily dissolved, whereupon the Government would have the right to run the nation by decree until the next session, which would only be after elections three months hence.

If no action is taken on the decree it will automatically die, but when the session ends after the vote on the budget the same possibility of decrees will exist. Thus the hostile press gained no advantage, but was flatly crumpled before the deviously transmitted mandate.

Having ironed out the situation for the present, the Government insists on approval of its budget program, and four months of dreary discussions are likely, interspersed with intrigues which have been increasing since the May revolution, nearly exhausting Marshal Pilsudski's patience.

It became known today that when the Italian Fascist envoy, Signor Ianfranconi, visited Marshal Pilsudski yesterday, the dictator of Poland sent an autographed photograph to Premier Mussolini of Italy as the first token since his acquisition of power that the two régimes had anything in common. Marshal Pilsudski's increasing activity, instead of remaining in the background during political quarrels, is causing increasing speculation as to the outcome of the slowly moving process of stifling the Opposition.

A meeting of the monarchistic parties of Vilna and Cracow was held this afternoon in the Warsaw house of Prince Janusz Radziwill. A delegation was dispatched to Lodz, where the assistance of the big industrialists will be solicited in forming a party which may have sufficient strength to dominate future politics of the country. Prince Radziwill and his associates recently offered the crown to Marshal Pilsudski.

CHAPLIN FILM CAUSES BROKEN WINDOW PANES

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—A fortnight ago Wernigerode, a 1,000-year-old town, nestled in the foothills of the Harz Mountains, celebrated the première of the Charlie Chaplin-Jackie Coogan film, "The Kid." Since then scores of windows were broken nightly, but as a Chaplin-like glazier did not appear to make repairs no connection was seen between the movie and the broken panes.

Last night the police discovered a six-foot man playing Jackie's rôle of stone hurling and arrested him. He confessed nocturnal glass smashing, explaining that he was an insurance agent and broke uninsured windows as a means of demonstrating the wisdom of carrying his glass insurance policies. He admitted that the idea was taken from Jackie.

Chaplin's popularity figured at a recent court trial in Düsseldorf, when Adolf Groeber was fined 1,000 marks for impersonating him. For several months he did a flourishing business, appearing in small villages as the real Charlie Chaplin and delivering lengthy discourses on Hollywood until a skeptical ticket holder to a Chaplin presentation evening learned that the famous film star was not visiting Europe.

QUEEN MARY SCORNS BOB.

Example of Marie of Rumania May Counteract Royal British Frown.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—Bobs and shingles may become popular in European royal circles, but Queen Mary continues to frown on the Eton crop and other short-hair fads.

There are indications in aristocratic circles that the action of Queen Marie of Rumania in permitting the barber to shear off her blonde locks before she departed for the United States will help to clear the atmosphere over here and that many an aristocratic head will be soon shorn of its long tresses.

In younger royal circles short hair rapidly is becoming a rule rather than the exception. Princess Astrid of Sweden, now Crown Princess of Belgium, wears her hair short, as also do her sisters, Princess Margaret and Princess Martha. Princess Irene and Princess Helen of Greece, the latter the wife of the runaway Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, and Princess Igrid, daughter of the Princess Royal of Sweden, also have bobbed hair.

LABRADOR ARGUMENTS END.

Privy Council Reserves Decision on Canada-Newfoundland Dispute.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—Arguments were closed today before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the Labrador boundary case, in which Canada and Newfoundland each seeks to prove ownership of that part of the Labrador region known as the "coast." Judgment was reserved.

Counsel for both sides, in their closing arguments, emphasized the friendliness between Canada and Newfoundland.

CASH FROM ABROAD FLOWS BACK TO FRANCE

Scarcity of Money Forces Business to Draw on Balances in Foreign Banks.

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP).—Fully 50 per cent. of French bank balances accumulated abroad since the World War have been brought back to France during the last three months, according to estimates made in banking quarters. These heavy returns in cash are believed to be a principal and direct cause of the recent rise in the French franc, although the background of the franc's improvement is the balancing of the budget and the creation of a sinking fund.

The reason for the homeward flow of capital appears chiefly to be the scarcity of money in France. The rapid depreciation of the franc earlier this year caused a corresponding rise in prices. Consequently, French business men had to employ greatly increased volumes of currency and many manufacturers applied to their banks for increased credit.

These increased credits were because of the scarcity of francs, and a considerable movement has been going on even to curtail existing credits. For example, one large French company, which has been using a credit of 75,000,000 francs, has had it reduced recently to 50,000,000, because the bank carrying it said it could no longer give such a large accommodation, as it did not have sufficient cash on hand to meet the requirements of all its customers. The bank stated that therefore it was scaling down the credits of all its customers. This company consequently is bringing back a considerable part of $3,000,000, accumulated in New York, because it needs capital in France.

High interest rates on the credits now granted also are an appreciable cause for bringing back money which is earning relatively low rates abroad. The Bank of France now charges 9½ per cent. on loans against first-class securities, while the best rats that other French banks give as a rule is 10½ per cent. French business men, who are feeling more than ever before the need for credits, sometimes offer their bankers 12 and even 15 per cent., but meet with refusal on the ground that there is an actual lack of money.

HEALY RAPPED IN DAIL AS POLITICAL PARTISAN

Irish Deputies Protest Governor General's Quoted Remarks on Republicans' Boycott.

DUBLIN, Nov. 16 (AP).—Governor General Timothy Healy incurred considerable censure in the Dail Eireann today because of a recent speech in which he was quoted as declaring that the longer the Republicans boycotted the Dail the better pleased he was.

Thomas Johnson, the labor leader, raised a question of privilege and asserted the Governor General's speech showed political partisanship and was in violation of the well established rule in Great Britain and the Dominions that the King and his Governors must abstain from party speeches. He contended Mr. Healy consequently was guilty of constitutional impropriety.

President Cosgrave, in reply, agreed with Johnson's point of view and said the Executive Council did not accept responsibility for the Governor General's speech. The Governor General, he said, must accept the advice of any party in office.

Debate ensued and all the Deputies agreed that the speech, as reported, was improper.

The remarks to which the Dail took exception today were attributed to Governor General Healy at a recent banquet in which he mentioned the general political situation in Ireland. The protest against this alleged interference by the King's official representative in the Free State was planned several days ago by the Laborites.

One of the chief reasons for the boycotting of the Dail by its Republican Deputies is the necessity of taking the oath of allegiance to the King of England which is contained in the Constitution.

PEPPINO GARIBALDI AIDS HIS BROTHER

FRENCH ROUND UP REDS

Many Suspects Seized Near Italian Border Are Held for Examination.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—General Peppino Garibaldi, accompanied his brother, Santé, to the Palace of Justice here today and met for the first time in many months his brother, Ricciotti, who was brought from the Santé Prison to the office of the examining Judge hearing the charge against him of possessions of military arms and explosives.

The General has taken hold of his brother's defense in a strong manner and neither he nor Santé appeared depressed when interviewed. He said he could say nothing yet outside the short communiqué issued to the whole press, but felt confident he would have more to tell tomorrow.

Confers With Lawyers.

This communiqué reads:

"I arrived last night. Early this morning I saw the lawyers Hesse and Bizos, who informed me of the charges against my brother. You understand that, however desirous I am of participating immediately in my brother's defense and clearing up many legends, the most elementary courtesy commands me to say nothing before presenting myself before the French Judge. After that we will see."

The meeting between Peppino and Ricciotti was short and there was no time to exchange words. When Ricciotti arrived he was allowed time only to embrace his brother and was then hurried to the Judge's chambers. In the course of the next six days it is expected that all three brothers will be confronted, but the prospects of personal conversations between them will undoubtedly have to await the outcome of the legal procedure.

The charges under which Ricciotti is held are those made against Colonel Macia and the Catalonian patriots and as applied to the former are a purely technical measure, there being no public record of arms or explosives found in his possession.

Close Watch Kept on Frontier.

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP).—All foreigners moving toward the Italian frontier are being put through a fine-mesh sieve by the French authorities. The strictest orders have been issued to the police to prevent any suspicious characters from crossing the border, so as to avoid the possibility of allowing plotters against the life of Premier Mussolini to use France as a jumping-off place.

There has been a round-up in the regions of Toulon and Nice of suspected anarchists, who have been held for investigation and verification of their passports.

TOULON, Nov. 16 (AP).—Persistent reports are current that another plot against Premier Mussolini of Italy has been discovered.

It has been learned that the police all along the coast have received orders to be on the sharpest possible watch as a number of Spaniards and Italians, belonging to anarchist organizations in New York, Geneva, Paris and other centres, are believed to be trying to pass the frontier and execute some plan in Italy.

ASSAILS OUR TARIFF AND DEAL ON DEBT

French Union of Economic Interests Demands Modification of Mellon-Berenger Accord.

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP).—Criticism of the American tariff and the demand that the French Parliament amend the American debt settlement agreement were voiced tonight at a convention of the Union of Economic Interests, the most powerful commercial and industrial body in France.

A resolution characterizing both the Washington and London accords as inacceptable in their present form was adopted, its main point being the demand that Parliament amend the Melon-Berenger agreement especially, "so as to make a settlement possible and equitable."

Before adoption of the resolution, Deputy Louis Dubois, former President of the Reparation Commission, made a long address against ratification, which probably will not come up in the French Chamber until early next year.

M. Dubois criticized Ambassador Berenger for not having attempted to obtain a reduction in the total amount of the claims of the United States on France, instead of contenting himself merely with scaling down the interest rates. He also criticized M. Berenger as having undue optimism concerning the capacity of France to pay from 1930 on.

The French Deputy maintained that the total payments for the sixty-two years really worked out at $6,848,000,000 instead of the lower sums previously announced in France. He declared that the present tariff rates in the United States were insurmountable barriers to the French, who were desirous of securing the necessary money to pay their debts by the sale of merchandise in America.

"We received the substance of wartime advances in the shape of merchandise from the United States," exclaimed M. Dubois amidst applause. "Why cannot we repay in kind?"

M. Dubois then argued that the United States Treasury already had regained a large portion of advances to France by war profit taxes. He evoked great applause when he read extracts from The Congressional Record of speeches made by Congressmen Wainwright, Hill, Crisp and Gibson, the tenor of which was that the Melon-Berenger accord was not lenient enough to France.

According to the files of the United States Treasury the grand total due the United States is $6,847,674,104. This represents the principal with accrued interest amounting to $4,025,000,000, at the time of the Mellon-Berenger agreement last Spring plus future interest charges of $2,822,674,104. According to the agreement the average annual interest is 1⅝ per cent. over sixty-two years. Meanwhile, for the same number of years Great Britain is paying 3 to 3½ per cent. annual interest; Italy, 1.1, and Belgium, 3 to 3½.

SHAW WANTS $2,500,000.

Thinks Censor Owes Him That for Holding Up His Plays.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—George Bernard Shaw thinks the English censor owes him $2,500,000. When asked if he thought authors should be compensated when their plays are held up for years before the censor grants a license for their production, Mr. Shaw readily agreed.

"I have suffered from the censor more than most men in my time," he said, "but he has since tried to pacify me by licensing 'The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet' and 'Mrs. Warren's Profession,' which he banned when I wrote them. I am all in favor of compensation. On the other hand, I am so busy I cannot take steps myself to secure payment."

EX-DUCHESS SILENT ON THE ANNULMENT

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Her Mother, Also Refuses Comment Here on Marlborough Decree.

ANGLICAN STAND AWAITED

Vatican [illegible] the Severe Methods Employed by the Diocesan Courts and the Rota.

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AP).—Mme. Jacques Balsan, the former Duchess of Marlborough, refused today to make any statement to the press regarding the annulment of her marriage to Marlborough.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, at the home of her son, William K. Vanderbilt, 651 Fifth Avenue, declined last night to discuss the annulment of her daughter's marriage to the Duke of Marlborough. Earlier in the day she was quoted as saying:

"This is merely one of those adjustments that come into the lives of people. I don't think I should make any comment."

She would neither affirm nor deny this statement last night.

Influence of Prestige Denied.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The suggestion made here that the social position of the parties concerned had some influence in obtaining the annulment of the Marlborough marriage was rejected as out of the question by a Catholic authority today.

"The Catholic Church," he declared, "is severely logical in its attitude to marriage. It would not matter whether the applicant were a duke or a poor man; satisfactory evidence would have to be brought forward before the marriage could be declared null and void."

Asked what would have happened if, on Mme. Balsan's attempt to annul her first marriage to the Duke of Marlborough, no reasonable grounds had been discovered, this authority replied:

"Nothing could have been done. A Catholic who marries in this way knows exactly what he is doing. The Catholic Church recognizes the union of other churches, and if there are no grounds the applicant has to be told that the divorced party, in the eyes of the Church, is still married and that nothing can be done."

It is stated that M. and Mme. Balsan will be married with Catholic rites as soon as possible.

Case Is Discussed in Express.

There is very little editorial comment in the London papers on the subject. The legal aspect of the annulment, however, is taken up by The Daily Express. After declaring that "the social standing of the figures in this remarkable real life drama is not without its importance and significance," the paper proceeds:

"The plain fact is that for some inscrutable reason the Vatican has declared itself to be at variance with the law of the land. Divorce is accompanied by securing and legalizing the positions of the persons most concerned. The Roman Catholic Church refuses to recognize divorce. That happens to be one of its tenets, and it is not now in question.

"The point is that the Vatican, while standing aloof from procedure that does give protection, goes further than the law from which it dissents and indulges itself in arbitrary action which, as far as the Church is concerned, leaves some of the persons concerned (namely, the family) without protection.

"But the ecclesiastical law must conform to the civil law. In Great Britain the issue of a marriage is completely recognized. There is more religious tolerance in the world today than ever before, but there are still smouldering embers of prejudice and resentment, and episodes of this nature will do nothing to quench them."

Anglican Declaration Awaited.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—Friends of the former Duchess of Marlborough who live in London are anxiously awaiting the official reaction of the Anglican Church, if any, on the annulment of her marriage. Thus far the Church authorities have been conservative in expressing their views, and it is assumed that they await further details of the action of the Southwark Diocesan Catholic Court and the Sacred Rota Tribunal at Rome, and the actual grounds on which the decree was granted.

The position of the children of the Marlborough marriage is rather unique. They are the Marquis of Blandford, who was born in 1897, and is married and has two children, and Lord Ivor Charles, born in 1898. In the eyes of the Catholic Church the marriage from which they sprang did not exist; but a Catholic authority has explained that the decree of nullity from the Vatican has no legal force, and therefore in the eyes of the civil law the Marlborough offspring are in no way affected.

Should either the Duke or Consuelo, having regularized their own personal positions in the eyes of the Catholic Church, wish similarly to regularize the position of their children, it is declared, there would be no serious obstacle and the process of adjustment would be an easy matter, amounting possibly to a simple declaration.

Stir Astonishes the Vatican.

ROME, Nov. 16 (AP).—Astonishment is expressed in Vatican circles over the widespread criticism of the annulment of the Marlborough-Vanderbilt marriage. One official remarked that whoever had taken exception to the decisions of the Diocesan Court and the Sacred Rota Tribunal must be ignorant of the severe and scrupulous methods whereby these courts ascertain whether any so-called "impediment" exists to render annulment just, according to apostolic canons.

In the desire to have judgments above all suspicion of discrimination, the Catholic rules, the officials added, prescribe that the decision of Diocesan Courts shall be submitted to the Rota, which is the Supreme Court of justice of the Church, acting, since its foundation in 1326, as a universal Court of Appeal.

The Sacred Rota Tribunal comprises twelve members, representing all the principal Catholic countries. Interested persons are represented before both Diocesan Courts and the Rota by some one who is in a position to protect his client's interests along theological as well as juridical lines.

It was further explained by the Vatican spokesman that the Church grants annulments only in specific cases when these cases are amply proved. Except under such circumstances, no Catholic court, he declared, ever annulled any marriage, no matter the power or influence of the person making the appeal.

History was cited to prove this statement—in the case of Henry VIII of England, whose marriage to Catherine of Aragon Pope Clement VII stanchly refused to annul, despite the gravest consequences. Another case instanced was that of Mrs. F. H. Parkhurst of Bangor, Me., whose first marriage to Prince Giuseppe Rospigliosi the Vatican refused to annul, although the Prince was head of one of the most powerful Catholic families, having, in the eyes of the Holy See, much greater importance than the Duke of Marlborough.

HUNGARIAN ASSEMBLY DISSOLVED BY HORTHY

Dates of the Elections to New Parliament Will Be Announced Today.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 16.—The Hungarian National Assembly was formally dissolved today by a proclamation of Regent Horthy, who has convoked a new Parliament, including a House of Commons and the recently re-established House of Lords, for Jan. 25. The date of elections for the two houses will be announced tomorrow.

Dissolution of the Assembly, which was elected in 1922, was expected, though its term did not expire until May. It is believed elections for the lower house will be held early in December, with different dates for the rural precincts, country towns and Budapest.

Unlike America, the Hungarian Government enjoys the strategic power of fixing the time for the dissolution of Parliament and for the national elections to suit its convenience. Since it has used this power now it is concluded that the Government considers the present the most favorable for it. Premier Bethlen's machine, since the franc forgery affair quieted down, is generally thought to be so strong that such tactical advantages are not necessary for his victory. His use of them indicates that he is not taking chances.

Leaders of the Liberal Opposition, numbering fifty Deputies, divided into six parties, do not hope to improve their position. They concede at the beginning of the campaign all the rural districts, where the open ballot obtains, to Bethlen and are contesting chiefly in twenty-two city precincts—Hungary has 240 precincts—where secret voting is allowed. Premier Bethlen's National Unity Party, which he organized around his personality in 1922, now has 136 Deputies. It is believed he will further strengthen his present prospects by renewing his understanding with Julius Gombos, who managed the 1922 elections for him, later seceding to head the Fascist Party of nine Deputies.

Former Premier Count Paul Teleky, who lost much prestige during the franc forgery affair, has announced his withdrawal from politics.

MEMORYLESS MUTE BELIEVED AMERICAN

He Gives Horn as His Name and Baltimore as Birthplace When Picked Up in Holland.

EVIDENCE HE WAS A SOLDIER

He Scribbles References to British Army on Paper and Bears Several Wounds on His Body.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—A deaf and dumb man, whose memory has largely left him and who the British Consul General at Rotterdam, Holland, is sure is an American who served in the British Army, is now in a hospital in the Dutch city. The man asserts he was born in Baltimore and that he was in a hospital in New York in 1919 or 1920.

He was picked up by the Dutch police after wandering over the German frontier last August. At first he was put in jail and then taken to the hospital. The police questioned him in German till he wrote on a piece of paper: "You must speak English." The police then notified E. P. Thurston, the British Consul General, who has since been trying to establish the man's identity.

The amnesia victim is slim, five feet eight inches in height. He has dark skin, dark brown wavy hair, brown eyes, a straight nose, slightly snub, oval face, thick eyebrows, prominent ears and long, thin delicate hands.

When found he was wearing clothes of American cut, but they bore no mark by which he could be identified. All but four of his teeth are missing. On his stomach is a scar of a burn or wound and beneath the left knee another scar. Two wounds on his right forearm indicate that a bullet entered one side and came out the other. Embedded in his right foot is a piece of shrapnel.

At first the man gave his name as Paul Horn. Now Mr. Thurston is confident that "Horn" is wrong but that his surname might begin with H and have o as the second letter. "Horn" says that he was born on Feb. 19, 1894. Baltimore authorities, according to the Consul General, have no record of any one named Horn being born there in that year.

Vague recollections occasionally crop up in the man's memory and once he wrote on a piece of paper "Detroit" and "Flat." He made signs indicating that he once drove an automobile. He also declares his father's name is Armin, which is Hungarian.

When he was questioned in Hungarian it developed that the man knew a few words of that language, but Mr. Thurston and the doctors agree that the patient is of distinctly English type. Apparently he served in the suppression of the Easter Rebellion in Dublin in 1916 and in this connection wrote "Army Name, George Washington." This suggests that "Washington" was his nickname among the English troops at Dublin.

His faint memories indicate that the man served in Gallipoli and France and that he has a brother named Louis, who is a coffee and banana merchant in Rio de Janeiro.

COAL STRIKE VOTE WILL BE KNOWN TODAY

12,000 More British Miners Return to Work While Balloting Is in Progress.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Most of the coal miners' local associations have recommended acceptance of the proposals submitted by the Government for a settlement of the coal dispute and it is expected that by a majority the men will agree to resumption of work on district agreements. Voting in the districts was general today and will be completed tomorrow.

The extremists are active in the mining villages and are seeking to secure the rejection of the terms by the branches; but even in South Wales they are meeting only with partial success. Although there is a tendency to await the outcome of the district voting, a further increase of 12,000 in the number of miners working was reported today, which brings the total almost to 350,000.

Even if the strike is over this week coal rationing will probably be continued for some weeks to prevent a congestion of orders. The restriction of shopwindow lighting will, however, be relaxed before Christmas shopping begins.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP).—A movement has already started to have the ban on the export of coal removed. The Mines Department consented to receive a Welsh deputation to urge the lifting of the ban.

It is reported that Harold Spencer Morris, who is Chairman of the National Wages Board for Railways, will be appointed Chairman of the National Coal Tribunal.

As a sequel to the coal strike, the Conservative bill to prevent strikes and lockouts until preliminary arbitration has been tried had its first reading in the House of Commons today. A. C. N. Dixey, who introduced the measure, said it did not remove the right to strike if arbitration failed.

Arthur Hayday, Labor Member for West Nottingham, opposing the bill, declared it was mischievous and would lead to the breaking up of the conciliation machinery having to do with disputes between employers and employes.

GERMAN PAPER PRAISES OUR ARMISTICE DAY

Vossische Zeitung Declares That America Celebrates Peace, Not German Defeat.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—Commenting on THE NEW YORK TIMES editorial on Ambassador von Maltzan's putting a flag on the German Embassy at Washington on Armistice Day, The Vossische Zeitung says:

"Sedan psychology prevents the German Nationalists from conceiving any one celebrating the cessation of hostilities in warfare unless he is the victor. That 100 per cent. Americans can rejoice over the mere fact that the killing ceased, without placing victory in the star role, is unthinkable in the minds of the reactionary German, who wants either to feel the elation of victory or suffer the degradation of the conquered."

"THE NEW YORK TIMES clearly shows," The Vossische Zeitung continues, "how completely mistaken certain German circles are concerning America's conception of the significance of Nov. 11. The Americans rejoiced because the war ended. The shouting in crowded streets, the pealing of church bells meant nothing except the advent of peace. The great masses were not celebrating Germany's defeat.

"Americans think of restored peace; we in old Europe, which is steeped in hate and drenched with blood, think only of triumph or humility. America is better off and the German representative in Washington is more fortunate than his colleagues in the European capitals."

Demonstrations by French Professors of Uses for Latent Energies Arouse Interest.

SCIENTISTS ARE CONVINCED

Believe the Power Generated From Waters Would Replace That Produced by Coal and Oil.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Demonstrations made yesterday at the Academy of Science by Professors Georges Claude and Paul Boucheron of the uses of the latent energies of tropical seas for the production of electric power aroused great interest in France, being widely discussed today among scientists and others.

The demonstration with a miniature turbine was so convincing that some experts think the invention may already be said to have passed the laboratory and experimental stage and reached a point where practical application is feasible.

Many writers today refer to the significance of the recent statement of the Federal Oil Conservation Board in the United States that American oil supplies would not be able to feed the industries dependent on them six years hence. The energy which could be produced by M. Claude's methods can, it is asserted, take the place of oil for producing power to drive the world's machinery plants. Its influence on future history is held to be incalculable.

It was at first coal supplies and secondly oil which brought about centralization of the world's major industrial production in certain countries, which were thereby invested with preponderant power. Now the points of maximum production may be displaced. Some Far Eastern waters, for instance, where the lands are populated with cheap and intelligent labor in large quantities, may become the industrial masters of the earth, it is declared.

That part of the globe where undoubtedly the most ancient civilizations existed in forgotten ages may thus again after many centuries see a return of their former glory. The possibility of influencing hot climates to make them more temperate also is receiving much attention on the part of the public—although that is a mere scientific pleasantry.

REPORT TCHITCHERIN PLANS TRIP TO PARIS

Copenhagen Hears Soviet Foreign Minister Will Confer With Briand Next Week.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—A dispatch from Copenhagen, quoting the Berlingske Tidende to the effect that M. Tchitcherin, the Soviet Foreign Minister, will confer with M. Briand, the French Foreign Minister, in Paris on Nov. 24 is printed in the newspapers, but with all reserve.

The dispatch says M. Tchitcherin is coming to discuss the results of his recent conversations at Odessa with the Turkish Foreign Minister, following which it was widely reported that the creation of a Pan-Asiatic League outside the League of Nations was the real purpose of the meeting. Should the Paris meeting be successful then another Turko-Russian Treaty would be drawn up and later signed in Paris, with Persia and Afghanistan as other signatories, the dispatch concludes.

It is perhaps a coincidence that the French have fixed Nov. 25 as the tentative date for a resumption in Paris of negotiations with Russia for the payment of the old Czarist debt. The French delegates met at the Foreign Office today and it was later explained that the negotiations had been postponed to a later date.

RIGA, Nov. 16.—A full official report of the speeches made at the meeting at Odessa between M. Tchitcherin and Tewfik Rushdi Bey shows that emphasis was laid on the general military solidarity of the two countries and particularly on the common interests of Turkey and the Soviet in the Black Sea. Tchitcherin declared:

"Time was when Czarist diplomacy coveted Constantinople and the whole of Turkey, but that time is irrevocably past."

The Commander of the Turkish cruiser Hamidieh said the people of Turkey and the Soviet must maintain close contact so that on the Black Sea there should be one single family.

The representative of the Ukranian Government, Schichter, asserted that if necessary the Soviet and Turkey would defend their interests in the Black Sea.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 16 (AP).—The official Kemal-Turk communique from Odessa regarding the conference between the Turkish and Russian Foreign Ministers confirms the belief here that the interview was not concerned with the formation of a Pan-Asiatic league against the accident.

A competent authority points out that Turkey's disadvantage in such a league would be apparent, as the aid of countries such as Persia, Afghanistan and Russia would not compensate for the loss of European confidence.

GRANGE PROPOSES EXPORT DEBENTURES

National Body Votes to Ask Congress to Legalize Financing of Farm Surplus.

SEEKS TARIFF PROTECTION

Twenty-seven Principal Agricultural States Represented in Action at Maine Meeting.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 16 (AP).—The National Grange tonight adopted a resolution calling on Congress to enact legislation providing for an export debenture plan for the benefit of the American farmer. The measure was passed with only one dissenting vote, after a three-hour discussion in which delegates from twenty-seven of the principal agricultural States took part. The resolution, asserting that agriculture is basic and that continually increasing agricultural depression is affecting the prosperity of the entire nation, that staple agricultural products are in world-wide competition and are not receiving the benefits of the protective tariff, recommended that legislation be enacted by Congress making the debenture plan operative beginning with the 1927 crop.

Louis J. Taber, National Master of the Grange, described the resolution as the "most important measure passed by the Grange in twenty-five years." He said the Grange believed that the plan offered "the most advantages with the least dangers; that it required no new machinery for operation and could be discontinued as easily as a tariff."

Among other advantages, Mr. Taber added, the export debenture plan would bring the farmer under the protective system and would give reasonable assurance that the benefits paid would go to the farmer. The plan would apply to all basic agricultural products, but would be particularly applicable to wheat, corn, cotton and dairy goods. Mr. Taber said that the plan would not result in an appreciable change in price to consumers.

In the twenty-seven States represented at the meeting when the resolution was adopted were all the leading agricultural States of the Middle West and East and one Southern State. Passage of the resolution was hailed with enthusiasm by the delegates. The meeting, in accordance with Grange procedure, was open only to fourth degree members, and officers declined to make public the State which cast the single ballot against the plan.

Officers of the organization expressed opinion that the Grange was the first national farm organization to endorse such a plan for relief of the farmer. The resolution adopted today was originally introduced by Eugene A. Eckert, State Master of the Illinois Grange, but was amended to widen its scope before its final passage by the meeting.

It was announced tonight that the Grange tomorrow would consider two resolutions on Muscle Shoals setting forth directly opposite views. One favored leasing the Shoals to private interests, and the other Government operation.

General Grant

in his reminiscences of the war (now becoming scarce) tells: "In two cases I remember cowardly officers leading their regiments from the field on first hearing the whistle of the enemy's bullets."

All of life is a battlefield, and there are constitutional cowards who can quickly make a masterly retreat at the first signal of any kind of trouble.

But there are far more men who are brave and true, who stand at their posts and fight their way through every obstacle and opposition.

The world is a kind of a blacksmith shop with anvils in it where some must swing heavy hammers with strong arms—

DRY NAVY SAVES 14 ON GROUNDED TUG

TWO CUTTERS TAKE PART

Boatswains of Both Dive Overboard and Rescue Two Swept Off Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 16.—Captain Charles Miesaner and the crew of thirteen men of the ocean-going towboat Thomas Tracy were rescued three miles off this place today by sailors of the dry navy after the towboat had grounded during a heavy gale. The Thomas Tracy is 110 feet long, is valued at $33,000 and is owned by the Tracy Towing Company of 1 Broadway, New York.

When the crew abandoned her she was being pounded by the heavy seas and threatened to become a total loss.

The towboat left New York at 8 o'clock Sunday night with the Gulf Refining Company's barge Seneca, laden with 11,000 barrels of oil, in tow. Last midnight, when the Thomas Tracy was fourteen miles off Atlantic City, engine trouble developed and Captain Miesaner decided to make for the shore. Shortly afterward a leak started in the forward compartment and the water began to come in rapidly. At 3 o'clock this morning, when she was within three miles of Atlantic City, the towboat hit the bar and the seas swept over her decks, nearly drowning the men who were trying to send up distress signals.

At 8 A. M. the tug was sighted by the dry navy boat C-102, and Boatswain A. Berghann, in charge, took the craft as close as possible to the stranded vessel. For two hours attempts were made to get a line aboard the Thomas Tracy. Then one line fouled the propeller of the C-102 and the engine had to be stopped. Harry Fisher, the motor machinist, got entangled with the line and was hauled over the side into the sea, but managed to keep afloat until Boatswain Berghann dived overboard and grabbed him. Both were then pulled on board.

In the meantime Boatswain William C. Hart of the Coast Guard boat C-103 had sighted the two disabled craft. After manoeuvring for nearly two hours he got alongside the Thomas Tracy and began to transfer her crew. While this was being carried out John Spear, a deck hand, was washed overboard. Boatswain Hart dived after him and both were hauled out. Captain Miesaner and his crew, who were numbed with exposure, were cared for at the dry navy base.

Lunch Manager Wins Verdict.

A jury in the Supreme Court at Queens returned a verdict yesterday in favor of Swift Tarbell, 224 West 123d Street, General Manager of the Baltimore Dairy Lunch Restaurants, defendant in a suit for $25,000 damages brought by Mrs. Nellie O'Shea Hannigan of Flushing. Mrs. Hannigan alleged that she had been burned while operating a steam cooker. During the trial the steam cooker was demonstrated by Ralph E. Goodwin of the School of Technology of City College. THE TIMES on Tuesday erroneously said that Mr. Goodwin was a member of the teaching staff of Columbia University.

TWO DIE, FIVE HURT IN A 70-MILE GALE

He was standing on a beam on the seventeenth floor when the wind became too much even for a structural iron worker, and he was swept into the air. As he went he clung to a tarpaulin, which acted as a parachute and helped to check his fall. He dropped through the skeleton of the building to the fifteenth floor. He received a broken jaw.

Ferryboat Delayed From Docking.

The ferryboat Tottenville was unable to dock for nearly an hour at Perth Amboy with passengers from Tottenville, Staten Island. The ferryboat got crosswise to the slip and stuck there. The whistle was blown for tugs, which managed to warp the boat around into the slip. That took so long, however, that the passengers were debarked through a window in the women's cabin. A four-masted schooner broke from its moorings in the Raritan River and blew toward Kill Van Kull, when it finally lodged alongside a dock with no damage.

The distribution wires of the Westchester Lighting Company were put out of business by the storm, which blew down trees and poles. There were twenty-three breaks in the wires on South Broadway in Tarrytown, and because there was a strike of linemen in other parts of the county men could not be called in to help the Tarrytown linemen who remained at work. The streets were in darkness until after 8 o'clock, and The Tarrytown Daily News missed publication because the linotypes and presses could not be operated because of lack of current. Hastings, Dobbs Ferry, Ardsley and Irvington were also dark because of the strike.

A wall, 150 feet long, twenty-four inches thick and fifty-seven feet high, part of the new Mayfair Theatre building at Asbury Park, blew over during the gale. The wall in falling tore off several fire doors and the fire escape of the St. James's Theatre, which is across an alleyway. No one was injured.

The storm swept all the eastern part of the United States, according to The Associated Press. At Boston a gale broke windows, following an unusually warm spell in which the temperature reached 72 degrees. The heat broke the record of 68 degrees for the same day in 1897. At Northampton, Mass., a window in the Nonotuck Savings Bank, of which President Coolidge is a trustee, blew in.

PENNSYLVANIA HARD HIT.

River Craft Sunk—Buildings at Sesquicentennial Damaged.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP).—Heavy rains and a forty-five-mile-an-hour gale lashed Eastern Pennsylvania today leaving a trail of destruction from Philadelphia almost to the New York State line. No deaths or injuries were reported.

The gale played havoc with shipping in the Delaware River. Few vessels attempted to move during its height, but despite this precaution several minor collisions were reported and a number of barges and small motorboats were sunk. In this city, trees and telephone poles were torn down, windows were shattered and roofs torn off. Wire communications was badly crippled.

Buildings at the Sesquicentennial Exposition were damaged. From up-State came reports of high water, at some points the highest since 1904; washed-out highways, flooded mines and interrupted train and trolley service. At some points in the anthracite region mines were forced to shut down.

TOWANDA, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP).—With many homes flooded, highways blocked by deep water and debris, six bridges washed away and railroad traffic abandoned on the Bowman's Creek branch of the Lehigh Valley and on the Susquehanna and New York Railroad, the Susquehanna River and the creeks in this section continued to rise tonight. Rain has been falling heavily since last night. Trains on the main line of the Lehigh Valley were delayed, some of them for hours, as a result of washouts at Meshoppen and Towanda.

ALBANY FEELS THE STORM.

Boats Torn Adrift by Wind in River Near State Capital.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—A heavy wind and rain storm today brought with it the highest temperature for this date in the history of the local Weather Bureau. One man was injured and considerable minor damage to property was reported as a result of the high winds.

The injured man was struck by a falling branch of a tree in the downtown section of the city. An express company's horse and wagon were blown over near the State capitol. Several windows were blown in and telephone and telegraph communication interrupted.

Navigation on the Hudson River was endangered as the south wind raised unusually high waves. A large lighter, carrying a 100-foot derrick boom, and a houseboat were torn from a tug which was towing them, but were recaptured.

The wind reached an average official velocity of forty-eight miles an hour. The high temperature mark was 68 degrees at 8 A. M.

SIX TRAPPED BY FLOOD IN PENNSLVYANIA MINE

It May Be Days Before They Are Reached—Man Who Escaped Tells of Disaster.

HAZLETON, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP).—Rescuers were working desperately tonight to extricate six miners entombed this afternoon behind a heavy body of water that broke into the No. 8 mine of the Tomhicken colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company near here.

Officials said it might be several days before the miners could be reached, but they held out the hope that they would be brought to the surface safely. They based this hope on the fact that one of the group is a foreman, Henry Kirchdorfer, who is familiar with an avenue of safety that lies beyond the men.

Mine officials said Kirchdorfer's intimate knowledge of the inner workings of the colliery may have resulted in the men being directed to a point of safety high up in a gangway.

The flood was caused by the new creek breaking through its banks and after following the course of an old flume that runs in close proximity to some cave-ins, carried such momentum that it soon overflowed the caves and the bottom gave way, carrying the rushing waters into the mines.

Michael Hayden, a motor runner, who was among those who left the miners after the water broke through, said he heard the crash, and within a short time timbers were washed out and the gangway was blocked with falling rocks. He was above the water line and escaped through the drift above the workings where the men are trapped.

EVANGELINE BOOTH CHEERED AT RALLY

Commander of Salvation Army in America Back on Duty After Illness.

HONORED BY THE NATION

Wilbur Takes Prominent Part in Reception—Flowers Sent by Mrs. Coolidge.

With a speech compounded of admonition, praise, review and prophecy, Commander Evangeline Booth, head of all the Salvation Army forces in the United States, resumed active control of her organization at a public reception and rally last night in Mecca Temple. Last Winter she was stricken with appendicitis; last night she gave a good demonstration of a human whirlwind.

The demonstration accorded her was most enthusiastic. On the stand at the front of the platform rested an imposing bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums, cut in the White House conservatory yesterday morning by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. The flowers were brought to New York by Captain Ernest Holtz, head of Salvation Army work in the capital, who came here with Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy.

Secretary Wilbur led Commander Booth's honorary escort, which included names prominent in the councils and life of the city and nation. The escort sat upon the platform with the headquarters staff, divisional commanders, provincial officers and social service officers of the Salvation Army. To the left and right were the colors of the Salvation Army and many American flags.

Introduced by Wilbur.

Close upon 8 o'clock there was a fanfare of trumpets by six Salvation lassies dressed in the black and red of the Army. This was the cue for the entrance of Secretary Wilbur and Commander Booth, who reviewed the delegates of the Army to the rally. Then came the doxology, prayer and song, followed by greetings from the "territories."

The preliminary greetings, however, were merely items on a program. The crowd enjoyed them, but was waiting for Secretary Wilbur to introduce Miss Booth herself. He told why he had come from Washington to introduce Commander Booth. "Some of you are wondering at my listening to the importunities of the Salvation Army for me to come to New York," he said, "but I want to say that these importunities had nothing to do with my presence here. I accepted this invitation years ago."

Introducing Commander Booth, he repeated that she needed no introduction, either to the audience or the city. Then, turning to her, he exclaimed: "Booth, how goes the battle?" Commander Booth rose and bowed.

Her speech ranged from humor, lightly expressed, to serious exhortation, delivered with dramatic gesture and in a voice that ran the gamut of tone. She was, as some one said, "her old self." "The secret of the success of the Salvation Army," she declared, "is that we have reduced theory to deeds, made faith into action, and put Christianity into life." She said the path of the Army would forever be among the lowly, the rejected, the men given up for lost, and the men behind the bars.

Many Messages Received.

After messages of "welcome back" had been read from many persons, ranging from Governors to private citizens, "Ring Out Those Bells," a song written by Commander Booth during her illness, was sung by the Scandinavian songsters. The closing remarks were by Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, who advised Secretary Wilbur to insist that his Admirals show the vitality, the drive and the "go" of Commander Booth.

Among the messages read were felicitations from Cyrus McCormick Jr., Felix Warburg, Mrs. General Bramwell Booth, Myron Herrick, Ambassador to France, and Governor Alvin Fuller of Massachusetts. The honorary escort to Miss Booth consisted of:

Robert Adamson, H. M. Baldwin, George G. Battle, Rev. Roelif Brooks, Bird S. Coler, Major W. Deegan, Harold S. Downey, Brig. Gen. H. Drum, Guy Emerson, Joseph T. Fanning, Dr. George J. Fisher, Col. 56,332 Would Be Engineers.

Engineering students to the number of 56,332 matriculated during the first term, 1925-26, in 143 institutions in the United States, according to statistics compiled by the Interior Department, Bureau of Education. Of these, 54,337 were enrolled in regular undergraduate courses, 845 were special or other students, and 1,114 were doing post-graduate work. More than 90 per cent. of the total enrollment was in the six major courses of study—civil engineering, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, mining and metallurgy, chemical engineering, and architectural engineering.

Boy, 11, Who Wrote Wilbur on Air Program, Besieged by Reporters; Is a Hero at School

"Father," said 11-year-old Warren E. Horn of 635 West 170th Street two weeks ago, "I think I had better write a letter to the Secretary of the Navy and tell him that we need a bigger air force."

Warren had been reading articles in the papers about the "helplessness of New York" against an organized enemy air raid. His father, Carl Horn, didn't want to discourage Warren in patriotic concern for the United States, but he didn't especially want him to write the letter. So he temporized. He told Warren that he must decide for himself, but his tone of voice implied much more.

Warren pondered for a few days. Then he reopened the subject one night at the supper table. Again his father said he must decide for himself. And he did, for yesterday, in the New York papers there appeared accounts of how a letter from a New York boy had been received by Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur. The communication read in part: "I think we need a bigger and better air force. All other countries are getting ahead of us. Yours respectfully, Warren Horn."

And that was that. But Mrs. Kay Horn, Warren's mother, was in for a new experience. Yesterday, during the luncheon recess from public school, she and Warren entertained innumerable reporters who plied Mrs. Horn with many questions. They asked Warren all about his interest in and knowledge of aviation. And as they left, Mrs. Horn exclaimed: "What a hectic lunch hour. I pity poor Queen Marie."

Warren returned to school a half hour late, hut with an explanatory note from his mother. His school mates looked at him with envy. Hitherto he had been merely one of them, hut now he was a person of public note.

The youthful critic of America's aviation program first showed his interest in things mechanical by taking to pieces an expensive clock. His mother said she had "licked" him for it. Lately, Warren has been spending his time making airplanes of paper and warships of wood. Although he has never been up in a plane, he draws many plans for airships of all sorts.

JEWISH FUND GOES TO ONE-THIRD OF GOAL

Total Now $3,205,033—Lodge of Masons Gives $9,075 in Three Contributions.

Contributions amounting to $154,663 were reported yesterday in the tenth anniversary campaign of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, to raise $4,720,000 for the support of its ninety-one philanthropies. This brings the total subscriptions to $3,205,033.

Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the board of the Federation, addressed a meeting of the jewelers at the Harmonie Club yesterday, and obtained their pledge to raise their quota of $25,000. The jewelers met as the guests of Leopold Stern. Solomon Lowenstein, Executive Director of the Federation, also spoke at the meeting.

Thirteen subscriptions were announced yesterday from fraternal organizations. With the contribution of $1,575 from the Centennial Lodge of Masons came the announcement that as part of its golden jubilee celebration the organization was contributing $2,500 to the Hospital for Joint Diseases, one of the constituent agencies in the Federation, to endow a bed, and $5,000 to the Jewish Social Service Association, formerly the United Hebrew Charities, another Federation institution. The latter will be used as a nucleus for the purchase of a Summer camp for anaemic children.

Subscriptions reported by the division led by Mrs. Z. D. Bernstein, have reached a total of $13,000. Heading the women workers are Mrs. Sol M. Stroock, Mrs. Leopold Plaut, Mrs. Ernest A. Grunsfeld, Mrs. Frederick Brown, Mrs. H. M. Block and Mrs. Isaac Kubie.

There will be no general rally this week, hut workers will continue to make individual reports daily at campaign headquarters, at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

answer unreasonable questions and is protected, if he asks the privilege, from the use of any testimony which he may give in criminal proceedings.

"Any official conducting an investigation or examination who gives publicity to the information which has been obtained is guilty of a misdemeanor," the opinion continued. "Then, when we consider that, in addition to these specific means of protection, the courts will always be open for any appeal by one who is being persecuted, I think that it may be fairly expected that none of the dire predictions of the evils which flow from the statute will be realized and that, on the other hand, it may be a very substantial protection to the public from these widespread evils which have been perpetrated upon it through lack of adequate protection."

Attorney General Ottinger made this comment last night on the decision:

"This ruling constitutes one of the most smashing and effective blows aimed at fraudulent stock promotions since the enactment of the Martin law. It is distinctly a victory for the investing public.

"This decree should have the effect of squelching contestants of the right of the State promptly to intervene in case of suspected fraud and to halt operations before the public is loaded up with worthless securities. Without the power of subpoena the efficacy of the law would be nullified. The Martin act is itself essentially a weapon of prevention and not an instrument of punishment.

"It was designed to safeguard the public against exploitation by high handed and conscienceless purveyors of gold brick stocks and bonds. Its aim is to impede, obstruct, hinder and thwart the schemes of the promoters of the worst form of thievery and extortion with which the Legislature has been called upon to cope in history. Without such an effective and drastic instrument the investing public would be at the mercy of a vicious group of felons operating under the guise of legitimate promoters of honest enterprise, the insidious character of this form of larceny made the Martin law, as stringent as it is, an imperative necessity."

HEED CHAPLIN PROTEST.

London Cinema Leaders Decry Filming of Public Characters.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Charlie Chaplin's protest against the presentation here of the film "The History of Charlie Chaplin" was considered today at a meeting of the representatives of all sections of the cinema industry.

A resolution was passed to the effect that in principle the meeting "deprecated the filming of the private lives of living public characters for private gain without the permission or authority of the person concerned."

1922, said Mrs. Lee, the slain choir leader frankly discussed her relations with Dr. Hall, describing him as "more of a man, more of an intellectual equal," than her mild and humble husband, James Mills, then sexton of the minister's church. In April of the year in which they met death the couple were planning an elopement, according to Mrs. Lee.

"He was going to try to get a divorce from Mrs. Hall," said the young widow, adding that Mrs. Mills had made her disclosure of the plans of Dr. Hall in the presence of her husband. James Mills, who had been giving his usual inattention to the testimony, perked up at this and leaned forward to follow what was being said.

"Eleanor said that she had consideration for him," the witness testified, referring to Mills, "and she told him that she would not do anything to disgrace him; that when she got ready to leave she would tell him."

"What did he say?"

"He didn't say anything," replied Mrs. Lee, who added that the fund for the projected elopement to Japan had been an inheritance of "$40,000 Dr. Hall had got from the Stevens family."

Mrs. Lee said that in 1918 she had paid a visit to her sister's home. Glancing through a window, she had seen a kiss in the kitchen. The rector, she said, kissed Mrs. Mills, and then as the choir leader jumped from his lap he had received a kiss in return. Mrs. Lee interrupted the tête-à-tête by entering.

Makes Much of Testimony.

Robert H. McCarter, senior counsel for the defense, in an adroit cross-examination made much of the fact that Mills had been told by his wife of her infatuation for the clergyman and of her plans to go away with him. Mills, on the stand and in interviews, for the last four years has maintained that he knew nothing of the affair between his wife and the rector.

"Did Mrs. Mills ever say to you," said Senator Simpson, "in effect that she had what Mrs. Hall never had, the love of Dr. Hall?"

This question was ruled out on objections from the defense attorneys, and the special prosecutor questioned Mrs. Lee on the attitude of Mrs. Hall, as reported to her by Mrs. Mills.

"Mrs. Hall and Eleanor," said the witness, "were not friendly, and she told me that she suspected Minnie Clark of telling Mrs. Hall things that would make her feel that way."

Along the same angle of his case, Senator Simpson introduced in evidence a diary kept by Dr. Hall, apparently while he was on a vacation in Maine. The entries in the diary were read by Francis L. Bergen, Somerset Prosecutor of the Pleas, whose task it has been to read to the absorbed courtroom spectators the love letters so far offered in the case. The diary was written about Mrs. Mills—the clergyman's thoughts of her and his keenness for the letters which she mailed to him at a postoffice box he had rented at Seal Harbor, a point far enough away to prevent Mrs. Hall from inadvertently receiving any of the missives.

Twenty Witnesses Tell Stories.

In all, twenty witnesses told their stories on the stand yesterday. Some had long narratives to unfold, but most of them testified briefly. Henry Mills, brother of James Mills, was in the latter category. He is a former bee farmer, a man with an unusually pale face, who looks strikingly like his brother with one exception, the eyes. Henry's eyes are sharper. Henry Mills gave his unimportant testimony with a grin on his face; it seemed to be fixed there.

Through the testimony of Captain Harry Walsh, one of the Jersey City investigators, two statements made by Henry Stevens were put in evidence. He made the first in 1922 and the second last August. Both had his alibi in them. At the request of Senator Simpson the court recessed until tomorrow.

"We have cleared up a lot of the Hall stuff," he told Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker and Common Pleas Judge Frank L. Cleary. "Mrs. Gibson will be able to appear Thursday morning, the doctors now tell me. She could appear in court tomorrow at 2 P. M., but they think it would be better for her and for the defense that she appear at 10 A. M. on Thursday, because they say she will be able to stand any reasonable cross-examination on Thursday. That being the fact, I would ask your Honor to adjourn over to Thursday, as all I have now is Ferd David, Middlesex County detective, and probably two or three short witnesses. To convene tomorrow would be simply to bring the Court and jury here for half an hour."

Court Accepts Simpson Statement.

Mr. McCarter said he understood Mrs. Gibson was in Somerville—a mistake he later corrected—and he asked that sworn medical testimony be offered on her condition.

"The Court is willing to take Senator Simpson's statement with regard to the condition of Mrs. Gibson," said Justice Parker. "Every one knows she has been a sick woman, and if the adjournment is asked for by the State until Thursday morning the Court is inclined to think that it will be fair to allow it."

"If she is put on the stand tomorrow," said the Prosecutor, "the jury may be locked up for a week."

"It is merely a matter of getting ahead with the case with the utmost reasonable dispatch," continued the Justice, "and the Court regrets that the jury has to be kept for a day longer, but the jury might have to be kept for several days."

Hall Diary Put in Record.

The diary of Dr. Hall was read into the record during the day. This was found by Charlotte Mills with letters written by the minister to Mrs. Mills. The daughter turned them over to her aunt, Mrs. Elsie Barnhart of Paterson. Some of the letters later found their way to a New York newspaper. These letters were read into the record last week. Mrs. Mills' letters to Dr. Hall, which were found between the bodies of the murdered couple, were read into the record Monday. The diary follows:

On board the Calvin Austin. Dear, dear heart of mine, they were sweet moments we had together this morning, but, oh, so short. I am looking at you yet as you turned and walked down Huntington Street. I started on schedule to met mother at Jersey City and took her on her way to New York to meet my sister. The boat left at 5. Every moment I have been with you, dear heart, and every moment you are with me. Good night.

Tuesday, Aug. 1. First thought is of you, my dearest. Reached Boston at 7:30—very hot. Went shopping and in the afternoon went to the movies and saw Mary Miles Minter in a poor picture. Sent you—or rather Daniel—a card from the State House. Hot and sultry all day and [illegible]

Darling, do you know how I am longing, longing for you?

Thursday, Aug. 3. This morning George Kemmer invited me to go sailing with him, and in the afternoon a large party went in George Kemmer's launch to Tomesville. I had hoped to stop at Seal Harbor to see if there was a card from you, but we were so late we had to come directly back to Islesford. I hope surely to go to Seal Harbor tomorrow. Good night, darling. I am living with you—rather we are together every moment, dear heart of mine.

Eager for a Letter.

Friday, Aug. 4. Another disappointment today, dear. I had hoped surely to get to Seal Harbor, but the fog set in thick very early, so I waited until afternoon. Fog still as heavy as ever, so I had to give up—nothing but loafing around the island today—read a little—slept a little—took several walks to the dock—just waiting for tomorrow, dear, when I will go to Seal—fog or no fog—I know there is a letter waiting for me. Good night my beloved. Every blessing for my Treasure. It seems as though I live less and less in the body and more and more in your dear spirit.

Saturday, Aug. 5. Dear, dear heart. What a wonderful day. Clear and bright this morning, so at 9:30 we went to Seal. My dear, dear letter was awaiting me. I knew it would be there. Darling I did love it so. I want letters every five minutes now. I am a pig, pig, pig. Oh, how I devoured every letter of the card and the envelope. I sent off a card to you, but did not have a good chance to write and did not know how freely to talk, for I did not know who might be at the house when the card reached you. Dearest, you know I wanted to write volumes—you read between the lines I am sure. We took a walk around Bubble Pond, Eagle Pond and Jordan Pond and returned to Islesford in the afternoon. Darling, I am radiant tonight because of your letter and yet perplexed and troubled, too, because when we got back to Islesford there was a letter from Minnie saying that you had not been well. I shall write to you tomorrow, and I will eagerly await your next letter. Good night, wonder heart of mine. It will be a strange Sunday away from you.

Sunday, Aug. 6. This morning I went to the chapel on the island and heard the missionary of the Marine Sea Coast Mission. Dearest, every moment today I have been living with you. Wondering where you are—at church—at home. Did you walk up to Nichols Avenue in the evening? This afternoon I wrote to you and this evening I have been singing the Rashminnie (Kashmiri?) song. The Radiance in Your Eyes and Love's Garden of Roses.

Days Seem Weeks Long.

Dearest will these days ever pass. Each one seems weeks long. Oh how I long to be with you again and clasp you to me. I kiss you all over. Talk—talk—talk to you and just look at you and dream and wonder. I carry your picture with me and dream and dream and dream. What wonderful love. True, strong, loyal, the fire of love that burns up everything unworthy and makes me feel noble every moment. Dearest you must be feeling and knowing how I am loving you tonight. Goodnight. Goodnight beloved. I come to watch over thee.

Monday, August 7th. Another day of fog, dear heart. So foggy and disagreeable that all this morning I stayed indoors and read most of the time. I am reading three books. The outline of science which I spoke to you about. The story of mankind: (History.) And the Life of the Spirit and the Life of Today. A book I found in Boston and a book you will love, but rather illogical—but it is just the life of the spirit that we understand. I want to discuss every page with you. In the afternoon I played on the organ downstairs, like the organ in the Guild room. Today I am hoping that you received my card telling you of the safe arrival of your letter. You must never be without messages from me and I will write as often as seems wise. Goodnight blessed heart of mine. I am getting to bed early and hoping for good weather tomorrow so I can go to Seal Harbor.

Tuesday, August 8th. Fog and rain in the morning, but I went to Seal anyway—a blessed letter from you—Darling do you know how I love them—how thrilled I am to get them? Oh, I think you know and it gives you joy to write. Then on going back to Islesford—your dear long Sunday letter was here and the clippings—I love the poem on faith. You shall have all the poems I can get for you. After dinner, George Kemmer took us out in his boat to N. E. Harbor where I sent you a card and to Otter Creek. It was cold coming home, so I shall have to dose up tonight or I will have a cold. Heaven's blessings for the dearest, dearest sweetheart that ever, ever lived.

Wednesday, August 9th. Darling such a day as this: Wonderfully clear and bright, such as few days are up here—after breakfast we formed a party of six and climbed Sargeant Mt. 1,380 feet. Oh, how I have longed for you—you have been with me every step of the way. We took lunch and did not get back until six P. M. Rather tired, so went to bed early, a wonderful night too—moon and stars wonderfully bright and a perfect calm and stillness—as wonderful as our love, dear heart—I got your newspaper clippings today—I love to read what you have read—good night beloved—I—D. T. L.

Unable to Go for Mail.

Thursday, August 10th.—dear darling heart of mine I know there must be a letter for me at Seal Harbor today and I won't be able to get it—a party was formed this morning to go to Goits Island—an all-day trip and an ideal day for it—so at ten we left, reached there at eleven thirty—had lunch, wandered about the island and retur[illegible] night it is cold and cloudy and does not promise well for tomorrow, but I shall surely get over to Seal H. to get my letter——

Dearest these days are weeks long how can I stay away from you so long—I don't know myself—I want to fondle and caress you, Oh so much. I want to hold you close in my arms and know that you are safe and happy and warm—dearest we were made for each other's arms—that is our heaven—our home and every moment away from there is a moment away from home—good night, dear, dearly beloved—All the universe of love crushed into my love for you.

Friday August 11th.—Good morning darling. Cloudy and overcast this morning so I stayed home—wrote some—read and did some odds and ends. There was talk of a walk to Weston but it had to be [illegible] not stay—no never a dance for me not now without my "Gray Wolf" snuggled beside me. Good night dear heart.

Saturday August 12th—This hasn't been a day of any consequence dear—this morning I went over to Seal Harbor and back on the mail boat—I went to the P. O. and another of your good letters was waiting for me in the P. M. after shaving.

There was a long wait before court opened. The defendants, who had entered on the dot of 10 A. M. in the custody of James P. Major, Warden of the County Jail, whiled away the time by chatting with friends. Mrs. Hall and Timothy N. Pfeiffer, who is a friend as well as attorney, talked, the widow's face frequently lighting up with smiles.

When Willie Stevens came in he gravely performed his daily ceremony of shaking hands with the lawyers individually. Stevens, who is said to be most punctilious in some things, for all his juvenile devotion to fire apparatus and fire-fighters, goes through the morning greeting as one might go through a rite. Stevens's heavy black hair had been shorn after court closed on Monday and it made a decided change in his appearance.

Examines New Witnesses.

The reason for the delay, it was said, was Senator Simpson's desire to examine new witnesses who were brought to court early yesterday. The examination of these witnesses was conducted in an anteroom. It was 10:55 A. M. before the Judges ascended the bench.

Senator Simpson, after referring to the decision against allowing the jury to view the scene, asked permission of the Court to employ a projectoscope, a kind of stereopticon, to show views of the murder vicinity, and Mr. McCarter refused to agree "to a moving picture," and when the special prosecutor denied that it was anything savoring of the "movies"—he said it was "as stationary as the General"—the Court suggested that Judges and counsel determine the scope of the machine at a private demonstration during the luncheon recess.

TESTIMONY OF MRS. LEE.

Mrs. Marie M. Lee, a younger sister of Mrs. Mills, was the first witness. She wore a brown fur coat and a black turban. She bore a striking resemblance to another sister, Mrs. Elsie Barnhardt, who testified on Monday. The examination was as follows:

Q.—And where did you live in the year 1919 before you were married? A.—I lived with Mrs. Mills.

Q.—Did you know Dr. Hall? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you attend the church at that time? A.—Different meetings; never a member.

Q.—Different meetings? A.—Social gatherings, things of that kind.

Q.—Were you also a communicant of the church? A.—No.

Q.—Do you remember being at a moving picture, or some entertainment, when your sister Eleanor operated the machine and the doctor was present? A.—Yes.

Q.—And where was that? A.—In the Sunday school room.

Q.—Did you see anything occur between them? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you see? A.—Mrs. Mills ordinarily ran the machine; she knew it very well. She was operating it with her right hand and there was a little light at the front of it so that I could see her. Mr. Hall came over and put his hand on her right hand as she was turning it, and she looked up at him and she said something to him—what it was, I didn't know.

Q.—Around that time had she said anything to you about the state of her mind toward Dr. Hall? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did she say to you? A.—She told me she loved Dr. Hall.

Q.—And what did she tell you was the nature of her love for Dr. Hall, did she go into details, anything of that kind? A.—Platonic love.

Q.—In 1919, at the time you say she was telling you she loved Dr. Hall, what, if anything, did she say as to the relations between them being proper or improper at the time? A.—They were proper.

Q.—And what did she say about that? Just phrase as she did, as you remember what she told you? A.—She said that their relations were quite proper; nothing wrong about them.

Q.—And did she tell you anything about why she loved him, anything of that kind? A.—Well, she found him more of an intellectual equal.

Q.—Did she say anything about his being her idea of a man? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now that you say was about 1919? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were then unmarried, weren't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—And how long after were you married? A.—I was married in 1920, in June.

Talked Frequently of Hall.

Senator Simpson then asked the witness if her sister, up to June, 1919, had or had not frequently discussed the state of her mind toward Dr. Hall. Mrs. Lee replied in the affirmative and the examination continued thus:

Q.—What had she said? A.—She said that she was going away with him, that he was going to try to get a divorce and they were going away when it was possible for him to do so.

Q.—When you came back, what time did you arrive back? A.—I made three trips in five years to visit my relatives.

Q.—You went away in 1920 as a married woman—Mrs. Lee? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you go? A.—Minneapolis, Minn.

Q.—When was the first trip you came back? A.—In 1921.

Q.—And about when? A.—In April.

Q.—And did you see Mrs. Mills then? A.—Yes.

Q.—What, if anything, did she say about the relationship with Dr. Hall or the state of her mind with respect to Dr. Hall? A.—About the same as before—and the relations at that time were quite proper.

Q.—From what she said, the relations were quite proper? A.—Yes.

Q.—When was the second trip home that you saw her? A.—Early in 1922.

Q.—Was that the trip you brought your baby in? A.—The last trip I brought my baby in.

Q.—The second trip in 1922 where did you see her? A.—At her home.

Q.—At 49 Carmen Street? A.—Yes.

Q.—How many times did you see her on your second trip? A.—Various times.

Q.—What, if anything, did she say then about her condition of mind toward Dr. Hall? A.—We never talked confidentially at that time.

Q.—We will pass that trip. Now, the third trip was with your little baby; your baby was 8 months old? A.—Yes.

Q.—That brought you to what month in 1922? A.—April, 1922. That was the last trip.

Q.—Was that the last time you saw her before she died? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where did you see her in April, 1922? A.—At her home.

Q.—What, if anything, did she say about her intentions with respect to Dr. Hall? A.—They were going away; he was going to try to get a divorce and go abroad.

Q.—He was going to try to get a divorce? A.—Yes.

Mills Was Present.

The questions then turned to Mills. Mr. Simpson asked the witness if Mills was there at that time. The answer was that he was present. Mr. McCarter objected to this line and was overruled by the Court. He took an exception and Mr. Simpson continued:

Q.—What did she say to Mills in your presence about her love for Dr. Hall? A.—She told him she cared for him and that she would not do anything to disgrace his name, and when she was ready to go she would tell him.

Q.—And did she say she would go? A.—Yes, she would go.

Q.—Where did she say she would go and when did she say she would go and did she say she would go with Dr. Hall or not? A.—She said she was going to Japan with Dr. Hall.

Q.—Did she discuss with you anything about Dr. Hall having inherited $40,000 from a member of the Stevens family, and that he was well able to go away if he could get a divorce from Mrs. Hall? A.—He had——

Mr. McCarter—I object to this.

Senator Simpson—I have to direct her attention to these things. This is a lay witness who does not understand the niceties of evidence, and I am not putting the an[illegible] lots to finish high school and take her with her.

Q.—What, if anything, did she say to you about Dr. Hall with relation to herself and Mrs. Hall? A.—I do not understand you.

Q.—Just search your memory. Do you remember whether or not, in referring to Dr. Hall's love for her, she said anything about that, as to whether or not Mrs. Mills had what Mrs. Hall didn't have—your sister, when she was talking? A.—She realized he evidently cared very much for her. He evidently could not give two women the same love.

Q.—What, if anything, did she say about Dr. Hall's divorce? A.—He was going to ask for a release from Mrs. Hall.

Q.—And that was in April, 1922? A.—1922.

Q.—Did you ever see your sister kiss Dr. Hall? A.—Yes, I have seen him kiss her.

Q.—When? A.—I came home early one day——

Q.—Was this 1919? A.—No, this was in 1918.

Q.—What did you see? As you approached the house did you look through the window? A.—The outer door was open; there was a screen door. It was warm weather, and he was seated in the arm chair. She was seated on his knee, and I came in rather quietly, I suppose, and I saw him kiss her. As I came she jumped off his lap.

McCarter Cross-Examines.

The witness then was turned over to Mr. McCarter for cross-examination. In reply to his questions, Mrs. Lee said she had lived with Mrs. Mills from the Fall of 1918 until June, 1919, at 49 Carmen Street. Mr. McCarter then proceeded as follows:

Q.—When was it you lived with Mrs. Mills? A.—I lived with Mrs. Mills from the Fall of 1918 until 1919, June.

Q.—And they lived at Carmen Street? A.—49 Carmen Street.

Q.—And what room did you occupy? A.—The upstairs room in the attic.

Q.—With—? A.—With Charlotte at times and then at times Eleanor would sleep with me.

Q.—Were there two beds or only one up in the attic room? A.—I had a little portable leather couch that you pull out.

Q.—And you were married in 1920? A.—Yes.

Q.—And went to live with your husband in Minneapolis? A.—Yes.

Q.—When did you return to live in New Jersey? A.—I returned February of this year.

Q.—And is your husband living? A.—No.

Q.—Since your return you have lived in Paterson? A.—Yes.

Q.—With Mrs. Barnhardt? A.—No, alone.

Q.—That is where she lives, too? A.—Yes.

Q.—Mrs. Mills told you, as I understand it, before you went away, that one reason why she was fond of Mr. Hall was he was her intellectual equal? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that her husband was not? A.—She did not say her husband was not; she just said that Mr. Hall was her intellectual equal. She did not mention her husband at all.

Q.—On this occasion when she did speak about admiration for Mr. Hall when Mr. Mills was present, what was that interview? A.—When he was present?

Q.—Yes. A.—Well, when she told him that she would never do anything to disgrace his name, when she was ready to leave him she would tell him when she was ready to go.

Q.—When was that, please? A.—That was in 1919, early part of 1919. You see, I left in June, 1919.

Q.—She told her husband then that she was so fond of Mr. Hall that she was going to go away with him and she would not do anything to disgrace her husband's name? A.—Yes. She did not speak directly to him. I was there with him.

Q.—He was there and overheard the conversation? A.—Yes.

Mills Present Only Once.

Mr. McCarter continued with questions regarding the presence of Mills. On this occasion, the witness said, she had not heard Mills make any comment. She said she could remember no other time when Mills was present, although she had heard talk between Mrs. Mills and other persons about her interest in church matters or in Dr. Hall. Mr. McCarter then asked:

Q.—When you visited East on any of these occasions from Minneapolis, did you always stay with Mrs. Mills? A.—No, I didn't. She didn't have enough room to accommodate the baby and me at the one time.

Q.—But you were occasionally calling there? A.—Most every day I called to see her; yes.

Q.—Did you stop in New Brunswick? A.—I was stopping at Remsen Street with my sister—no, Suydam Street, Mrs. Reed.

Q.—That is another sister? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, what function was it that you attended in the Sunday school where some machine was being operated? A.—I don't know what function it was. I know the motion picture was "Lorna Doone." I was always bored at those church gatherings, anyhow. I just helped out financially.

Fails to Shake Testimony.

The defense sought to show that Mrs. Lee's position in the room had obstructed her view of what went on at the projection machine, but did not succeed. In reply to Mr. McCarter's questions she said James Mills had been present when Mrs. Mills spoke of the contemplated elopement to Japan. The questioning then turned to the "kissing incident" which, according to the witness, was staged in the kitchen. On redirect by Senator Simpson the examination was:

Q.—Now, with reference to that statement that you have been cross-examined on, let me direct your attention to this: Did any time Mrs. Mills, in her conversation, say in effect that she had all Mrs. Hall had never had, the love of Dr. Hall? Don't answer the question yet.

Mr. McCarter—That, in the first place, is objectionable. It is suggestive, it puts the words into the witness's mouth and it is not redirect examination. I didn't interrogate her concerning any new statement; I simply cross-examined her concerning the statements that counsel had referred to in his direct examination, and I think it is quite improper for him to reinterrogate on the same subject and put the words into the witness's mouth. This lady is an intelligent woman.

Senator Simpson—I will withdraw the question.

Q.—You had a conversation with me out there this morning, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—About what your sister had said to you on your last visit? A.—Yes.

Q.—On your last visit, the last time you saw her alive: you had a talk with me out in the prosecutor's office about what she told you the last time you saw her alive, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, refresh your memory and see if you think you have told these gentlemen everything that you say your sister said about Dr. Hall's love for her, her love for him, in reference to Mrs. Hall. A.—No, I cannot recall.

Q.—Did she say anything to you to that last conversation that you have not testified to here about Mrs. Hall and her relationship with Mrs. Hall, her state of mind toward Mrs. Hall, Minna Clarke and the doctor? A.—Oh, yes; they were not friendly—Eleanor was not as friendly, neither was Minna Clarke with Eleanor, right after her operation.

Q.—Right after her operation? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did she say? A.—She suspected Minna——

Q.—Go ahead and answer that question.

Mr. McCarter—One moment.

Senator Simpson—Then you can object to the answer if it is not responsive.

Mr. McCarter—One moment.

Senator Simpson—I object to his interrupting an answer of my witness.

The Court—The question was not objected to when it was made and the witness was half way through the answer. (To witness:) Finish your answer.

A.—That Mrs. Hall and Eleanor were not friendly and she suspected Mrs. Clarke of telling Mrs. Hall things that would make her feel that way toward her.

WALSH ON THE STAND.

Harry F. Walsh, Captain of Jersey City Police, one of the investigators for the State, was sworn. He testified that on Aug. 31 last he had taken a statement from Henry Stevens at his home in Lavalette, N. J. He said that Sergeant Richard Burke, another investigator, had been present. He read the statement, as follows:

Aug. 31, 1926.

Statement of Henry Stevens, age 56, Lavallette, N. J., made to Captain Harry Walsh of the Jersey City Police Department.

At about 6 to 6:30 P. M., Sept. 14, 1922, I ate my supper and went out on the beach fishing, at which place I remained until about 9 or after 9 o'clock P. M. I didn't go at any time further than one block from the house. Shortly after 9 P. M. I came to the house, had a bottle of soft stuff. After that I started [illegible]

He then left me and went home. Now, getting back to where I was, I returned about 11 P. M. and remained in bed until about half an hour before sunrise in the morning, about 6:30 A. M., daylight time.

Q.—Mr. Stevens, in whose company were you while you were fishing on the eve of Sept. 14, 1922? A.—I didn't fish with anybody, but Mr. Arthur Applegate was close to me, and he is the man I weighed the fish for. I also saw Mr. George W. Johnson of Lavallette, N. J., on the beach that night. I saw William H. Eger of Lavallette, N. J., on the beach. I am almost sure I saw Mr. Thadis Millinger, also of Lavallette, N. J., on the beach, and another person I am almost positive I saw that night was William MacGunagle of Lavallette, N. J., and the Mayor of the town and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Van Camp of Lavallette, N. J. They were present when I weighed the fish for Mr. Applegate and saw it weighed.

Q.—On Sept. 14, 1922, did you own an automobile? A.—I did, a Ford station wagon.

Q.—On that night where did you store, garage or keep this Ford station wagon? A.—In a garage back of my house, my own garage.

Q.—Did you or any member of your family own another car on Sept. 14, 1922? A.—Yes, Mrs. Stevens had a Chandler sedan seven-passenger car.

Q.—Where was this car kept, stored or garaged on that date? A.—Also in my private garage.

Q.—Can you drive an automobile? A.—Only a Ford.

Q.—Did you ever drive a gear shift car? A.—Never. I don't know how to.

Q.—When was the last time you were in New Brunswick, N. J., before Sept. 14, 1922? A.—It must have been some months before that date.

Q.—When was the first time you were in New Brunswick, N. J., after Sept. 14, 1922? A.—On Saturday evening, Sept. 16, 1922, and this was in response to a call from my cousin, Edward Carpender of New Brunswick, N. J., who sent me a telegram notifying me of Mr. Hall's death.

Q.—Had you any knowledge of the friendship existing between Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills? A.—I never knew there was such a woman.

Q.—Did you know of any friendship that existed between Mr. Hall and any woman? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you at any time threaten Mr. Hall? A.—Never.

Q.—Mr. Stevens, where was Mrs. Stevens on Sept. 14, 1922, from 4 P. M. until the next morning? A.—Mrs. Stevens was in New York. She went there on the Tuesday before that date.

Q.—When did you next see Mrs. Stevens, your wife? A.—On Sunday evening, Sept. 17, 1922, in New York at our apartment.

Q.—Did you and your wife attend the funeral of Mr. Hall, at New Brunswick, N. J.? A.—Yes, sir, both of us.

Q.—On Sept. 14, 1922, did you own a gun or revolver? A.—Yes, I had a number of shotguns, no revolvers.

FRANK BARNHARDT ON STAND.

Frank Barnhardt, brother-in-law of Mrs. Mills, was then called. On Monday his wife, Mrs. Elsie Barnhardt, testified. The examination follows:

Q.—Where did Mrs. Barnhardt live before you married her? A.—In Lindenauer, just outside of New Brunswick.

Q.—And did you meet Mrs. Mills there at any time? A.—Yes, on various occasions.

Q.—Well, when you met her what, if anything, did she say about her feelings for Dr. Hall? A.—All those conversations—each was about Dr. Hall, Mrs. Hall, Minna Clark, Agnes Storer.

Q.—What did she say about the state of her mind toward Dr. Hall? A.—Very much in love with him, fascinated with him.

Q.—Did she say anything about why she admired him? A.—Why, he was her ideal of a man.

Q.—When was the first time you heard her say that? A.—I should say about 1917.

Q.—You were at that time courting your present wife? A.—Just before we were married, yes.

Q.—And during the year prior did you see Mrs. Mills and did you hear her declare herself as to Dr. Hall? A.—Why, up to her death.

Q.—And how frequently did you see her in the year before her death? A.—Oh, not very frequently in 1922.

Q.—Well, once a month? A.—No, not that often. I was living in Paterson at the time.

Q.—Twice a year? A.—Yes.

Q.—When was the last time you saw her before that time? A.—About three months.

Q.—And where did you see her? A.—At her home.

Q.—Was anybody present beside herself? A.—No.

Q.—What, if anything, did she say about Dr. Hall and her state of mind toward Dr. Hall? A.—We were talking on various subjects until we finally came to the subject of friendship, and she said she did have one real true friend in Dr. Hall and she was a little disappointed in some of the people she thought were her friends, and she talked about Mrs. Hall, who was supposed to be a very dear friend of hers but turned out to be not so friendly, because she thought it was because Mrs. Hall, when circumstances prevented her from—of course she would speak to her, but on other occasions she would disregard her, and it made Mrs. Mills feel pretty badly, although she would not show it because she said she had what Mrs. Hall never did have, the love of Dr. Hall.

Q.—When was it Mrs. Mills said she had what Mrs. Hall never did have, the love of Dr. Hall? A.—The last time that I spoke to Mrs. Mills, about two or three months before she died.

Q.—When was the first you knew she had been murdered? A.—I was returning on the train from Bridgeport; I read it in the paper.

HENRY MILLS TESTIFIES.

Henry Mills, brother of James Mills, was the next witness. He is a pale little man, of the same physical build as his brother. As Henry Mills testified a curious smile remained on his face and at times he seemed to be making an effort to hold back laughter. His examination proceeded thus:

Q.—How intimately did you know Mrs. Mills—did you call at her house? A.—Not very frequently.

Q.—Did you visit St. John the Evangelist Church irregularly, about once a month or so? A.—Yes, something like that.

Q.—You knew the people in the church? A.—Yes.

Q.—What, if anything, do you know about the talk in the church of St. John the Evangelist? A.—Gossip.

Q.—Say for a period of two years before the murder of Mrs. Mills, relating to the relationships of the rector of the church and Mrs. Mills? A.—I heard gossip, church gossip.

Q.—How open was it? Was it still and quiet, or was it open and notorious, what was it? A.—It was gossip going on that Dr. Hall was paying extraordinary attention to Mrs. Mills.

Q.—For how long a period of time had you heard that when you went to the church? A.—Oh, about two years before the date of the crime.

Cross-examination by Mr. McCarter:

Q.—Were you a member of this church? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who did you hear speak of the extraordinary attention to Mrs. Mills? A.—Well, church gossip.

Q.—No, who did you hear? A.—Who did I hear?

Q.—Yes. A.—One instance, my mother told me.

Q.—What was her name? A.—Mrs. Jane Mills.

Q.—Is she living? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who else? A.—Well, other people.

Q.—I am asking you who? A.—I cannot recollect just who, but it was common gossip, that is all.

Mr. McCarter—One moment. I move to strike out "common gossip." I asked the names of anybody else.

The Witness—Well, I cannot recollect.

Mr. McCarter—One moment, please.

The Court—That will be stricken out as irresponsive.

Q.—Just answer the question.

The Court—His mother, he said.

Q.—Who besides your mother did you ever hear speak? A.—I cannot recollect.

Q.—You cannot recall? A.—No, I cannot recall.

ANTHONY SILZER CALLED.

Anthony Silzer, official stenographer for Middlesex County, was the next witness. He is a brother of former Governor George Silzer. He testified to the correctness of a statement he took from Henry Stevens during the first investigation. The statement was read by Prosecutor Bergen. The statement and the questions leading up to it follow:

Q.—We understand that you desire to make a statement? A.—I said I was willing to make a statement if you desired me to give it.

Q.—Of course it must be voluntary? A.—Absolutely. On Wednesday I did not leave Lavallette. I was around on the beach; down along the edge of the bay, and in the evening I was on the beach, I know. Never went any further than that. My home is at Lavallette. I [illegible]

I was to go with decided not to go, and then, on account of my wife wanting to get the furniture out of the apartment in New York, I was going with William Egger and Sommer Marley, a friend of Mr. Egger's. I remained at home Wednesday night. Then on Thursday I stayed around Lavallette all day and did not go out of town more than two miles. I think I was at Seaside Heights to see an old boatman a few minutes and came back, and Thursday evening I was on the beach all evening right after supper, got some fish and then joined by two or three others and we fished until past 10, when I went to bed.

Friday morning I was up before daylight to go out on the beach to see if I could gather some bait with Mr. Millinger, who lives next door. That was Friday, and stayed around Friday, around the house Friday morning, and had my lunch early, so that I could take Mrs. Wilson, who is my friend, up to the train at Point Pleasant. She wanted to make a Central Railroad train and go to Jersey City in better time. They got the train 1:28, Daylight Saving time. In the afternoon, after leaving them at Point Pleasant, I carried the clothes to Osbornville, about three or four miles, where our laundress lived, and returned immediately to Lavallette. Friday night went fishing again on the beach in front of the house, and went to bed the same time.

Interrupted by Telegram.

On Saturday Mr. Eggers stayed up from Philadelphia, went out on beach, and Wright went over to his house and ate the bluefish. And no more than gotten a line out when I saw the station agent coming with a telegram in his hand. I did not think anything of it, as the family was in the habit of using that form. It was very inconvenient to have a message sent up from town. Had this telegram, seen it was from Edwin Carpender. The words were, "Edward Hall has been killed. Come at once." I could not imagine what it was. I thought he had been killed by an automobile.

I dressed, put some things in a suitcase, made the train connecting at Sea Girt and again at Monmouth Junction, saw some boys selling The Home News and bought one, and that was the first I knew of it. I had already telephoned to Edwin Carpender's home, and also sent a telegram to my sister saying I would arrive on the evening train, twenty minutes to 7, and Edwin met me at the station, and I went direct to my sister's house and I remained all day, and the next day: that evening telephoned my wife and she came over and spent Sunday and Sunday evening. Knowing there would be quite a crowd at the Carpenders, Mrs. Hall's sister and Mrs. Peters and I went back to New York. The next day came on an early train to New Brunswick and in the afternoon had the funeral. Drove in automobile to the —— Cemetery in Brooklyn, came back in automobile as far as train, and wife and I went back to apartment in New York, having previously asked my wife if it was necessary for her to remain in New Brunswick with her, at this time and she said, "No, there is absolutely nothing to be done, you had better go to your apartment," she knowing where it was, telephone and everything.

Stayed in New York, He Said.

In New York we found that we could not get the man with the van until Thursday morning, as they were very busy. We made up our minds to stay right there, ready to come to New Brunswick if my sister should want me. We stayed there getting the things ready to move. On Thursday morning the man came upstairs, I telephoned my sister, "We are going down with the things to Lavallette," and asked her if she wanted me out to New Brunswick, and she said no, she didn't want me at all. Went to Lavallette and the next day wife was very busy getting the house in order. A lot of stuff we had to store in the garage. On Saturday thought of coming to New Brunswick; my wife had a bad cold and did not feel like coming, and on Sunday she did and drove up Sunday. That was day before yesterday, and spent the afternoon at my sister's home and drove back in the evening. Had our supper on the way, consisting of sandwiches and milk, Englishtown. Left Lavallette yesterday morning, took train from Manasquan and ever since at my sister's home. At my sister's home ever since.

Q.—Was your attention ever called by your sister, Mrs. Hall, or any of the members of the family to any unseemly conduct or relations between Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills? A.—Not in the slightest. I never heard of Mrs. Mills.

Q.—Before? You remember? A.—I did not. I hadn't known of Mrs. Mills's existence.

Q.—Then, of course, you had no suspicion? A.—Not the slightest.

Answers Queries on Pistols.

Q.—Is there any difference in the force of the bullet fired from an ordinary pistol and one fired from an automatic? Or depend on the way it is used? A.—I never fired an automatic in my life, and an ordinary revolver I suppose in eighteen years or twenty years. But I do know from my knowledge of automatic pistols, with the metal-jacketed bullet would cut a much cleaner hole than the ordinary lead bullet. They do make a revolver cartridge with metal-jacketed bullet and very seldom used.

Q.—Then you don't know very much about the difference between a lead bullet shell? A.—Yes. I can tell you the difference in action and effect fired at a piece of soft wood. An automatic would penetrate further and cut a cleaner hole.

Q.—At the point of exit? A.—The automatic. I do not know about soft flesh.

Being shown a shell, deponent says: That looks like an automatic shell and has been used with smokeless powder .32 automatic pistol.

Q.—What is the difference between an automatic and double action? A.—Double action is locked until the finger pulls the trigger to cock it. In an automatic you simply touch the trigger and it keeps on until empty.

Being shown three shells, says:

It is my opinion that the three shells submitted to my examination were all fired from the same gun. One of my reasons for this opinion is that the indentations in the primer on all three shells show the indentations a little away from the centre, practically the same distance in each case. All the shells have evidently been fired from a cartridge designed for what is known as an automatic pistol. Being hard by reason of its jacket would be apt to make a cleaner hole at point of entrance and exit than an ordinary lead bullet fired from an ordinary revolver.

Dr. Schultze Recalled.

Dr. Otto H. Schultze, medical assistant to District Attorney Banton of Manhattan, went to the stand for the third time. Senator Simpson sought to establish from the witness that no reason existed four years ago for the prompt burial of the body of Dr. Hall. Dr. Schultze gave it as his opinion that there had been reason for the quick interment. Senator Case, in cross-examination, asked the physician whether "a dog" and a human being would not progress toward dust at the same pace. Senator Simpson made much of the comparison in redirect examination, linking "dog" with "this Episcopal clergyman."

DI MARTINI'S AIDE TESTIFIES.

Peter Sommer, who was an employe of Felix Di Martini, private detective, hired four years ago by Mrs. Hall, was summoned to the stand. His examination by Senator Simpson was as follows:

Q.—Where do you live? A.—459 Pulaski Street, Brooklyn.

Q.—What is your occupation? A.—Fingerprint work.

Q.—Were you a private detective in 1922? A.—I was.

Q.—And in that year were you at any time hired by Felix Di Martini? A.—I was.

Q.—Where were you hired, that is, where were you when you were hired? A.—No. 5 Beekman Street, New York.

Q.—Where was Felix Di Martini? A.—No. 6 Beekman Street, New York.

Q.—Did he put you to work on the so-called Hall-Mills murder case? A.—He did.

Q.—Where, not what reports you made, but where did you make your reports to him, how did you report to him? A.—Why, I reported to him at the New Brunswick railroad station, and also by telephone.

Q.—What telephone number? A.—New Brunswick 74.

Q.—Do you know whether that was the Hall telephone or not? A.—Not at that time I did not.

Q.—Do you know now? A.—I do.

Q.—It was the telephone in the home of Mrs. Hall? A.—Yes.

Q.—Over what period of time did you report back to Felix Di Martini either in the Pennsylvania Railroad Station or at Mrs. Hall's home, from what time to what time? A.—Well, I generally reported to him every evening.

Q.—Yes, but beginning with what date? A.—Why, it was the latter part of September, I believe, I would not say for sure.

Q.—How long did you work on the case? A.—Up until Christmas.

Q.—What did you do? A.—Why, I was instructed to visit different pool rooms, [illegible] is on the stand, and he is an investigator.

Senator Simpson—I withdraw it.

Case Objects to Questions.

Senator Simpson then asked the witness what his instructions from Di Martini were. Senator Case objected, saying the instructions did not tend to prove the guilt or innocence of the defendants. The argument continued:

Senator Simpson—I think it does. If I can establish by this man that his instructions were, not to solve this murder, not to find out who did the murder, but to find out what people were saying about Mrs. Hall; I think it is very illuminating.

The Court—We have not any evidence as yet as to the agency of Di Martini to employ a subordinate to go around among the cigar stores, pool rooms or any place else.

Senator Simpson—It seems to me that is for the jury. I have proved that one of these defendants took Di Martini into her house; that he lived there; that he interviewed all the servants about this case; that he was introduced as her representative to the servants. The servants were instructed to make his bed up, to give him his meals. How much further can I go? I cannot put Mrs. Hall on the stand and ask her what did she tell Di Martini to do. That becomes a question of fact for the jury.

Having proved all these things, if those facts are true, then it seems that the jury has the right to draw the conclusion that Di Martini was hired, and was hired in the house in reference to this homicide, and that he was hired, not to reveal; but to suppress. I don't see how much further I can go in proof of the agency.

I have looked at the case your Honor has referred me to and it is clearly proper. It is a course of conduct under the eye of the principal. It is for the jury to say whether or not the principal had full knowledge of the conduct, ratifying the act of the agent. This woman hired Di Martini and kept him in her house, kept him with a man from the Homicide Bureau of New York. Certainly she is chargeable with what the man so hired did.

Senator Case—For each defendant separately and individually apart from the other, I enter the objection that neither is bound by what this man may say nor by what he did; that there is no connection whereby the activities of this man may be taken to be an indication of the guilt or innocence of either of the parties. That is not the question.

Senator Simpson—Your Honor is now saying as a matter of law—which is of course all the Court can say—"as matter of law you can not have this testimony because in the state of proof you have not shown enough agency." I say that is now for the jury, having proved all I can. Of course I cannot put Di Martini on the stand. If they will produce him I will put him on to show it. I cannot produce Di Martini, because it is common knowledge that he is not in this State. I cannot put on Mrs. Hall. She would be perfectly right in saying, "I refuse to answer." How am I going to establish this agency?

The Court—Did you see Di Martini at Mrs. Hall's house?

The Witness—No, sir, I was instructed not to.

Q.—Did you telephone to him at her house? A.—Yes, sir, I did.

Q.—How often did you telephone to him? A.—Several times during the week.

Q.—What time of day would you telephone to him? A.—About seven o'clock or half-past seven in the evening.

Q.—After you had done your day's work? A.—Why, I would not be quite finished.

Q.—Would you report to him what you had done? A.—I would.

Q.—Did you ever on any occasion make a direct report to Mrs. Hall? A.—No.

Q.—All your reports were made to him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever make a direct report to Mr. Pfeiffer? A.—I did not.

Q.—You simply talked to Di Martini? A.—Yes.

Senator Simpson—That is of course all I can prove. I cannot prove agency any further than that. It is now about time to adjourn and your Honors may consider that ruling during adjournment.

The Court—Yes. We will recess until 1:30.

Projectoscope Is Removed.

When court reconvened Justice Parker announced that the defense still objected to the use of the projectoscope to show the scene, and the machine was removed.

Sommers was directed to return to the stand. Another wait ensued with the Special Prosecutor busy on the telephone outside the courtroom. Sommers's examination was resumed with the question asked before the recess:

Q.—What were your instructions from Di Martini to work on this case? A.—My instructions were to proceed to New Brunswick, visit cigar stores and different places where crowds would congregate, and try to overhear their conversation in regard to this case. If possible to try and obtain the names and addresses of the persons that were offensive to Mrs. Hall.

Q.—How long did you do that? A.—Why, I was in New Brunswick from the latter part of September, I believe, until up to Christmas time.

Q.—Do you remember how many times you talked to Di Martini over the telephone in Mrs. Hall—while he was in Mrs. Hall's house? A.—Several times.

Q.—Several times doesn't mean a thing. You were working from September until after Christmas. How many times did you speak about it, once a week, once a month? A.—Why, about every other night.

Q.—And what time did you call him at night? A.—Around seven or seven-thirty.

Q.—Why did you call him at seven-thirty? A.—Why, that was my instructions.

Senator Case—I object to this "why did you call him at seven-thirty?"

Senator Simpson—Di Martini told him he would find him at the Hall house at seven-thirty and he found him there.

The Court—It may be answered.

Senator Case—Exception.

Q.—Why did you call him at seven-thirty at the Hall house? A.—That was the instructions I received.

Q.—Did you get him there when you called him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Occasionally or invariably or when? A.—Mostly every time.

Q.—Did you do any other work on the Hall-Mills murder case under the instruction of Di Martini?

Senator Case—I object to the question for the reasons already given.

The Court—The question will be allowed.

Senator Case—Exception.

Q.—What else did you do? A.—I was instructed to go to the Mack Motor Company, New Brunswick, New Jersey, and there obtain a position. I was also instructed I would meet a man there by the name of Mr. Matthews; he would see that I was placed.

Q.—Go ahead. A.—I went to the Mack's Motor Company——

Senator Case—Now the question has been given, I take it. "Go ahead" is no question.

Q.—Tell us what you did. A.—And upon arriving there I looked for a position and had some difficulty at first but finally, when I mentioned the name of Matthews, I was taken in and was placed in the part where Fred Barnhardt worked. I was placed next to him, as Mr. Matthews instructed, next to Fred Barnhardt. Also there was a Mr. Gibson worked there too.

Q.—What were your instructions as to Fred Barnhardt or Gibson? A.—To find out whatever I could of them with regard to this case.

Q.—Who was this Barnhardt, do you know? A.—He was Mrs. Mills's brother, I believe.

Q.—And this Gibson man was the husband of Jane Gibson, or Jane Easton, as you understand?

This question was objected to by Senator Case. Senator Simpson rephrased it twice, but each time there was objection.

The Court allowed the question and Senator Simpson asked:

Q.—What, if any, were your instructions from Di Martini as to a man named Easton or Gibson and what did he say about this man's relationship, if he said anything, to a woman named Jane Gibson or Jane Easton, and what did he say about Jane Gibson or Jane Easton, if anything, having identified Mrs. Hall as having been present at the scene of the murder? A.—My instructions were to try and get into conversation with Mr. Gibson, or Mr. Easton, and see what he had to say about Mrs. Gibson in order to break down her story.

MRS. DEMAREST'S TESTIMONY.

Mrs. Marie Demarest, one of the trial's most "positive" witnesses, was called to the stand. She identified Henry Stevens, on her first appearance on the stand last week, as having been in New Brunswick on Sept. 17, a date upon which he has said he was in Lavallette. She was asked whether she had seen Di Martini in October, 1922, and answered affirmatively. The examination went on:

Q.—What time of the day did Di Mar[illegible]

ing to be, what he said but [illegible] they said?

The Court—As to what question [illegible] Martini asked.

Senator Simpson—I withdraw the [illegible]ous question. What questions did [illegible] Martini put to you; what did he say [illegible] in the way of——

Senator Case—I object.

The Court—The objection is over[illegible]

Senator Case—Exception.

A.—Why, he said to me, he said, [illegible] derstand you have been saying [illegible] about this case, and I am working [illegible] and I would like to know from [illegible] just what you have said."

Q.—Then what was the next [illegible]

A.—Then he said, "Now, you [illegible] seeing Henry Stevens on Friday [illegible] I said, "Yes." He asked me to [illegible] just where I saw him. I told him [illegible] he said, "Now about your cousin," [illegible] says, "what about her?"

And I explained to him just about [illegible] cousin going to the Mills house and [illegible] being to mother's and the conversation [illegible] that passed between us. He says [illegible] he says, "Now, I am working on [illegible] case, but do you know that you are [illegible] your cousin?" I said, "I don't [illegible] I am; I don't think that does any [illegible] if she was not doing any wrong."

"Listen," he says, "you have [illegible] Henry Stevens in New Brunswick."

I says, "Oh, but yes, I have."

He said, "Oh, no, you did not."

"Now," he says, "you know [illegible] hurting him, too." "Now," [illegible] "you were just over this place, [illegible] this place." I said, "Yes." [illegible] "You have got a mortgage on this [illegible] of $2,500." I says, "How did you know? I never told any one."

He says, "I found it out," and [illegible] "how would you like to have that [illegible] and a little bit more to it to keep [illegible] mouth shut?"

Q.—What else, if anything, was [illegible]

A.—I said, "No, thank you." I [illegible] I wanted to clear the mortgage off [illegible] house, I would rather to go to work [illegible] factory, in preference to taking Dr. [illegible] blood money to keep my mouth shut."

I saw Henry Stevens and I said [illegible] to my cousin about it, but she [illegible] saw him the night before.

Says No One Else Was There.

Senator Case then cross-[illegible] He asked the witness who was pre[illegible] at this converation. "Nobody," [illegible] the answer. She fixed the day [illegible] about the third Sunday in [illegible] Senator Case then went on:

Q.—Did you ever see Di Martini on [illegible] other occasion than that? A.—Well, only to see him around the street, [illegible] is all.

Q.—He never talked to you any [illegible] time? A.—No.

Q.—You did not know who he was [illegible] he introduced himself to you? [illegible] didn't even tell me who he was.

Q.—He didn't tell you who he was? [illegible] Not until after.

Q.—What do you mean, not until [illegible] A.—Not until the conversation was [illegible] and I ordered him out.

Q.—He did not tell you who he [illegible] until after the conversation was [illegible] A.—Until I ended the conversation [illegible] and ordered him out. Then he [illegible] was Di Martini.

Q.—And a man whom you had never [illegible] before, and so far as you knew had [illegible] seen you before, comes to your front [illegible] and asks you if you would not like to [illegible] $2,500 and a little more? A.—Well, [illegible] First he said, "I am working on this [illegible] and would like to talk to you about [illegible] murder."

Q.—Did you ever make a complaint against him for having attempted to [illegible] you? A.—No.

Mrs. Demarest said she had seen [illegible] Martini at his hearing before the [illegible] pellate Division in Brooklyn. [illegible] Case's cross-examined her on [illegible] point:

Q.—Did you go there to collect [illegible] A.—No, I did not.

Q.—Oh, I see. Did you go to give [illegible] the opportunity of making you [illegible] offer? A.—Certainly not.

Q.—Well, I didn't suppose you had. [illegible] were you there? A.—Why, to see [illegible] he was really the man or not. I [illegible] not recognize him by the picture [illegible] saw the man himself.

Q.—You would not have known the [illegible] by the picture unless you saw him [illegible] A.—I said. I was not positively [illegible] When he came to my house he [illegible] glasses on.

Ex-Judge Tells of Cuff Links.

Edward W. Hicks, former Middle[illegible] County Judge, related how as at[illegible] ney for Mrs. Hall four years ago [illegible] made a vain effort to recover the [illegible] cuff links which the rector had [illegible] to his death. The Judge's son, Doug[illegible] Hicks, related his part in the ma[illegible] which was dropped when the Somer[illegible] County officials said that the li[illegible] could be obtained only through app[illegible] tion to the Attorney General.

Captain Walsh was recalled to testi[illegible] on what Mrs. Demarest had done [illegible] regard to her view of Di Martini. [illegible] got no opportunity to do so, howe[illegible] because the defense's objections w[illegible] sustained.

Ciecuich Tells of Search.

Another of the investigators, Lieu[illegible] tenant Walter S. Ciecuich of the Je[illegible] sey City Police Department, follo[illegible] Walsh on the stand. The Lieuten[illegible] testified that he had made a vain [illegible] vass of New York newspaper [illegible] in a search for the original of [illegible] prayer which Dr. Hall composed [illegible] Mrs. Mills while she was lying [illegible] a New Brunswick hospital. [illegible] Parker had ruled on Monday that [illegible] would not admit a photostatic [illegible] of the original prayer until the [illegible] had shown that the original [illegible] obtainable. This was done [illegible] the testimony of Ciecuich and [illegible] prayer was admitted. The text [illegible] was published in THE TIMES [illegible] day.

Two others were put on the [illegible] to testify briefly before the [illegible] was finally admitted in evidence. [illegible] were Captain Walsh, who was re[illegible] to tell how he had searched the [illegible] home and Miss Charlotte Mills, [illegible] 20-year-old daughter of the [illegible] woman. Senator Case, in a [illegible] cross-examination of the young [illegible] man, asked her who had accom[illegible] her to Trenton on Monday night [illegible] she watched the session of the [illegible] Jersey Senate. She said she had [illegible] the trip in the company of two [illegible] paper men, and Senator Simpson [illegible] jected to say, "She did not go [illegible] either of us, Senator." Yet [illegible] called upon to testify on the [illegible] was Mr. Barnhardt, who was re[illegible]

SUTPHEN COMPLETES STORY.

Samuel Sutphen, an undertaker [illegible] Somerville, who had been on the [illegible] when court adjourned on Monday, [illegible] recalled to complete his evid[illegible] what he had observed when the [illegible] were brought to his morgue [illegible] nary to being taken to another [illegible] in New Brunswick. Senator [illegible] on direct examination asked:

Q.—Mr. Sutphen, you were [illegible] amination when the court adjourned [illegible] you were withdrawn from the stand [illegible] described some abrasions on the [illegible] Mrs. Mills. Can you tell what the [illegible] A.—On the right arm of Mrs. [illegible] the wrist there were abrasions, [illegible]

Q.—Where were they? A.—Up [illegible] wrist.

Q.—How much of a surface [illegible] cover? A.—All the way to the [illegible] the arm.

Q.—Were they on both sides or [illegible] the outside—I know this is [illegible] ago? A.—I could not remember that.

Q.—Do you remember examining [illegible] wrist of Dr. Hall at all? A.—I do.

Q.—What condition did you find [illegible] wrist in? A.—On his right wrist it [illegible] as if somebody had grabbed [illegible] their hand.

Recross-examination by Senator Case:

Q.—Now, you are not an anatomist, are you? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Never have taken any course in [illegible] sions or anything of that kind? A.—[illegible] sir.

Q.—Was her dress torn at all, [illegible] Mills's dress torn along the arm [illegible] you have spoken about there being [illegible] mark on the skin? A.—If I remember rightly, she had short sleeves.

Q.—Now, were they torn? A.—No, [illegible]

HALL CHAUFFEUR TESTIFIES.

Cedric A. Paulus, who is [illegible] as a chauffeur by Mrs. Hall, was [illegible] sworn. Paulus, a tall, slender [illegible] with sallow complexion and lank [illegible] hair, was examined by Senator [illegible]

Di Martini Activities

by the clock on the New Brunswick Trust Company, which is not quite a mile away.
Q.—And what time was it when you passed there? A.—About quarter past.
Q.—Did you look at the clock when you got home? A.—No, sir.

Cross-examination by Senator Case:

Q.—Who were you working for at that time, Mr. Paulus? A.—The International Motor Company—now, I beg your pardon. I was a student in high school.
Q.—In high school—the New Brunswick High School? A.—Yes, sir.
Q.—When did you enter Mrs. Hall's employ? A.—As chauffeur? About July, sometime.
Q.—Well, in any capacity? A.—Oh, about five or six months ago.
Q.—Five or six months ago? A.—Yes.
Q.—For whom in the meanwhile had you been working? A.—International Motor Company.

DETECTIVE COLLINS'S STORY.

Detective Charles A. Collins was called. He is in the office of the Middlesex County Prosecutor and was one of the men assigned to the Hall-Mills case four years ago. He was shown the coat and the scarf which Mrs. Hall sent to a Philadelphia dyeing and cleaning concern to be dyed black shortly after the murder. The State contends she did this to destroy the evidence of a gray coat—to which many witnesses have alluded in the Hall-and Mrs. Hall has explained she did so because she was going into mourning and, although the coat was an inexpensive one, it was virtually new. Senator Simpson's examination was as follows:

Q.—Where did you go? A.—I went to the Bornot Cleaning and Dyeing establishment.
Q.—Where is that? A.—I think it is on Chestnut Street, Chestnut and Nineteenth or Fairmount Avenue, I am not sure.
Q.—Were you working on the case when you went there? A.—I was.
Q.—Who did you see in Philadelphia? A.—I saw the manager of the Bornot Company.
Q.—Did you see their records? A.—I did.
Q.—Will you state whether or not their records indicated that any goods had ever been sent from Mrs. Hall in New Brunswick to this place prior to the 14th of September, 1922, for the purpose of dyeing?

Senator Case—I object to it, of course.
The Court—We will hear you, Mr. Simpson, if you wish.
Senator Simpson—Of course we can not take testimony out of the State, and I understand the way to prove a record is three ways: You can prove it by the record itself, by an exemplified copy, or by somebody who saw it. Now, if this record is not in the State of New Jersey, it is admitted that we can not take testimony outside of the State, if this man saw a record which is not procurable—in other words we can't get better evidence—if he saw the record which is not procurable why cannot he testify as to what he saw in that record?
The Court—Do you think that rules apply to private shopbooks of a business house?
Senator Simpson—I submit that it does.
The Court—We do not agree with you.
Q.—You took no statements did you, from Henry Stevens or Mrs. Hall or Willie Stevens? A.—No.

The defense did not cross-examine further.

MRS. CLARK IS TERSE.

Mrs. Minnie Clark stepped to the stand while her attorney took a seat in the second row. Mrs. Clark's manner failed to manifest the hostility the spectators were expecting, and her replies to the questions, while terse, were quick. She, too, was not cross-examined, and her direct testimony was as follows:

Q.—Is Mrs. Demarest your cousin? A.—Yes.
Q.—Did you know Eleanor Mills in her lifetime? A.—Yes.
Q.—Did you know her on the day before her death? A.—Yes.
Q.—Were you and she and Mrs. Mills and Dr. Hall off on a picnic or country jaunt on the day before her death? A.—Yes.
Q.—What time did you leave? A.—9 o'clock.
Q.—And how did you leave, in an automobile or what? A.—Automobile.
Q.—Who drove the automobile? A.—Mr. Hall.
Q.—What kind of an automobile was it? A.—Ford, I think.
Q.—Where did Mr. Hall sit when he drove? A.—Front seat.
Q.—Where did you sit? A.—Back seat.
Q.—Where did Mrs. Hall sit? A.—Back seat.
Q.—Where did Mrs. Mills sit? A.—Back seat.
Q.—He was the only one in front? A.—Yes.
Q.—Who was in the front beside him? A.—His mother.
Q.—What was her name? A.—Mrs. Hall.
Q.—Where did you go? A.—Lake Hopatcong.
Q.—What time did you get to Lake Hopatcong? A.—Near noon.
Q.—Where did you stop? A.—Going to Lake Hopatcong?
Q.—No, when you got to Lake Hopatcong where did you stop for lunch? A.—Along the lake.
Q.—And who had brought the lunch? A.—Mrs. Hall.
Q.—Did Mrs. Mills bring anything? A.—A few sandwiches.
Q.—Did Mrs. Hall refuse any of Mrs. Mills's sandwiches? A.—I don't think she was asked to have any.
Q.—You don't think Mrs. Mills asked her to have any? A.—I don't remember.
Q.—What happened to Mrs. Mills's sandwiches, who had them? A.—They were eaten.
Q.—By whom? A.—Well, I had some.
Q.—You said Mrs. Hall was not asked to have any—who was asked to have any? A.—Me.
Q.—And how about Dr. Hall, did he have some? A.—I did not hear her ask him, for I did not see him eat any.
Q.—Do you remember any accident that day by which the doctor got his clothes torn? A.—Yes.
Q.—What time of the day was that? A.—Afternoon.
Q.—What time in the afternoon? A.—Before we had our supper, I should say the latter part.
Q.—Will you describe what it was, what occurred? A.—Why, as he was coming back from the car, he was bringing a seat back for his mother to sit on, and he was bringing lunch and going back and forth generally to the car, and when he came over to the car he tore the leg of his pants.
Q.—Did anybody sew it for him? A.—Yes.
Q.—Who sewed it? A.—Mrs. Hall.
Q.—Was anything said at that time by Mrs. Mills that she wanted to do it, or anything of that kind? A.—No.
Q.—After that was done, what happened? A.—Then we had our supper.
Q.—Where. A.—Right where we had stopped.
Q.—In Hopatcong? A.—No, on our way back as we were coming from Lake Hopatcong home, along the roadway.
Q.—What time did you get home? A.—8 o'clock.
Q.—You never saw Mrs. Mills alive again, did you? A.—No.
Q.—After that Wednesday? A.—No.
Q.—You did not see her on Thursday? A.—No.
Q.—You fix this as the 13th of September, 1922, I understand you, the date of the picnic? A.—Yes.

REPORTER ON THE STAND.

Miss Mazie Clemens, a reporter for The World, was the next witness. She testified she had been assigned with other World reporters to cover the story four years ago and that she had arrived in New Brunswick on Sept. 16 at 3:20 P. M. She said that at 9 A. M. the next morning, pursuant to instructions from her superiors, she visited the Hall home. Her examination continued:

Q.—And what if anything did you see when you got up there? A.—When I came up the side path to the house I saw an automobile in front of the house.
Q.—What, if anything, did you notice about what was occurring around the automobile? A.—There was a woman sitting in the front seat.
Q.—Did you know who she was? A.—No. I asked the chauffeur who it was.
Q.—Did you ascertain who she was? A.—Yes.
Q.—Have you seen that woman since? A.—I have.
Q.—Who is she? A.—Mrs. Bearman, a cousin of Mrs. Hall.
Q.—What happened after that? A.—After waiting a few minutes I saw a man come out of the house with a bundle of papers.
Q.—Have you seen him since? A.—Yes.
Q.—Do you know who he is? A.—Henry Carpender.
Q.—What did he do with the bundle of papers he brought out of the house? A.—He put them in the back of the car.
Q.—Did he make one trip or more than one? A.—Three trips.
Q.—What did he carry each time? A.—The first trip he carried a bundle of papers tied up with a string, or what seemed to be a string; and then he went back and brought out some newspapers. The third trip he brought out a box, no top on it, and some papers on the top.
Q.—Did you see what the contents of the box were? A.—Like letters—some letters.
Q.—What did he do with them? A.—Placed them in the back of the car.
Q.—Then what happened? Did he drive off? A.—Then they went away.
Q.—What did you do? Did you try to see Mrs. Hall. A.—Yes; I went and rang the bell.
Q.—Were you able to see her? A.—No.
Q.—How long was it before you could see Mrs. Hall? A.—I never saw Mrs. Hall. I never interviewed Mrs. Hall.

Case Questions Her Carefully.

Senator Case was meticulous in his cross-examination of this witness. He wanted to know the name of the taxicab driver and the exact time and the position of the automobile. The failure of the reporter to halt the man with the packages and ask for light on his identity seemed to puzzle the Senator. He wanted to know if it was the witness's "native modesty" that held back the inquiry. Miss Clemens said she had been sent there merely to interview Mrs. Hall, who was then beginning a long period of voluntary isolation, and that she had held to her purpose.

Senator Case manfully stuck to his wonderment at the failure of the reporter to halt the paper-carrier and demand to be told all about it. An excerpt from his cross-examination follows:

Q.—But you were interested in him? A.—Yes, because it is unusual for a man to take papers out of a house where the participant or somebody connected with a murder lived.
Q.—That has been your observation? A.—It had.
Q.—And that made newspaper stuff? A.—It certainly did; it was a good story.
Q.—But it was not a newspaper story to find out the fact what those papers were? A.—It was interesting to know who the man was that took them out, yes.
Q.—But you were not interested in finding what he was taking out because it made a good newspaper story if you did not know what he was taking out, isn't that so?
Senator Simpson—I object, argumentative. She has described the condition she saw there and I think very properly says it was peculiar to see papers being hurriedly removed from a house where a man lived who had been murdered.
The Court—The question is overruled.
Q.—Why didn't you go and look at them? A.—Jump in the car and look at the papers?
Q.—But you were a newspaper reporter. A.—Well, we have our limitations.
Senator Simpson—I object to that. What is the implication? That because she is a newspaper reporter, she must jump on each automobile she sees?
Q.—You thought it was just not a modest thing to do to go and ask him what he had? A.—Well, I might have asked him if I was near enough to him to say: "What are you taking out?"

Marcus Beekman, a pale man with noseglasses, brother of the late Prosecutor of Somerset County, was the next witness. He told of finding missing evidence in the Hall-Mills case in an office opposite his brother's law office in Somerville. He testified he had turned the evidence over to the State, but when he was called upon to read the receipt given him he was unable to do so, explaining that it had been written in longhand by some one else. Detective Sergeant Richard Burke, who gave the receipt, took the stand and read the list of statements and exhibits which Beekman had turned over.

PATRICK HAYES TESTIFIES.

The last witness was Patrick Hayes, for thirty years Chief of Police of Hoboken and now chief Hudson County detective, a tall, scholarly man with a fine face and snow-white hair. He has been Senator Simpson's right-hand man in the investigation. The direct examination was as follows:

Q.—Did you go to the house of Henry Stevens at Lavalette, New Jersey, at any time during the progress of this investigation? A.—I did, on Aug. 9 this year.
Q.—What time? A.—It was in the afternoon about 2:30, approximately.
Q.—Were you accompanied by the Sheriff of Ocean County? A.—By the Sheriff of Ocean County and the under-Sheriff.
Q.—Will you state what you found there in the way of guns, rifles, ammunition, breeches of guns—what was it you found in the way of such things in the house? A.—In searching on the first floor that day of the residence of Mr. Stevens I saw several guns there and boxes of ammunition and parts of guns.

Cross-examination by Senator Case:

Q.—Who all were there that day, Mr. Hayes?
The Court—In the house?
Senator Case—No, at the place.
A.—When we first appeared there, there was just the Sheriff, myself and his under-Sheriff. Later Mrs. Stevens came and another lady, my belief is her sister, some young man and Mr. Palser, here.
Q.—Any one else there? A.—Why Senator Simpson, my chauffeur, some reporters. There were two or three, I forget how many now.
Q.—When you went in the house, Mr. Stevens, of course, was not there, was he? A.—No.
Q.—And Mrs. Stevens was not there? A.—Not at the time we arrived.
Q.—Not at the time you went into the house, I am talking about? A.—No.
Q.—There was nobody who belonged in the house when you broke in? A.—We did not break in.
Q.—Well, you walked in? A.—Walked in. The Sheriff rang the bell. He had the search warrants.
Q.—Did you have any authority to take anything out and take it away with you? A.—Yes.
Q.—What did you take away with you? A.—I took a number of letters.
Q.—How many? A.—Approximately eighteen or twenty, maybe more.
Q.—I hand you State Exhibit 64 and State Exhibit 63, envelope and letter. Were they one of the letters of the eighteen? A.—This is one of them.
Q.—I hand you State Exhibit 65 and State Exhibit 66, envelope and letter, and ask you if that is another one of the eighteen you found there and took away with you? A.—Yes, that is a letter I took.
Q.—Now, there are sixteen more, are there? A.—Possibly more and possibly less; I cannot exactly state.
Q.—You said eighteen, didn't you? A.—I said eighteen, approximately.
Q.—That is your best estimate? A.—Yes.
Q.—What else besides these eighteen letters did you take away from there? A.—I took a razor and two fish knives—two knives that a fisherman would use.
Q.—Where did you find these letters? A.—In a desk in Mr. Stevens's room—I suppose it is his room.
Q.—You went through the desk? A.—Yes.
Q.—Went through the whole house? A.—Yes.
Q.—And what you got were some letters, a razor and two knives? A.—That is all.
Q.—Now, you have given some testimony, have you this afternoon in this examination, regarding some firearms that you saw in the house at that time, haven't you? A.—I did, yes sir.
Q.—Now, the firearms you did not take away, did you? A.—No.
Q.—You did not think that they were important enough to take away with you? A.—I did not.
Q.—There was nothing to prevent their being taken away with you, was there? A.—No.

Re-direct examination by Senator Simpson:

Q.—I didn't go into the house, did I? I mean, I stayed outside. A.—Yes.
Q.—The Sheriff was the man who went in the house? A.—Yes, he had the search warrant.

The court then adjourned until 10 A. M. tomorrow.

DENIES KNOWING WIFE'S PLAN.

Mills Says He Was Not Aware She Wanted Divorce to Go With Hall.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 16.—James Mills tonight denied that his wife had ever expressed in his presence a desire for a divorce so that she could go to Japan with Dr. Hall, as his sister-in-law, Mrs. Marie Lee, testified.

"If my wife had told me that she wanted to get a divorce so that she could marry some one else," Mr. Mills said, "I would be the last man in the world to stand in her way. I cannot remember her ever saying any such thing."

Mills said his wife often expressed desires to travel and see the world and that she may have mentioned Japan among the places she would like to see, but never intimated to him that she wanted to leave him for the rector or any one else.

Another witness subpoenaed by the State who was a member of the Hall household four years ago is the cook, Marie Gildea. The subpoena was served at the home of a relative at Codwise Avenue and Welton Street today. Miss Gildea said this was the first intimation she had received that her presence was desired at the trial by the prosecution.

When asked concerning the employment of Peter Sommers in the Mack factory at New Brunswick four years ago, J. L. Matthews, the manager, said it was a matter for the prosecutor and the State rather than for a private individual to discuss. He refused to comment further.

PAY CLAUSE UPHELD IN SUBWAY CONTRACT

Justice Levy Finds Labor Law Section on Prevailing Wage Rate Constitutional.

CONTRACTORS TO APPEAL

Court Sees Insertion in Contract of Current Wage Provision "Not Only Proper, but Mandatory."

The constitutionality of the section of the State Labor law providing for payment of the prevailing rate of wages on public works and the legality of the new subway construction contracts interpreting this provision were upheld yesterday in a decision rendered by Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy. Justice Levy denied motions for injunctions restraining the award of the contracts and dismissed the complaints.

The original action, on which the Justice wrote his opinion, had been brought by Frank H. Morse for the Contractors' Association to enjoin the Board of Transportation and the Board of Estimate from contracting for the subway line on West Fifty-third Street from Eighth to Second Avenue. The decision applied with like effect to similar suits brought by Jasper A. Campbell, President of the Central Park West and Columbus Avenue Association.

Strong opposition has been made by contractors to the new form of contract with the "prevailing rate of wages" provision, incorporated for the first time into invitations to bid by the Board of Transportation in the Fifty-third Street contracts. Mr. Morse in his action contended that it would cost the city millions of dollars additional in its subway construction program if the contract were not changed.

John F. Colline, attorney for Mr. Morse, said last evening that he would take an appeal, but would not comment upon Justice Levy's decision because he had not read it in full.

Justice Levy held that the insertion into the contract of the prevailing rate of wages provision was "not only proper but mandatory." He ruled that the board's method of determining the prevailing rate by taking the standard wage within the boundaries of New York City to be "a working rule designed to secure an intelligent application of the statute." He held also that the arbitration clauses of the contract constituted a legitimate way of expediting the work and saving delays.

The opinion said that the New York Court of Appeals had disposed of the argument that the statute was too indefinite to be retained as a definition of public policy when the same point was raised against the emergency rent laws on the ground that what constituted a "reasonable rent" was too uncertain. It was more difficult to determine such rentals than prevailing wages, he said.

According to the Justice, the 1905 amendment to the State Constitution was intended to set at rest all doubt as to the right of the Legislature to "regulate and fix" wages and hours on public works. Wages had not been fixed, he said, because they fluctuated, but it was the duty of public officers to determine the prevailing rate from time to time.

PRODUCES MINUTES OF MORSE MEETINGS

Defense Unexpectedly Offers the Missing Record in Conspiracy Trial.

The minute book of the United States Steamship Company was unexpectedly produced at the Morse trial in Federal Court before Judge Thomas D. Thacher yesterday by counsel for the defense during cross-examination of Nehemiah H. Campbell, a former treasurer. This book with several others, according to Special Attorney General Fletcher Dobyns, had been "missing" for some time prior to the opening of the trial six weeks ago.

Prosecutor Dobyns has introduced in evidence several documents identified as extracts or copies of various statements in the missing books. It was while questioning the witness concerning his statement that he had attended only one or two meetings of the directors that S. Stanwood Mencken, defense counsel, produced the book and asked Mr. Campbell to identify it. Mr. Dobyns obtained its introduction in evidence.

Campbell said that C. W. Morse had received a salary of $3,000 a month from the United States Steamship Company, but that he had only drawn a part of this, the balance remaining on the company's books. He said that Erwin A. Morse had never been paid any salary and that Benjamin W. Morse received a salary of $25,000 from five of the companies, the steamship company paying its share.

The trial will be continued this morning with the cross-examination of Campbell.

N. Y. U. CENTENNIAL DRIVE.

Plan for Weekly Luncheons Told—$47,750,000 Is First Goal.

The work of organizing for the $73,000,000 campaign for New York University, to cover ten or more years, was launched yesterday at a luncheon given by Percy S. Straus, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the university's Centennial Fund.

Mr. Straus said that for some time to come there would be a luncheon meeting every week at which representatives of the 166 trades and professions in the city would be present to work out details of the organization. There is to be a Council of Trades and Professions to "head up" the work, and the Chairman of this body, as well as the chairmen of the various committees which it will supervise, will be announced shortly.

While the ultimate goal of the drive is $73,000,000, it is anticipated that it may take many years to accumulate this sum. The hope of the Centennial Fund is that it will be able to gather about $47,750,000 in the next few years. This sum has been set by Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown as the amount that will be needed within a comparatively short time. He has furnished detailed estimates, which are considered conservative, as the basis for his calculation.

LEACH AND DRIVER TRIED.

Court Directs Sealed Verdict in Action Charging Boy's Death.

First Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach and his chauffeur, Patrolman Frederick Cordes, were named defendants in an action for $25,000 damages each by Wacyl Oryszczyn of 868 Lorimer Street in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday. Oryszczyn charges that the Deputy Commissioner's car struck and killed his eight-year-old son Stephen in front of their home on Nov. 13, 1924.

The police official testified that he was seated in the rear of the car, which was traveling not more than fifteen miles an hour. He said Cordes was driving him to a near-by precinct, and that neither knew there had been an accident until they felt a slight bump. Other witnesses said that the car was going faster than fifteen miles an hour, but could not fix its speed.

Justice Faber told the jury that even if it found that the Deputy Commissioner and his chauffeur were on official business at the time they might still be held personally liable if it was established that Cordes drove recklessly and the Deputy Commissioner did not restrain him. The Court directed a sealed verdict, which will be opened today.

FILIPINO BODY HERE ACCUSES GEN. WOOD

Independence Commission Says Abolition of Control Board Is Illegal Usurpation of Power.

APPEALS TO US FOR JUSTICE

Two Native Members Refuse to Recognize Order and Test of It Is Expected on Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—V. G. Bunuan, Director of the Washington office of the Philippine Commission of Independence, gave to THE TIMES today a long statement attacking Governor General Wood's order dissolving the Philippine Board of Control.

"The action of Governor General Wood in abolishing the Board of Control of corporations owned by the Philippine Government will constitute one of the most regrettable chapters in the history of American occupation of the Philippines," the statement said.

"The dissatisfaction among the Filipino people with the Governor General's conduct is fully justified. Through the Philippine Legislature they have invested approximately $25,000,000 of capital in Government-owned corporations as a means of furthering the economic development of the islands.

"The importance of this Filipino participation in the board may be appreciated when one recalls that since his inauguration as Chief Executive of the Philippines Governor Wood has made attempts to dispose of these companies to big American interests, and the Filipino members of the board, exercising their right to protect the interest of the Filipino people in these corporations, blocked every such attempt.

"By abolishing the board, the Governor General now becomes its dictator and may now do with them as he pleases.

"His action is unwarranted by law and constitutes usurpation of the legislative and judicial functions. Statutes creating the board have been in force and acted upon by executive officers of the Government for more than ten years, the last five during the administration of Governor Wood.

"But the most unfortunate phase of Governor Wood's conduct in this matter is his transmitting to the Legislature the opinions of the acting Attorney General of the United States and the Judge Advocate General, upon which he based his action abolishing the board, immediately after and not before the closing session of the Legislature which, according to the former's ruling, may create another board through which the Filipino people could as heretofore be represented.

"Despite the fact that these opinions were received by him on Nov. 7, two days prior to adjournment of the Legislature, the Governor General saw fit to delay publication of his executive order until Nov. 10, a few hours after adjournment of the Legislature.

"Our faith in America, however, remains unshaken, for the American people are too just and too upright not to listen to the plea of the Filipino people for justice and fair dealing."

Filipinos Refuse to Quit.

MANILA, Nov. 16 (AP).—Manuel Quezon, President of the Senate, and Speaker Roxas of the House of Representatives, members ex-officio of the Insular Board of Control, abolished last week by Governor General Wood, today notified the Chief Executive they would ignore his order.

The legislators announced they would continue to act as members of the board until the law under which it was created is repealed by the Legislature, annulled by Congress or voided by the courts.

A test of the controversy probably will come Saturday when there will be a meeting of the National Coal Company. The Board of Control has authority over the directorate of this company and other Government corporations.

NEW PAPAL NUNCIO RECEIVED BY FRANCE

Mgr. Maglione Presents Credentials to President Doumergue at Elysee Palace.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The new Papal Nuncio, Mgr. Maglione, Archbishop of Cesarea, presented his credentials from the Holy See to President Doumergue this afternoon at a picturesque ceremony in the Elysee Palace. Arrayed in full archiepiscopal robes, the representative of the Pope was received by a military guard of honor, which presented arms with drums rolling, bugles blaring and the band sounding the martial strains of "The Marseillaise" as the diplomat walked up the wide stone staircase leading to the palace. M. de Fouquieres, master of ceremonies, and other high officials of the Presidential staff awaited his arrival.

When received by President Doumergue, Mgr. Maglione handed over his credentials and delivered a short speech, expressing his strong and sincere sentiments of friendship for France, recalling the important part the country had taken in building up Christian civilization.

President Doumergue replied with a warm welcome for the successor to Cardinal Cerretti, who was called other activities at the Vatican, and referred to the closeness of the many interests and aims of the Catholic Church and the people of France, laying especial stress on the common desire of the Holy See and the French authorities to bring civilization to backward countries.

CLOAK MAKERS RATIFY DEAL TO END STRIKE

Manufacturers Act While the Workers Vote on Agreement—Prepare to Reopen the Shops.

While the striking garment workers met yesterday and voted whether to accept or reject the agreement signed by the leaders of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union and the representative of the inside shop manufacturers to end the strike, the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc., met at the Hotel McAlpin and ratified the agreement.

The new contract with the union was accepted by unanimous vote of the 200 manufacturers present. Neither the employers nor the union leaders believe that the rank and file will vote to reject the agreement, and preparations have been made to resume work delayed twenty weeks by the strike. The vote will be announced today, it was said.

Henry H. Finder, President of the Industrial Council, was cheered after he reported the settlement and explained the terms of the new contract, which, he said, would be operative until June 1, 1929. A resolution extending the thanks of the council to its President "for his inspiring and indefatigable service to this organization and to this industry as a whole" was adopted.

The vote of the strikers was being taken all day at polls in charge of groups representing the different locals, and supervised by officials of the international union.

The Quaintness of New England Homesteads Flavors These HOOKED RUGS

EACH one of these rugs has covered the rough flooring of a New England home, felt the warmth of a New England hearth. In the Eighteen Hundreds, while the countryside was struggling for its very existence, many of these rugs could probably have been found turned face down in the bleak cold parlor of the homestead, where the shutters were opened only when the most important events took place; or in front of the fire and the simmering pot, in the one bright part of a room of flickering shadows.

A heritage of the past, these hooked rugs are one of the few remaining bonds between the present and that early American period so colorful to us now. Because of the care they received most of the rugs are in perfect condition. All of them are ready to render years of delight and service.

Their quaint beauty of color and design is in complete harmony with modern home decoration; their use in dining room or hall, sleeping room or study is equally effective. And for Christmas gifts, hardly anything more appropriate could be chosen.

The sizes range from scatter rugs to the 9' x 12' size $10 and the prices start at HOOKED RUGS are the first example of domestic American rug weaving. At the store of W. & J. Sloane you also find an unexcelled selection of modern domestic rugs—Wiltons, Axminsters and Velvets—and all at surprisingly reasonable prices. The range of colors, designs and sizes is exceptionally broad.

DAUGHERTY RETRIAL IS SET FOR JAN. 3

Judge Knox to Hear Conspiracy Action Against Former Attorney General.

BOTH DEFENDANTS ILL

Col. Miller, Also Indicted, Suffering From Injury—His Counsel Asked Change of Judges.

The second trial of Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney General, and Colonel Thomas W. Miller, who was Alien Property Custodian under the Daugherty administration, will start on January 3, before Federal Judge John C. Knox. The indictment charges conspiracy to defraud the Government out of the proper services of the defendants, which resulted, it is alleged in the payment of $441,000 in bribes for the return of $7,000,000 received through the sale of the assests of the American Metal Company, to the Societe Suisse pour Valeurs de Metaux.

Counsel in the case appeared yesterday before Federal Judge Mack, who presided at the first trial. George S. Leisure, an assistant to United States Attorney Buckner, asked that the trial be set down for Dec. 8. Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mr. Daugherty, told the court that his client was ill. Robert S. Johnstone, counsel for Colonel Miller also asked for a later date because of the illness of his client. An injury received by Colonel Miller some months ago, resulting from a fall from a roof at his home in Wilmington, Del., was still troubling him. Mr. Johnstone said it would be a great hardship for him to go through another long trial at as early a date as that desired by the Government.

Judge Mack said he had been informed that an affidavit had been prepared by counsel for Colonel Miller that some judge other than himself, should be chosen to preside at the trial, that this was the right of counsel, and that after a consultation with Judge A. N. Hand, the presiding judge, and Judge Knox it had been decided that the latter should preside.

FORMER DRY AGENT HELD AS BOOTLEGGER

Four Others Accused With Him of Operating Alcohol Plant in Brooklyn.

A former prohibition agent and four other men were held in $5,000 bail each by Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz in Brooklyn yesterday, charged with being associated in the operation of the Decatur Chemical Company with plants at 11 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, and Elizabethport, N. J. The former agent, according to the men who raided the place, is John M. T. Billson of 1,325 East Tenth Street, Brooklyn. He is said to have resigned his Government job last year.

The Herkimer Street plant was raided on Sept. 18 and about 3,000 gallons of denatured alcohol confiscated. Books also were seized and information therein led the agents to Elizabethport, where, they asserted, the alcohol was made drinkable by a process of distillation.

Besides Billson, those arraigned yesterday were Thomas Hughes of 334 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn; Joseph Costello, Ralph and Thomas Caiazzo, all of 341 Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn. Billson and Costello were the alleged proprietors of the Decatur concern, and the others employes. They will be tried next month.

Commenting yesterday on dispatches from Washington that General Andrews had announced a bill would be introduced in Congress to provide for the necessary manufacture of whisky for medicinal purposes, Prohibition Director Mills said "it was about time that something of the sort was done." It was learned at his offices that withdrawals for medicinal purposes by druggists in this district, from Jan. 1 to Oct. 1, totaled 241,793 gallons. It is estimated that in the next three months about 80,000 additional gallons will be withdrawn. However, it was said, the figures have no bearing on a possible shortage as when the supply runs low the liquor is brought in from other districts.

GET $2,674 PAYROLL IN HOLD-UP OF FOUR

Armed Robbers Wait Return of Two Men and Two Girls From Bank—Make Quick Escape.

Four men held up two men and two girls, employes of the Bickford Lunch Company, 362 West Fiftieth Street, at noon yesterday and escaped with $2,674, the weekly payroll, just as the employes were entering the offices on their way back from the bank.

The robbers ran to the corner, where they jumped into a waiting automobile. Their car crashed into an ice truck as they were getting away, smashing a door, but it sped up Ninth Avenue and out of sight, leaving fifty persons at the scene of the hold-up scarcely aware of what had happened. The car was abandoned at Twelfth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street less than half an hour afterward. It was found by detectives.

According to the police, the employes were unarmed. They had obtained the money at the American Trust Company, Broadway and Forty-first Street. Howard Barker, one of the employes, carried it in a leather brief case. He was accompanied by Muriel Dean, Freda Tomey and David Williams. The robbers evidently had been waiting for them at the offices of the company. The four employes arrived in a taxi, and Barker got out first.

As he entered the door one of the robbers forced Barker into a rear room and took the brief case from him, while the other robbers turned their pistols on the two girls and Williams to prevent interference. With the money in their possession the robbers made a speedy escape.

NEW JERSEY COURT GRANTS FEW PAROLES

Less Than 20 of More Than 400 Petitioners Have Been Freed, It Is Announced.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 16.—The Court of Pardons announced today that less than a score of more than 400 petitioners had been paroled from the New Jersey State Prison. The majority were minor offenders, it was pointed out, and in no instance was any one involved in robbery or a hold-up released.

Among those to whom liberty was granted is Harry Carbart of Monmouth County, who was sentenced ten years ago to a life term for murder. He was accused of killing his stepfather and confessed to the crime, but since then it has developed that he acted in defense of his mother.

A parole that will become effective on Dec. 20 will liberate Josephine Berger of Bergen County, who was convicted of manslaughter in 1925. She is nearly 70 years old. Her minimum sentence would have been completed next March.

Others paroled were Daniel G. Roche, former County Collector of Gloucester County, charged with embezzlement of public funds and Harry G. Weaver, sentenced in April, 1924, for a term of eight to twelve years on a series of forgery charges.

More Than the Finest Tobaccos

Smoke a Lucky Strike and you will appreciate its difference from other cigarettes.

To begin with, Lucky Strikes are made from the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. Properly aged. Perfectly blended. Even if we stopped there, Lucky Strikes would rank as the best cigarettes. But in addition, so as to achieve three unique results, Lucky Strike tobacco is toasted for 45 minutes.

This extra process gives you:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

Thus the toasting process is an addition. It adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

The Logical Successor to the Finest Car of Yesterday

Perhaps it is not altogether fair to the older makes of fine cars to try to compare them with the Chrysler Imperial "80". ¶ Standards in everything improve, so it is not surprising that the fine car of yesterday is surpassed by the finer Chrysler of today. ¶ The Imperial "80" is the highest interpretation of Chrysler's unique and novel engineering and manufacturing plan of uncompromising Quality Standardization. ¶ And you need no one to tell you that Chrysler Standardized Quality has initiated something new and vital in motor-car manufacture, the effects of which are apparent everywhere in the industry. ¶ So it is inevitable that the Imperial "80" should be surely and steadily gaining preference not simply with those who demand the best that money can build—but with those who know the best when they find it.

A. A. U. Bars Foreign Invasion Until Olympics; Rangers Capture Hockey Opener

FOREIGN INVASIONS BARRED BY A. A. U.

No European Athletes to Visit U. S. or Americans to Go Abroad Until Olympics.

HULBERT AGAIN PRESIDENT

Re-elected to Third Term as National Convention Ends in Baltimore.

HOUSER'S MARK APPROVED

He Is Recognized as New Discus Record Holder—Cincinnati Gets 1927 Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—A policy against international competition, either by visit of American athletes to foreign countries or tours of America by foreign athletes in any of the sports over which it has jurisdiction, was adopted here this morning on the closing day of the Amateur Athletic Union's annual convention in the Hotel Emerson.

Only one exception was made to the sweeping legislation, which takes effect immediately and which precludes the possibility of the appearance here of any foreign athlete under the jurisdiction of the A. A. U. for the period of time intervening between this date and the Olympic games of 1928, to be held at Amsterdam. The approach of the Olympic games, with its attendant marshaling of America's athletic forces and financial resources, prompted the action, which follows the precedent established in 1923, the year before the Olympic games at Paris.

Scandinavians to Come.

The single exception was made in the case of the team of Scandinavian boxers which is coming to this country and was made because plans for this invasion were launched and approved at the A. A. U. convention in Pittsburgh last year and have progressed to completion now. The Scandinavians will arrive in Boston on Dec. 27 and it is planned to have the invading boxers appear in a tournament in the Hub on Jan. 3. The team has its second American ring engagements in Grand Rapids, Mich., three weeks later and also in New York.

The prohibition will prevent the proposed visits to this country of Paavo Nurmi, Finland's great runner, who was invited for the Drake University games at Des Moines, Iowa, on Dec. 17 and 18, and will bar contemplated visits to this country of Edwin Wide, Sweden; Paul Martin, Switzerland; Dr. Otto Peltzer, Germany, and A. Baraton, France.

These four European stars were sought for competition at the Millrose A. A. games in New York in February. Other proposed international competitions affected were the proposal to have a team of track, swimming and cycling athletes visit South Africa, a team of track stars visit New Zealand, a team of swimmers visit Japan and a team of boxers visit Norway.

The legislation was adopted on the recommendation of the Foreign Relations Committee, of which William C. Prout of Boston is Chairman. The recommendation was adopted unanimously and without debate.

Considers Action Necessary.

"The committee feels at the present time," said Chairman Prout, "and in view of the circumstances attending the visits here of Nurmi and Hoff, that it would not be for the best interests of Amateur Athletic Union competition and activities to encourage or permit participation by our athletes in international competitions here or abroad. Rejecting foreign invitations which have been extended to us, it would not be reasonable to permit foreign athletes to come to this country.

"On the subject I believe the A. A. U. should go further and have more stringent regulations than prevail now to govern all visits to this country of foreign athletes. I believe it should be made compulsory for visiting athletes to arrange their itineraries before the date of sailing for this country, and that their tours after they arrive here be completely under the control of the Amateur Athletic Union."

President Murray Hulbert of the Metropolitan A. A. U. was re-elected to the office of President of the national body by unanimous vote. His name was placed in nomination by Chairman Prout, a former President of the national body, and his candidacy was seconded by Robert S. Weaver, President of the Southern Pacific A. A. U., after the caucus of delegates, held last night, had decided on the withdrawal of the names of other candidates for the office. His re-election gives to President Hulbert the honor of directing the affairs of the organization for the third successive year, a distinction enjoyed heretofore by only two Presidents—Chairman Prout and the late James E. Sullivan.

Frederick W. Rubien of the Metropolitan A. A. U. was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer for his thirteenth year of office.

Avery Brundage of Chicago was elected First Vice President, Dr. M. F. D'Ellseu, Philadelphia, Second Vice President; Charles L. Ornstein of this city Third Vice President and Ernest Smith, San Francisco, Fourth Vice President.

Delegates Are Named.

The number of delegates-at-large was increased from five to ten, and those elected were: Colonel A. G. Mills, New York; Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, New York; Major Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Commander of the Third Corps Area, U. S. A.; Judge Rufus E. Foster, New Orleans; William F. Humphrey, San Francisco; Henry Lapham, Boston; Fred W. Moore, Cambridge, Mass.; Sheldon Clark, Chicago; Colonel Patrick O'Neill, Portland, Ore., and Rear Admiral Henry Robinson, Commander of the Eleventh Naval District, San Diego, Cal.

The surplus fund trustees were re-elected, as follows: Charles A. Dean, Chicago; John T. Taylor, Pittsburgh; and Robert S. Weaver, Los Angeles. Trustees of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Fund were re-elected, as follows: Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney, New York; Joseph B. MacCabe, Boston, and Frederick W. Rubien, New York.

The twenty-seventh annual convention, to be held next November, was awarded to Cincinnati when the delegates from the Niagara A. A. U., bidding for the convention on behalf of Buffalo, withdrew their bid.

Approval was voted for the world's record discus throw of 158 feet 1¾ inches, made by Bud Houser, University of Southern California star, on April 3 last at Palo Alto, Cal. This mark supplants the record of 157 feet 1⅝ inches, at present on the A. A. U. books to the credit of Glenn Hartranft, former Stanford weight man.

Additional championship awards made today were: Weight-lifting championship to Philadelphia, Sept. 5; wrestling, Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, March 24, 25 and 26; senior handball, Detroit; junior handball, New Orleans; basketball, Kansas City; senior volley ball, Buffalo, and junior volley ball, Pittsburgh.

The application of the Panama Canal Zone for separate active membership was approved, as was an alliance between the Union and the A. A. U. of Cuba.

At the meeting of the Board of Managers, which closed the convention this afternoon, President Hulbert, Secretary Rubien and Chairman Prout were elected the three A. A. U. delegates to the convention of the American Olympic Association, which is to be held tomorrow in Washington. Dr. A. L. Lamb of Montreal, Secretary of the Canadian A. A. U., addressed the delegates and expressed the gratification of his A. A. U. body at the harmonious relationship existing between the allied organizations.

Colonel Mills, Joseph B. MacCabe, Judge Mahoney, Gustavus T. Kirby and President P. J. Walsh of the Metropolitan A. A. U. were appointed a committee to prepare and distribute a brochure on the life and work in athletics of the late James E. Sullivan.

Nurmi Sends Finnish Dagger To Be Presented to Coolidge

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—The weapon of defense employed by citizens of Finland against highwaymen will be presented to President Coolidge tomorrow in Washington by Murray Hulbert, President of the A. A. U., as a gift from Paavo Nurmi, Finland's great runner. The gift is a deadly looking knife about four inches long, encased in a scabbard and attached to a chain, which is worn suspended from the neck.

DUFFY'S SPRINT RECORD NOT TO BE RESTORED

New England Delegates End 20-Year Fight to Have Mark Made in 1902 Again Recognized.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—The last of the famous Duffy case in Amateur Athletic Union circles was heard here this afternoon, when after lengthy debate, the Board of Managers of the A. A. U. voted to table any consideration of the application of Arthur F. Duffy of Boston, Georgetown sprint star more than twenty years ago, for recognition of his record of 9 3-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

The rejection ended a lively discussion, and, according to William C. Prout of the New England A. A. U., who, with Richard M. Walsh, another New England delegate, advocated the restoration of the Duffy record, ended definitely an positively, so far as the present New England officers are concerned, the effort to have the record placed back on the books.

Gustavus T. Kirby of the I. C. A. A. A. A., speaking in support of Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney of the Metropolitan A. A. U. against the application, referred to the publication of articles involving Duffy's name years ago, purporting to be an exposé of conditions which revealed amateur athletes as amateurs in name only. Immediately they were uttered, Judge Mahoney submitted a motion that the application for consideration be tabled and the motion was carried over the dissenting votes of Prout and Walsh.

In the debate none of the principals attempted to deny the authenticity of Duffy's performance in 1902. In fact, Judge Mahoney, as the first opponent on the floor against the application, declared it was one of the most legitimate records ever recorded. But the rejection today, like the elimination of the record twenty-one years ago, was made on the grounds that Duffy, when he made the mark, was not an amateur.

A. A. U. LAUDS DAN FERRIS.

Attending 20th Convention, Rubien's Secretary Gets $1,000 Pay Rise.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 16.—The reward for long, faithful and efficient service was paid here this afternoon to Daniel J. Ferris of New York, old Irish-American A. C. athlete and secretary to Fred W. Rubien of the A. A. U.

Celebrating his twentieth consecutive year of attendance at A. A. U. conventions, Ferris heard his praises sung at the meeting of the Board of Managers, and then heard Joseph A. Reilly of the Metropolitan A. A. U. propose an increase of $1,000 a year in salary. The increase was voted unanimously, and then President Hulbert requested and received from the Board of Managers the privilege of making Ferris assistant to the President.

BALDOCK IN RING TONIGHT.

Meets Reynolds at New Manhattan —Other Bouts.

Teddy Baldock, British bantamweight, and Billy Reynolds of Jersey City, will clash in the main bout of six rounds which will feature the reopening of the New Manhattan A. C. tonight. There will be four other six-rounders, with Al (Rube) Goldberg of Harlem and Murray Fuchs, his neighborhood rival in the bantamweight division, meeting in the semi-final. In the other sixes the pairings will be Joe Marino and Joey Knapp, Willie Singer and Bob Nelson and Charlie Caserta and Jimmy Doyle. Two four-round tilts will open the show.

The Starlight Athletic Club will hold its weekly amateur boxing tournament in the Bronx Lyceum tonight with a program of ten special bouts, featuring leading metropolitan boxers. In the main event Henry Nealon of the Paulist A. C. and Pete Cook of the Astoria K. of C., light-heavyweights, will oppose each other.

RANGER SIX WINS DEBUT IN GARDEN

13,000 See Benefit Game Open Season Here as New Team Beats Maroons, 1-0.

GAME IS FIERCELY FOUGHT

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

In a fast and savagely played hockey game the New York Rangers took up their stand last night and defeated the fast traveling Montreal Maroons by the airtight score of 1-0 on the ice in Madison Square Garden before a big crowd of over 13,000 spectators.

The game was for the benefit of the Grosvenor Neighborhood House, but the players displayed no charity toward each other.

There was rough checking and heavy stickwork all through the game, but the main bout was reserved for the final period, when Boucher, the Rangers' speedy centre, and Bill Phillips, right wing of the Maroons, staged a wild battle on the ice and received major penalties of five minutes, to say nothing of a $15 fine each. Boucher was badly cut on the neck by the butt of Phillips's stick during the mêlée and had to leave the game permanently.

It was the opening game of the season and bristled with fast plays and penalties, the latter numbering 18, breaking the American indoor record of 17 hung up last St. Patrick's Day, when the same Maroons and the Americans battled it out.

On their first appearance the Rangers made a distinctly favorable impression. Bunny and Bill Cook, playing the wings, and Boucher at centre, distinguishing themselves by particularly skillful stick work and clever skating. Bunny Cook, a slim, youthful player, displayed some of the most brilliant hockey of the evening and seems to be a player of parts. It fell to Bill, however, to score the only goal of the game, but the pass came from Bunny, which kept it all in the family.

Cheers Greet Players.

The teams got quite a big hand as they paraded out over the ice, accompanied by their respective bands. Strangely enough, the burly Maroons drew more applause during these ceremonies than the new home players. Possibly the crowd remembered that battle of last St. Patrick's Day. The Rangers came on the ice wearing uniforms nothing like so flaring as the star-spangled Americans. The color scheme was a dark blue, with red and white stripes.

After Miss Lois Moran, moving picture star, had presented a brand-new hockey stick to Captain Bill Cook of the Rangers and then faced the puck, hostilities started. Captain Cook grabbed the puck after the face-off for a short run, but was easily blocked by Siebert. Johnson frisked through and tried a long shot, which was easily blocked by Benedict.

Johnson and Nelson Stewart were then both sent off for roughing. A brilliant individual charge by Munro failed by inches. Abel made a nice run, but Bun Cook missed the pass. Boyd was put at right wing for Bill Cook and Abel was sent off for roughing. After a heavy combination drive by Boucher and Bill Cook, the latter missed by inches. The great Benedict successfully withstood a fierce fusillade of the close-up variety.

In a mix-up between Stewart and Ching Johnson the New York player was hooked over the eye by Stewart's stick and was replaced by Murdock. Toward the end of the period the crowd was aroused by a great three-man attack by the Rangers, but they could not get by Benedict and the session ended scoreless.

Fast Attack Fails.

Following the first period a colorful ice ballet, personally conducted by Miss Katy Schmidt diverted the big crowd.

As the players came out Johnson appeared on the ice with a plaster over his left eye. The New York defense man had been badly cut by Stewart's stick and it was necessary to take five stitches in the injury.

Broadbent signalized the opening of the second period by being sent off for cross-checking. Boucher and the Cooks staged a beautiful three-man attack, but Benedict foiled Bun Cook's shot. Bun Cook gave a gorgeous exhibition of stick handling when he took the disk down all alone, but again Benedict flicked it off. Munro's sparkling effort, the whole length of the ice, was barely blocked by Winkler.

A savage attack by Phillips and Stewart missed by inches from in front of the net, and then Lou Marsh, the referee, who operates this season with a dinner bell instead of a whistle, drew a laugh by crashing to the ice together with Rocco. Siebert's vicious drive was well stopped by Winkler. Ching Johnson was playing hard despite his injury and drove down the ice twice on fine plays, but could not crash through.

Bill and Bunny Cook then staged a great brother act, and after a brilliant sally down the ice Bill scored the first goal of the game in 18:37. Bunny passed from the left of the net out to Bill, who had practically an open net as Benedict had fallen when he blocked the preceding shot. The crowd roared as Cook put in the shot, but Benedict was hurt by striking the goal post and had to leave the ice for repairs. The great goalie came back and the period ended without further scoring.

Tally Is Not Allowed.

Beginning the final period, Stewart's long shot was whisked off by Winkler. In a savage drive by Johnson and Boucher, Johnson made a football lunge at Benedict, knocking the goal tender down in the net, but was not penalized. After a wonderful piece of stick work that electrified the crowd, Boucher drew Benedict away and shot the disk in, but the play was not allowed, the referee deciding it was offside.

Harvard Announces Home and Home Series With Pennsylvania to Fill Former Tiger Dates

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16 (AP).—Harvard will resume football relations with the University of Pennsylvania next Fall as a result of the break in athletic relations with Princeton. A two-year home and home series with the Philadelphia team on the dates left open by Princeton's withdrawal from the Big Three was announced here tonight by the athletic authorities.

Harvard will journey to Franklin Field for the first game of the series on Nov. 5, 1927, and the following year Pennsylvania will play here in the Stadium on Nov. 10.

The acquisition of Pennsylvania again completes the Crimson's 1927 schedule, and gives it one of the most formidable lists of opponents a Harvard team has met in years.

Bowing to the demands of the Middle-Western alumni, two teams from that section appear on the schedule. They are Indiana and Purdue. The opening game comes with Vermont on Oct. 1 at Cambridge, followed on successive Saturdays by Purdue, Holy Cross, Dartmouth and Indiana. The one away-from-home game permitted by the Athletic Board will be the Pennsylvania contest, after which Brown and Yale come to Cambridge in that order to close the season.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16 (AP).—Confirming the announcement that the University of Pennsylvania had accepted Harvard's offer for a home-and-home series, the Penn schedule was announced as follows:

Sept. 24, Franklin and Marshall.
Oct. 1, Swarthmore; 8, Brown; 15, University of Chicago; 22, Lehigh; 29, Navy.
Nov. 5, Harvard; 12, Columbia; 24, Cornell.
With the exception of Chicago all of the games will be played on Franklin Field.

HOCKEY AMERICANS CAPTURE OPENER

BOSTON BRUINS TRIUMPH

Defeat Les Canadiens in Rough Fray, 4 to 1, Mantha Drawing 4 of 12 Penalties.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16 (AP).—The New York Americans won the opening game of the local National Hockey League from Pittsburgh here tonight in a bitterly fought game, 1 to 0. Bouchard, a spare, annexed the only tally when he took the disc on a rebound and sent it whirling through Goal Tender Worters's legs. It was a pretty shot, well earned, which proved to be the winning marker.

Neither side appeared at its best offensively or defensively. The smoothness and finesse which go with winning teams were conspicuously absent. Both teams missed numerous shots. Pittsburgh especially showered Goal Tender Forbes in the closing period, but its work only went for naught.

Excitement reigned in the last ten minutes of the final period when the Pirate sextet made a frantic stand to knot the score.

S. Green was carried off the ice in the early part of the game. He suffered an ankle injury.

Boston Bruins Win, 4—1.

BOSTON, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Boston Bruins opened the National Hockey League season here tonight by defeating Les Canadiens of Montreal in a rough encounter over soft ice, 4 to 1. The game was marred by twelve penalties, of which Mantha of Les Canadiens drew four. Three of Boston's goals were scored while he was off the ice.

Carson Cooper scored three of the Boston goals and Galbraith, a newcomer from the West, caged the fourth. Howie Morenz produced the lone Canadien tally unassisted in the second period with a dash the length of the ice.

KID RASH IS DEFEATED.

Loses to Tisch in Feature Bout at 22d Engineers—Setti Wins.

Sammy Tisch, 120, defeated Kid Rash, 119½, in the feature ten-round bout at the Twenty-second Engineers' Armory last night before a crowd of 2,500. Tisch led from the start, and at no time was he closely pressed by Rash. In the six-round semi-final, Carroll Setti, 119, won the decision over Tony Aboba, 120.

Jimmy Valentine and Joe Neives fought six rounds to a draw in a junior lightweight bout, and Jack Moore defeated Roy McMahon in a six-round middleweight battle. Eddie Riley, 131, lost to Willie Cross, also 131, in the first six-rounder. The opening bout, scheduled for four rounds, saw Willie Hohn stop Ruby Jackson after fifty-one seconds of fighting in the second round. The men weighed 131 pounds.

DELANEY BOUT BARRED.

Illinois Rules Reverberri Not a Suitable Opponent for Champion.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP).—The Illinois State Athletic Commission refused today to sanction a ten-round fight between Jack Delaney, light-heavyweight champion, and Orlando Reverberri at the Coliseum, Nov. 26, the eve of the Army-Navy football game.

Chairman John Reighelmer, after investigating Reverberri's record, ruled he would not be a suitable opponent, although the Italian claims the championship of his country.

STEELE BEATS WEINSTOCK.

Takes Special 118-Pound Bout at Fur Dress Salesmen's Show.

Harry Steele beat Joe Weinstock in the special bout on the card of ten amateur bouts held last night at the Manhattan Opera House under the auspices of the Salesmen of Fur Dresses and Dyers. It was through his superior stamina that Steele won. The boys fought in the 118-pound class.

Rose Defeats Menard.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 16 (AP).—Minty Rose of Ireland, a flyweight, outpointed Duke Menard of Biddeford here tonight. Al Bergeron of New Bedford stopped Young Wills of Belfast in the third round.

DORFMAN IS VICTOR IN BOUT AT PIONEER

Gains Early Lead Over Steve Smith of Bridgeport and Weathers Closing Rally.

GREEN WINS IN SEMI-FINAL

Closes With Rush to Down Abad—Murray Layton Triumphs Over Willie O'Connell.

Sammy Dorfman, the clever east side featherweight, gained the decision over Steve Smith, the Bridgeport veteran, in the closely contested feature six-rounder at the Pioneer A. C. last night. Dorfman met sturdy opposition in Smith, who displayed a slashing attack in the final two rounds which caused the victor much trouble. Dorfman weighed 125¾, Smith scaling 126.

Dorfman flashed around Smith in the first four rounds and rolled up a lead which stood him in good stead when Smith's powerful attack cut into his margin in the final two sessions. Sammy landed more frequently, but Smith's punches were the sturdier blows. The crowd, which had been partial to Dorfman in the opening rounds of the fray, swung over to Smith at the close and roundly booed the decision.

Not content with having all of the fighting done in the ring, two of the spectators engaged in a battle of their own. But the Pioneer, which had profited by the outbreak of several weeks ago when Referee Jim Crowley was assaulted by an irate fan, had the police at hand and the disturbers were quickly quelled and ejected.

Johnny Green of Harlem emerged the victor in his six-round semi-final bout with Davey Abad, Panama featherweight. Both boxers resorted to in-fighting through the early part of the going, but from the fourth round some telling punches were delivered at long range.

The Harlemite started the sixth round with an outburst that weakened his rival considerably, giving him an advantage in the going which had been even till the sixth round.

Murray Layton, 126, of the east side, romped away with a victory over Willie O'Connell, 123, of the west side, in their six-rounder. Layton pummeled O'Connell from the start and had him on the verge of a knock-out in the final session.

In the first of the six-rounders Frankie Tropia, 115, of Syracuse gained the decision over Joe Marcienti, 117½, of Brooklyn in a slugging match.

RAND VANQUISHES DAVIDSON IN MATCH

National Squash Champion Wins, 17-14, 15-8, After Hard Battle in First Game.

William Rand of the Harvard Club, former national champion, and J. S. Davidson of the Yale Club met in the feature match of the second day of play in the annual Fall scratch squash tennis tournament at the New York A. C. yesterday.

Davidson gave the Harvard star far more opposition than was expected and it was not until the score had gone to 14-all and a game of 3 had been set that Rand was able to gain the upper hand. Winning the game at 17—15, Rand won much more easily in the second game, which found Davidson played out as a result of the strenuous pace he had maintained. The final score was 17—14, 15—8.

Harvard triumphed over Yale in another of the four matches played. Morris Phinney of the Crimson Class A team disposed of Francis Day of Yale in a match that was similar to the first. The two players were evenly matched for the first game, which Phinney won at 17—15, but Day slumped badly in the second and got only 4 points.

Otis L. Guernsey, hard-hitting Yale star, and B. H. O'Connor of the Crescent A. C. were the winners of the two other matches. Guernsey eliminated L. A. Sigaud of Gramercy Park, while O'Connor put out R. J. Larner of Yale.

Thomas R. Coward of Yale, former national champion, failed to put in an appearance and was defaulted. Three other defaults were registered during the day.

The summaries:

First Round—B. H. Connor, Crescent, defeated R. J. Larner, Yale, 15—11, 15—10; Otis L. Guernsey, Yale, defeated L. A. Sigaud, Gramercy, 15—6, 15—12; H. D. Chaplin, Princeton, won from J. L. Kerbeck, Columbia, by default; W. E. Chambers, N. Y. A. C., won from Milton Baron, City A. C., by default; Harold R. Mixsell, Princeton won from G. V. Kaufman, Shelton, by default; R. E. Hughes, N. Y. A. C., won from Thomas R. Coward, Yale, by default; William Rand Jr., Harvard, defeated J. S. Davidson, Yale, 17—14, 15—8. Second Round—Morris Phinney, Harvard, defeated Francis Day, Yale, 17—15, 15—4.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Ralph Greenleaf, Philadelphia cue wizard, and Erwin Rudolph, Chicago ace, will clash for the world's pocket billiard title of 1926 tomorrow. That was decided tonight in the day's closing game at the Elks Club when Greenleaf handed Frank Taberski, 1925 champion, one of the worst defeats he has ever suffered, winning by 125 to 0. The victory tied Greenleaf with Rudolph for the top of the standings, each having seven victories and one loss.

Greenleaf took the lead in the opening inning. Taberski played safe to start, but one ball projected slightly and Ralph picked it off and ran 27. In the sixth inning incidents were similar, Taberski playing safe while Greenleaf ran off 41 balls, failing at the end of a cut shot to one of the corner pockets.

Greenleaf virtually clinched the match in the next inning. Taberski had tried to get the ball left at the edge of the pocket by Greenleaf's last shot, but, while touching it, failed to drop it in. Ralph clipped it into the pocket and ran 56 in a wonderful display of accurate cueing, three balls and he would have run out, but he missed an easy cushion shot from the upper to lower rails.

1,500 See Match.

About 1,500 persons jammed the ballroom for the night matches, showing some of the most marked partisanship ever witnessed at a title struggle.

Greenleaf and Rudolph meet tomorrow night in the final of the tournament. Greenleaf lost last night to Harry Oswald by 125 to 107. Rudolph's lone defeat was at the hands of Tom Hueston, old-time champion, who defeated him, 125 to 71.

Tom Hueston's defeat of Arthur Woods by 125 to 0 and Pasquale Natalie's triumph over Harry Oswald, 125 to 108 were the surprising results of the afternoon matches.

Erwin Rudolph, however, defeated Natalie in the first match tonight, 125 to 91. The Chicago player was in splendid form, gaining a lead of 106 to 23 in the first seven innings. In the next inning Natalie ran 53, his best of the match, but was unable to overtake his opponent, who ran out his string in the twenty-fourth inning. Rudolph's high run was 32 and his average 5 5-24. Natalie averaged 3 19-24.

The whitewashing handed Woods was one of the most severe setbacks in the history of championship tournament play, as he really owed twelve balls when play ended, while Natalie's triumph over Oswald, who early this morning beat Ralph Greenleaf, 125 to 107, in 53 innings, also was unexpected.

Natalie, who has been suffering with neuritis in his left shoulder and neck, contemplated forfeiting his afternoon game with Oswald in order to be rested for the contest with Rudolph tonight. However, he was informed by the Tournament Committee that if he forfeited to Oswald he was out of the tourney.

Woods Fares Poorly.

Woods fared poorly against Hueston, who recently has surprised by the excellence of his playing. In fact, Woods scored in only one inning, the sixth when he got ten balls. However, he scratched in the fifth and was credited with 9. Hueston ran 32 in the fifth inning, to gain a margin of 47 to 9.

Woods during the match devoted most of his time to safety play, as Hueston, following his runs, usually played safe. The fourteenth inning found Hueston in good position with a lead of 103 to 7. Three consecutive scratches that caused the forfeiting of 16 balls put Woods in a rather unique position, from which he was unable to extricate himself. He owed 11 points and, as he scratched in the twenty-second, he was in arrears 12 points when Hueston ran out.

CUTLER WIDENS HIS LEAD.

Takes Second Block From Lewis and Now Tops Rival, 600-297.

Albert Cutler, former junior champion, was the winner last night at the Claridge Academy in the second night's play against J. M. Lewis in their special handicap 18.2 balkline match, in which Cutler is playing for 1,200 against 900 for Lewis. Cutler's score was 400 to 186 for Lewis. The match lasted seventeen innings, and was featured by a high run of 166 by Cutler. This is the second time in the match that Cutler has run 166. Lewis's high run was 34.

The score at the end of the second block is Cutler 600, Lewis 297.

COPULOS BEATS ST. JEAN.

Wins by 50-41 and 50-24 in Two Blocks of 600-Point Match.

Gus Copulos won both games from Andrew St. Jean in their special 600-point three-cushion match at the Strand Billiard Academy yesterday. In the afternoon Copulos won, 50 to 41, in 61 innings. His high run was eight and St. Jean's five. At night Copulos won by 50 to 24 in 45 innings. He made a high run of 11 to one of 3 for St. Jean.

Athletics Release Wambsganss, World Series Triple Play Hero

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Bill Wambsganss, utility infielder of the Athletics, has been released, according to an announcement today by Manager Connie Mack. He joined the Mackmen last Spring after playing with the Red Sox and Indians. "With Max Bishop and Chick Galloway as substitutes next year we will not need Wamby," said Mack. Mack has not seen Wambsganss since the close of last season and does not know his plans for 1927. The veteran lives in Lakewood, Ohio. He is the only player who has ever made an unassisted triple play in a world's series, having performed the feat for Cleveland against Brooklyn in 1920.

BOXING BODY LIFTS ITS BAN ON CLARKE

Reverses Stand and Will Sanction World's Flyweight Title Bout Here With La Barba.

RICKARD AFTER SHARKEY

Seeks Ruling on Status of Fugazy's Contract With Bostonian and Berlenbach.

Reversing a stand it took a week ago, the State Athletic Commission yesterday placed its stamp of approval on Elky Clarke, British flyweight champion, and informed Tex Rickard that it would sanction a bout in Madison Square Garden this Winter between the Briton and Fidel LaBarba, the American titleholder, for the world's flyweight championship. At its previous meeting the board had peremptorily announced it would not approve of a meeting between Clarke and LaBarba until the British fighter had met some other American in a trial bout to establish his merit, recommending Newsboy Brown as a likely opponent.

The action of the board yesterday came after Jess McMahon, matchmaker for Rickard, had placed before the commission a cable from Peggy Bettinson, head of the National Sporting Club in London, in which the latter unqualifiedly endorsed Clarke as a fit opponent for a world's championship fight. The cable had come as a reply to a query from Rickard, who had sought Clarke's status abroad, and the message read: "Elky Clarke is a fit opponent for any one. He is our best champion."

Armed with this document, McMahon experienced surprisingly little difficulty in getting the case reopened, the board apparently accepted the note at its face value and without further ado voted approval of a Clarke-LaBarba title bout. McMahon announced that the championship fight would be held in the Garden on Jan. 21. He said he expected Clarke to sail for America on Dec. 11.

Rickard After Bout.

McMahon also asked for a showdown on the proposed bout between Paul Berlenbach and Jack Sharkey which Rickard would like to stage in the Garden in January. As the case now stands, both fighters are tied up by agreements with Humbert Fugazy to sign up with no other promoter until after Feb. 1, although Fugazy himself has not yet been able to announce definitely his plans for an indoor arena. Rickard is keen to hold the fight before that date. The fighters say they are impartial in the matter. They do not want to violate their signed agreement with Fugazy, but they do want to fight. The board reserved decision in the case, stating that an opinion on the validity of the Fugazy agreements probably will be rendered at the next meeting.

Charley Cardio, manager of Red Chapman, the Boston featherweight, was ordered to appear at the next meeting to declare himself on whether Chapman will meet Benny Bass of Philadelphia. The board has recommended this bout for the Garden as a means of definitely settling the featherweight championship. The commission has announced that if the winner of this match meets Honeyboy Finnegan, who conquered Chick Suggs in Boston Monday night, it will recognize that victor as the undisputed featherweight titleholder.

Pendleton Complains.

The board also approved a request from the Connecticut Boxing Commission, which has a working agreement with the New York body, to permit Harry Persson, under suspension here, to box Pat McCarthy at Hartford, Conn. The request was granted when it was learned that the Hartford match had been signed up prior to Persson's suspension here for fouling Bud Gorman.

Nat Pendleton, the wrestler, appeared before the board with a complaint against Jack Curley, mat promoter, charging that the latter had imported three foreign grapplers to this country, each claiming to be the European champion, when, as a matter of fact, he said, this title belonged to him. Curley appeared to deny the charges and also that he was showing any favoritism to foreign wrestlers, stating he was ready to match Pendleton against any of the top-notch matmen. After a lengthy debate wrestler and promoter settled their differences and marched out chatting amicably.

GROVE WINS HIS 15TH BOUT.

Clark House Boxer Beats Lynch on Points at Hunts Point A. C.

Izzy Grove of the Clark House scored his fifteenth straight victory when he earned the decision over Mike Lynch, unattached, in three rounds at the Hunts Point A. C. amateur show last night.

The summaries:

155-Pound Class—Izzy Grove, Clark House, defeated Mike Lynch, unattached, 3 rounds.
110-Pound Class—Oscar Golden, Seward Gymnasium, defeated Jack Winakur, Educational Alliance, 2 rounds.

NICHOLS OPPOSES YACHT RULE CHANGE

N. Y. Y. C. Commodore Declares for Universal System as Against International.

ISSUE IS UP TOMORROW

North American Yacht Union to Consider Question—Gives Views in Statement.

Commodore George Nichols of the New York Yacht Club has placed himself on record as upholding the Universal Rule, which governs the construction of American racing yachts. In a statement yesterday for THE NEW YORK TIMES, issued on the eve of the meeting of the North American Yacht Racing Union, Commodore Nichols opposes any change in the present rule—a change which is to be proposed at the meeting of the Yacht Racing Union.

The meeting of the Union, which favors a change from the Universal to the International Rule, which governs construction in Great Britain and on the Continent, will be held tomorrow at the Yale Club. The change, if made, would apply to yachts of Class P and under, vessels of 35 feet and under waterline length. The New York Yacht Club is not a member of the North American Union, which was formed last year.

The statement of Commodore Nichols follows:

Text of the Statement.

I fundamentally disagree with the opinion that the new boats developed in the R Class are undesirable, or that continued "over-building" is undesirable. The present rule is simple: (1) You are allowed a fixed driving power (sail area). (2) In order that your yacht may not be a skimming dish, her weight must bear a fixed relation to her water-line length. If you fall short of weight, you are penalized by having your driving power reduced.

Originally you were allowed to take excess weight and get credit for it in increased driving power. But this was afterward stopped, as it was thought it would produce a vessel too wide and deep; fast in light weather and smooth water, but slow and hard to steer in a breeze.

Queen Mab, Vagrant and the New York Yacht Club 40-footers are examples of vessels having excess weight. If the latter were allowed credit for this excess weight (as Mr. Herreshoff thinks they should be) Carolina (N. Y. Y. C. 50's) would fear them very much on a Summer day on Long Island Sound. But off Newport, not at all. If you have ever tried to sail one of these boats to windward in a breeze and sea, you know what a heart-breaking job it is.

Type an Experiment.

To return to Class R, I think a majority of the builders in this class regard it as a laboratory, and build new boats for the fun of trying something new, not because they can't win with their old ones. Messrs. C. F. Adams, C. H. W. Foster, Donald Cowl, Junius Morgan are examples. Mr. Adams, since he started racing in the class, has, I think, lost only two championships. He built one failure and raced her an extra season to try improvements. Had she been a success, he would have sold her after one year.

So far as the development of the R Class is concerned, this spirit, I think, is a good thing, and in practice it allows men who are not financially able to build, to buy better boats than they could otherwise afford, and to race them with every chance of winning.

It is claimed that the new boats are too long and narrow. They are not much narrower in feet and inches than the old ones; but they are longer and deeper (the ratio of weight to length must be maintained) and of more easily driven form. If not the last, they cannot be faster, as the advocates of the rule claim they are. I like them, but those who do not can build boats under the present rule wider, shallower, shorter, with an equal chance of winning. See Bobcat this year.

My first keel boat was built in 1897. She carried 600 square feet of sail, was just over 7 feet wide and 21 feet waterline length, and weighed about 7,000 pounds. She and her type were the best sailboats of their day. Game-Cock, to name an R boat whose exact dimensions I know, carries 580 square feet of sail, is 7 feet 6 inches wide, 25 feet 3 inches waterline length, weighs about 11,500 pounds. Game-Cock would beat the old boat handsomely any day there was wind enough to get around the course in a reasonable time limit. Mr. Crane tried to make an R boat out of his six-meter Red Head, similar in dimensions to my boat in 1897. It took three races to show him how hopeless it was.

Will any one say there has been no progress in design between the raceabouts of 1897 and the R boats of 1926? If so, why kill the free rule which made this progress possible? The raceabouts were built under a restricted rule similar in this principle to the English rule.

English Rule Set in 1920.

The present English (International) rule was devised in 1920. In 1919 Sir William Burton and Major Heckstall-Smith came to this country and saw our yachts. They went home and spoke for our rule in the International Conference. They were beaten by the Continental countries, and the best they could do was to get a restricted rule that would perpetuate the general proportions and relationships between weight and sail of our yachts of that date.

There is nothing against building to the restrictions of the international rule when any one desires to do so. Except in the smaller classes where the scantling and cabin requirements are not up to ours (and this has nothing to do with measurement), a boat built to that rule could race here and would in most cases measure favorably.

We have today the oldest active rule in the world and the only one that has not been successfully beaten—because there is nothing in it to beat. We measure driving power. We have stood at the head of the yachting world for seventy-five years because of our thoroughness, initiative and the freedom our rules have given us to exercise these qualities.

Let those who want one-design boats build them as such and get the cheaper cost that goes with quantity production; but don't let us adopt a rule that stops progress and forces us to produce yachts that are one-design in everything but name.

SARATOGA MAJE SECOND

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 16.—With deep slop under foot and a drizzle falling this afternoon the second day of the Autumn meeting of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association here offered few attractions for the small body of spectators that journeyed from Baltimore and Washington. The card was riddled by scratches, there was no stake on the program and the racing as a whole was uninteresting.

Place of honor on the card was given to the Bay Ridge Purse, a gallop of a mile and seventy yards for horses of all ages which had not won two races. Just half of the overnight entry was scratched out and the Flamingo Farm's Alopex, with Abel up, was made the choice of the five that faced the barrier. The English-bred son of White Magic and Alope ran to expectations, coming home a winner by a length and a half over P. F. Joyce's Saratoga Maje, which also carried a lot of the public money.

Samuel Ross's three-year-old filly Duration made the early pace, with Saratoga Maje in close attendance, Abel holding Alopex off the pace. On the turn for home Saratoga Maje raced wide, Alopex coming on to win without difficulty. The filly tired in the going and took third money five lengths back of the Joyce colt. Alopex packed top weight of 114 pounds and ran the race in 1:52. He paid $4.60 for each $2 ticket in the mutuels.

Players Like Beaming.

Harry Payne Whitney's filly Beaming was made the public choice in the six-furlongs dash of the Advance Purse for the juveniles, but the daughter of Whisk Broom II was beaten at the wire by J. P. McGovern's Poly, which also received a good play.

Mergler had Poly out in front from the rise of the barrier. Beaming was in close attendance at first until Catrone took back, evidently trying to find better going. Chalmers then took the Flamingo Farm's Contemplate up into the contention and the colt ran a good race.

Around the turn for home Catrone took Beaming wide and she lost a lot of ground. She came on very fast in the drive to the wire, but just failed to make the grade, Poly winning by a head. Contemplate lasted to take third money. The winner paid $9.60 for each $2, running the race in 1:16 1-5 under 106 pounds.

The claiming race over the mile and a furlong route furnished one of the best contests of the afternoon and a close finish in which the Ascot Stable's three-year-old English-bred colt Gratteur gained a head decision over W. Fenwick's Ensile.

Ensile Out in Front.

Thomas had Ensile out in front for a considerable part of the journey, after which Force took Gratteur into the lead and he held it in the hard drive to the wire. Ensile had a length on Maxie, which took third money by a head from Hoi Polloi. The winner paid $7.30 in the mutuels.

George W. Loft's filly Duto had run only three times, while H. R. Dulaney's filly Single Star was making her racing début in the six furlongs dash for maiden two-year-olds, which opened the afternoon program; but they made a two-horse race out of it, leaving the other eight youngsters to take their mud throughout the journey. Both were outsiders, the winner paying $16.10, while Single Star, in the field, paid $30.60 for the place and $32.60 to show. Valdex, which finished third, also was a field horse.

Doto and Single Star fought a duel all the way, Steve O'Donnell going to the whip in the final sixteenth on the former and drawing out to win by a length and a half. Valdex, at the head of the second division, was five lengths back. Roto splashed through the slop in 1:16 2-5 under her 115 pounds.

Mrs. A. H. Swenke's old Superman gelding Red Wingfield is right at home here and a soft track feels good to him. He was held over from yesterday and the players flocked to him as if there was nothing else in the claiming event at a mile and a sixteenth for the cheap platers.

Red Wingfield kicked his mud in the faces of all opposition almost from the rise of the barrier. Chalmers was up and had the veteran in hand all the way, winning by a wide margin.

Pitt and Nebraska Arrange Series to Begin Next Year

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16 (AP).—Charles Bowser, football coach at Grove City College, will be first assistant to Jock Sutherland, head coach at the University of Pittsburgh next year. He will succeed Guy M. Williamson, resigned. Bowser's team furnished one of Saturday's upsets when Grove City defeated Bo McMillin's Geneva eleven. Announcement also was made that Pitt and Nebraska had entered into a home-and-home football agreement, the first game to be played Oct. 15, 1927, at Lincoln, Neb.

ATTICA EASY VICTOR IN LEXINGTON DASH

Shows Way to Little Cyn by 4 Lengths in Leland Hotel Purse Over Heavy Track.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 16.—C. E. Durnell's Attica easily led six other two-year-old fillies to the wire in the Leland Hotel Purse, a short six-furlong dash, over a heavy track here today. Little Cyn, a half sister of Zev, trailed the winner home by four lengths, while Candy Light took the show, a length further back. Attica, a clever mudder, quickly drew into a safe lead at the start and was never threatened. The winner paid $10.80 for $2.

CORNELL PRACTICES IN BASEBALL CAGE

Heavy Rains Flood Fields, but Plays Are Rehearsed Inside—Entire Varsity Is Fit.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Driving rains which fell all day compelled Coach Dobie to transfer Cornell's football practice into the baseball cage this afternoon. The fields were flooded, and even under most favorable conditions they will not be fit to play on for several days.

The whole varsity squad was out for duty this evening, but some of the regulars worked only in the signal drill and were dismissed after a short session. Those excused early were Butterfield, Isaly and Gassner. Anderson, Munns, Rapuano, Carey and Anderson were in their regular line places, while the sophomore ends, Schoales and Wickham, worked first.

The team spent most of its time ironing out rough spots which cropped out against Dartmouth. Coach Dobie gave the ends special attention because, realizing that the fast Penn backs will be a constant threat at the wings, Cornell also started slow drills in formations to be used against Penn. If there is a plan to switch the line-up before the Penn game, there was no evidence of it today. Butterfield, Isaly, Balderston and Gassner started behind the line, and Hoekelman, Beck, Carpenter and Molinet also saw service.

WRITERS TO DINE FEB. 6.

Landis Will Attend Affair Set for Commodore—Daley Re-elected.

The date for the fourth annual dinner of the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association was set for Sunday evening, Feb. 6, at a meeting of the chapter yesterday. The East Ball Room of the Hotel Commodore again will be the scene of the affair. Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis will be one of the guests of honor.

At yesterday's meeting George W. Daley was re-elected President of the local chapter and William J. Slocum Secretary-Treasurer.

PENN VARSITY SQUAD DRILLS IN DOWNPOUR

Every Regular Reports for First Practice in Cornell Drive—Scull in Back Field.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—With the rain pouring down on Franklin Field, the Penn varsity went through an hour's workout this afternoon, the first practice since the Columbia game. The session marked the start of preparations for Cornell on Thanksgiving Day.

Every varsity man was out, including Paul Scull, Al Wascolonis, Don Singer and Charley Rogers, who have been nursing minor injuries for some time. Scull had no chance to practice drop kicking on the soggy turf, but he took his turn in the back field and showed a lot of pep. Wascolonis's injured knee is again strong, while Singer's weak ankles are improving daily.

Rogers, Penn's versatile back, expects to put on about five or six pounds before the Cornell game. He has been underweight for the last three big games, weighing as low as 153. Paul Murphy, whose right arm was very sore in the Columbia game last week, interfering with his passes, is feeling much better.

The coaches have mapped out an attack that will not be built entirely on the "hidden ball" and Gil Dobie's eleven can expect a varied offense with the Penn backs speeded up.

NO LETTERS FOR CHICAGO?

Stagg Feels Men Must Win at Least One Conference Game.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP).—The University of Chicago football team, which has failed to win a Conference game this year, and so far has scored only seven points in four Conference starts, has something more to worry about.

The members may not get their "C's." It was reported today that before facing Northwestern last Saturday, Coach A. A. Stagg had told his team that none of them had made a showing warranting the awarding of a letter in games with Purdue, Ohio and Illinois, and added that he would base the awarding of letters on the showing made against Northwestern. The disastrous defeat, the team figures, hasn't helped its chances much.

Three years ago when the baseball team failed to win a Conference game Stagg refused to award a "C."

TWO YALE ELEVENS WORK IN DOWNPOUR

Jones Welcomes Chance to Keep Eli Players Handling Wet and Muddy Ball.

NO CHANGES IN LINE-UP

New Haven Odds Now Favor Yale at 5 to 4—Twenty Men Won Letters in Princeton Game.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16.—Yale football coaches today welcomed a pouring rain because it allowed them to fortify themselves against a repetition of the muddy field and downpour in which their games with Harvard were played in 1923 and 1924.

Instead of taking the squad indoors for practice, Tad Jones sent the first and second elevens through half an hour of dummy drill in the rain. The players were kept handling a ball which dripped with mud and rain and were coached on every variety of football, punting, passing and falling on a fumbled, soggy oval being rehearsed repeatedly.

Although no line-up changes were ordered today, the coaches said tonight that the back field situation is by no means settled. Captain Bunnell probably will play the entire game at quarterback, but the occupants of the halfback positions will be picked after the plays are decided upon at a coaching council Friday night.

Noble and Hoben Start.

Today the coaches used Noble and Hoben to start the signal rehearsal, but switched to Holabird and Falling for fully half the drill.

Kline probably will be unable to play the entire game at fullback and there is a possibility that Johnny Cox will be started.

No rush line changes are planned. Although Bill Vandegrift today donned his uniform for the first time since he was injured five weeks ago, there is little chance of his being used for even a scoring emergency, but Burt Benton probably will be started against Harvard. Today Berry Ryan alternated with him.

Al Look has been decided upon for the snapback position, although he played his first game in a Yale uniform at Princeton. He and Harvey, who has been centre rush all the Fall, alternated in today's practice.

Mass Meeting Tonight.

The students will hold a mass meeting in the Woolsey Hall Auditorium tomorrow night. The chief speaker will be Jack Cates, head coach at Bowdoin, for three years all-American end at Yale with Tad Jones and later Navy coach. Cates has been endorsed by a large number of alumni as the candidate for athletic director to succeed Jack Blossom, who retired last June, but the Yale management has announced that the position will not be filled until next Fall.

Yale's confidence in its eleven was today reflected in an increase in the betting odds to 5 to 4 favoring Yale.

In the Princeton game seven Yale men earned their "Y's" for the first time and thirteen won their letter for the second or third time.

Look, centre, and Ryan, tackle, were the only linesmen to receive their awards against the Tiger, while the other five new letter men are backfield players—Hoben, Holabird, Goodwine, Brandenburg and Cox. Wortham, who substituted in the line, did not play last season, but got his "Y" the previous year. Guy Richards, Carl Sturhahn, Captain Bunnell, Bill Kline, Larry Noble and Jerry Wadsworth have now won three major "Y's" on the gridiron.

HARVARD PRACTICE IS KEPT A SECRET

Coaches Withhold Varsity Line-Up, Supposedly Experimenting With Several Shifts.

MASS MEETING TONIGHT

Announcement of Changes Expected Then—Yale Plays Tried in Fast Workout.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—Harvard's secret practice was so secret today that when it was over the coaches would not even give out the first team line-up. The mystery, if there is one, will be solved tomorrow before the Harvard student mass meeting.

It probably amounts to little more than that the coaches are trying out a shift or two from their most recent line-ups at the start. There are five ends, any two of whom may start, although Meadows and Strong would naturally have the call.

Captain Coady and Pratt are fixtures at tackle, but with Stewart not in trim and some doubt existing about Kilgour's condition, there may be a change at guard, with Goodwin slated for one place or the other. It has been hinted that Gamache might be switched back to end and Bell started in the back field.

With Putnam's recent falling off, Stafford's stock has taken a positive late-season rise for starting quarterback. Al Miller's work has declined steadily of late, and this brings Eben Clark and possibly Chauncey into the limelight as possible first stringers Saturday. Chauncey stands as Harvard's best kicker and a very good passer. Clark is the best line driver. Sayles alone of the previous first run of backs appear to be sure of being on the field at the kick-off Saturday.

Today's work was not very long, but it was fast. The work-out comprised a thorough defensive drill in dummy scrimmage against the old and new Yale plays and formations. The scrubs, lining up as they will probably start against the Yale scrubs Saturday, stood up well before the first and second varsities on the offense.

The doctors reiterate that for the first time in years Harvard will have every regular and first and second substitute in shape for Saturday.

Tonight there will be a mass meeting for the students at the Harvard Union, at which Coach Horween, Captain Coady and Bill Blake will speak.

Journey West to Battle Nebraska Starts for N. Y. U. Today

N. Y. U. TRIP WEST UNDER WAY TODAY

Unbeaten Violet Team Leaves This Afternoon to Face Nebraska at Lincoln.

FINAL DRILL AT OHIO FIELD

Eleven Stages Line Scrimmage and Sends Backs Through Trick Plays for Wind-Up to Campaign.

The New York University eleven ended in the rain yesterday in the final Ohio Field practice session of its 1926 campaign. Despite the downpour, Chick Meehan sent his warriors through a scrimmage which was conducted for the most part to the line. The regular backs went through a rehearsal of new plays which are to be used for the first time this season against the Cornhuskers.

Meehan is relying on his line to stave off Nebraska thrusts, and with the light formations which have been rehearsed for this one game he has strong hopes of toppling over the powerful Cornhuskers and thus achieving an undefeated campaign. The Violet defense has only had 10 points scored against it all year. Seven were by West Virginia Wesleyan and the 3 resulting tallies by Fordham.

Backs Drill Separately.

In yesterday's short scrimmage the regulars lined up with Otto Loss and Mike Riordan at the ends, John Miller and Al Lassman at the tackles and John Runyan and Dave Skudin at the guards, Bob Dunn was at centre. The varsity backs did not take part in the line, but rehearsed their manoeuvres apart from the rest.

A tremendous send-off is planned for the players this afternoon at the Highbridge station, where the squad will entrain on its long journey. The entire undergraduate body will parade from University Heights to the depot. The march, which is scheduled for 4:45 o'clock, is expected to have several thousand undergraduates in its ranks.

Game to Be Broadcast.

It was announced yesterday that the N. Y. U.-Nebraska game would be broadcast Saturday in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, where alumni will gather to listen to the progress of the Violet in its tussle with the Cornhuskers. At University Heights a play-by-play description of the game will be portrayed for the benefit of the undergraduates.

Yesterday's practice was the last in New York, and the Violet will not drill again until tomorrow, when the team will make use of Stagg Field in Chicago for a brief workout. On the following day they will use the Nebraska gridiron, as they will arrive in Lincoln early Friday morning.

SCALPERS FALSIFY LOCATION OF SEATS

Mixed Box Seats for the Army-Navy Game Prove to Be in Rear Rows.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Scalpers not only have raised the price of tickets to the Army-Navy football game 300 per cent and more, but are misrepresenting the location and the original price of the seats, it was stated today.

A reporter telephoned one scalper and asked what seats could be obtained.

"We have some very good box seats at $20 each. They sold originally for $6," the clerk said.

The reporter visited the office and asked the clerk to point out the location of the seats on the chart. The clerk pointed to Section 38 of Soldier Field. Upon being told that Section 38 was a section and not a box, the clerk reiterated that it was a "box." Section 38 cannot even boast of being behind a box, so far is it from the scene of action. It is in the extreme northeast corner of the field. The seats in it were sold originally by the South Park Board for $10 instead of $15.

A similar inquiry for seats was made at another ticket agency. A clerk said tickets would be available in a few days at from $60 to $75 each.

"That is the 'going price' now and that is what we will ask," declared the young lady on duty.

SPENCER IS BEATEN TWICE.

Loses to Nathan and Doherty in 3-Cushion Tourney at Doyle's.

Three games were played last night in the three-cushion handicap tournament in progress at Doyle's Billiard Academy. The first two games were played in the fifth section and the last in the fourth section. Harold Spencer was the loser in both of the fifth section games, falling before Henry Nathan, 25 to 24, in forty innings, and losing to George Doherty, 25 to 15, in thirty-eight innings. All of the players made high runs of three. In the fourth section game Leo Meighs won from Thomas Harper, 25 to 19, in forty-five innings. Marks had a high run of four as against three for Harper.

U. S. Pros Accept Challenge Of British for Team Match

First Mass Invasion From England Will Be Made by Eight Golfers in Connection With Open Championship—Contest to Be Greatest International Event of Kind Here.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

International golf fur should fly at the Oakmont Country Club next year as a result of action taken by the P. G. A. here yesterday. One of the last things that the professionals did before their annual meeting came to a close was to accept the challenge of the British golfers for a team match to be played either prior to or after the 1927 open championship, which is to be staged at Bill Fownes'e club in Pittsburgh. Whether it le just before or just after makes little difference for in either case the visitors will be here for the championship event.

Some time ago Secretary P. T. Perrins of the British P. G. A. forwarded a challenge for such a match and yesterday the delegates to the annual meeting of the American body voted its acceptance, with the stipulation that there should be eight players on each side and that the match be a 72-hole event, thirty-six holes to be played in singles and thirty-six in four-ball foursomes. The financial details, dates, &c., will not be decided on until a reply is received from the British.

The sending of eight men to this country for a match of this nature will give to the Oakmont championship the greatest international touch in the history of American professional golf. Up until now the British have attacked either singly or in pairs. Mass attacks have been made only by representatives from this side. America has been sending its professionals to England in bulk ever since 1921, when the first organized team attempt was made to gain the British open title. It was successful, too. Jock Hutchinson winning the event and setting a precedent that has been followed by four victories in five championships.

Not until this year, however, was there anything like a formal team competition in connection with the trip. When the Americans went over this year Hagen captained a team that played a British side for the Ryder trophy, the match resulting in a one-sided victory for the British.

Jack Malley, professional at the Annandale Club, Pasadena, who is head of the Southern California P. G. A., which has been responsible to a large degree in bringing about the schedule of open tournaments to be played on the Coast this Winter, was here attending the P. G. A. meeting. He reported that plans were progressing in fine style for the tournaments and declared that this would be the greatest year that California has ever had in a golfing way.

"We expect to have at least 500 entries for the Los Angeles $10,000 open," he said, "and it will be necessary for us to qualify on different courses. We have not disclosed the names of the courses that will be used either for the qualifying tests or the championship for the reason that we have about seventy-five professionals in Southern California and if we were to name the courses now it would give them an unfair advantage over the Eastern professionals, the majority of whom will not get out to California until a few weeks before the tournament.

"Since I have been here I have had any number of calls from the boys seeking information as to the dates of the various tournaments that we have scheduled in California. The list, together with the amount of prize money, follows:

"Dec. 10-12, Monterey-Peninsula, $5,000; Dec. 17-19, Sacramento, $2,500; Dec. 24-26, Fresno, $2,500; Jan. 1-2, Long Beach, $2,500; Jan. 5-9, Los Angeles, $10,000.

"All the entrants for the Los Angeles event will qualify on Jan. 5 over thirty-six holes. There will then be a day of rest, following which the first eighteen holes of the tournament will be played."

The P. G. A. incidentally has taken a step that will make it a little harder to join in the future. Up to now any one who was a professional or an assistant could become a member by paying his dues. Hereafter membership will be limited to professionals and to assistants of three years' experience.

The final Executive Committee meeting before the annual U. S. G. A. session at Pittsburgh in January will be held at the Hotel Belmont tomorrow and Friday. So far as is now known the only business of public interest to be transacted at the meeting is that of fixing the dates for the 1927 championships. This in itself will be something unusual, for heretofore it has been the practice of the association to withhold the dates until the annual meeting. The decision to announce them now was made for the purpose of expediting schedule making by other associations and to avoid conflict between the larger sectional events. With the U. S. G. A. dates set the other organizations will be able to go ahead and plan their schedules accordingly. The idea is a good one and ought to go a long ways toward helping the badly muddled schedule situation.

According to George Sargent, who retired as President of the P. G. A. this year after serving for six terms and bringing the organization up from nothing to the place it now holds, four golfers have made outstanding contributions to the game. They are J. H. Taylor, Harry Vardon, Walter J. Travis and Walter Hagen. Taylor, according to Sargent, introduced the methods of approaching that are universally used by all good golfers today. Then Vardon introduced the upright swing, which is likewise the most popular method nowadays. Along with Travis came a new emphasis on putting. When Hagen arrived on the scene there was nothing left for him to pioneer in except mental attitude toward the game. No other golfer in the world plays the game with the same mental relaxation that Hagen does. No matter how things may be going, he is always the same. That's where he has it on the others. It's about nine-tenths of his stock in trade.

WEATHER CHANGES COLUMBIA PROGRAM

Coach Crowley Allows Squad Afternoon Off When Rain Interferes With Plans.

The plans of Head Coach Charley Crowley of Columbia to commence heavy practice for the Syracuse game were altered yesterday by the unsatisfactory weather, but it is expected the Lion squad will settle down to strenuous work today.

Because of the fact that Crowley has more than a week to prepare his squad for Syracuse and also because of the weather, the Blue and White players were allowed an afternoon off, but they attended a lecture and witnessed slow-motion football pictures in the Manor House at Baker Field last night.

Yesterday was the first time this year that the entire squad has been excused from practice, as on previous rainy days the men attended blackboard talks. It was Coach Crowley's opinion that the team deserved to be excused from practice after its close game with Pennsylvania at Franklin Field Saturday.

In last night's lecture the coaches told of their plans for the Syracuse game, which will be played at the Polo Grounds Thanksgiving Day. The slow-motion football pictures were accompanied by talks by the coaches, who explained the various pictures and formations as they were shown on the screen.

As there is no game scheduled for Saturday, the squad will probably hold a practice session that day, its first Saturday drill since early in September.

CARR RESUMES PLACE ON SYRACUSE ELEVEN

Squad Enthusiastic as Injured Star Carries Ball at Fullback—Due to Play Against Columbia.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Football at Syracuse took on a new lease of life today when Whippet Carr, fleet triple threat, carried the ball from his old position at fullback for the first time since the Army game, Oct. 16.

A drenching rain struck the city early this morning, and it was still coming down hard tonight, but the storm was forgotten in the enthusiasm that greeted Carr's reappearance in the line-up. Carr donned a uniform yesterday for a brief drill at place kicking, but it was not until this afternoon that Coach Pete Reynolds allowed him to get into regular practice.

The slogan of the Orange team is "Zoom." It originated from the cheer leader's custom of firing the Orange cannon after every touchdown in a game. Today Ray Jones was playing fullback in practice when Coach Reynolds called, "Jones out, Carr in." The team immediately let loose a loud cheer for Whippet and then chorused "Zoom!"

On the first play Carr was given the ball and, instead of stopping after running a few yards, the whole team raced down the field and across the goal line with Carr right behind. Carr received about ten minutes of work in the signal drill and then switched to punting. After getting off a couple of 50-yard punts he was sent to the showers.

FORDHAM USES RAIN TO GOOD ADVANTAGE

Fordham's drive to finish the season with a victory over Georgetown was not halted by yesterday's heavy rain. In fact Coach Frank Gargan took advantage of the bad weather conditions, giving the team a thorough workout in kicking, passing and handling a wet ball as well as running on slippery turf, in the event that the Maroon should be forced to play under such circumstances Saturday.

After going through a kicking drill and a rehearsal of signals which was devoted almost entirely to forward passing the squad was sent into the gymnasium to complete the afternoon's work. Indoors Gargan stressed position play, ironed out a few defects in the team's forward passing and held another signal drill, this time with the emphasis on the running attack.

The freshman eleven, which closed its schedule last Saturday, also reported for practice in order to help the varsity prepare for Saturday's battle. Bill Ward took the yearlings in hand and taught them the Georgetown plays which they will use in a scrimmage scheduled for today.

The first team lined up as it probably will against the Blue and Gray, Captain Tom Leary and Al Politis were the ends, Bill Feaster and Val Simonetti the tackles; Burt Bruce and Tubby Beloin, the guards, and Roger Scully was the centre. Zev Graham was at quarter, Jim DeLaney and Ralph Buckley were at the halves, and Zakszewski was at fullback.

RUTGERS VETERANS REPORT

End Prospects Enhanced by Appearance of Clark and Martin.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 16.—Every player who took part in the Rutgers game, the reserves and several of the injured who have been missing for several weeks, reported to Head Coach Percy Wendell today for a long session of indoor work in preparation for the Lafayette game on Saturday.

The end prospects were brightened when Ned Martin and Alec Clarke, both wingmen, appeared. Martin limped while going through his paces, but Clarke seemed to be fit. Billy Burkhardt, the club trainer, has assured Coach Wendell that Martin will be ready to play by Saturday. However, it is a question whether either one can dielodge Alderman, a sophomore.

ST. JOHN'S TESTS PLAYS.

Squad Is Forced by Rain to Drill in 101st Cavalry Regiment.

Rain yesterday failed to keep the St. John's football squad idle, as Coach Ray Lynch ordered the regular daily practice at the 101st Cavalry Regiment in Bedford Avenue. Lynch did not scrimmage his men, but for the better part of the afternoon had the varsity back field working out several new plays to be used in the Canisius game on Saturday.

Lynch will have every man on the squad available for the Brooklyn college's final football encounter. In almost each game to date one or more of the regulars has been on the hospital list.

ARMY OPENS DRIVE FOR NAVY INDOORS

Storm Cuts Work to Passing and Signal Rehearsal on Riding Hall Tanbark.

PLANS FOR TRIP ANNOUNCED

Cadet Corps Will Journey to Chicago by Special Train, Taking Rifles and Full-Dress Uniforms.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Driven indoors by one of the worst wind and rain storms of the season, the Army was obliged to do its football work in the riding hall today. The drive for the Navy contest, a week from Saturday, was set in motion, but rather inauspiciously, for the heavy going on the tanbark made anything except passing and signal work out of the question.

Biff Jones had all his men out and used up an hour's time in rehearsal of some special plays Army is planning to use against the Navy eleven. Wilson, Hewitt, Dahl, Cagle, Murrell, Harding and Meehan were the backs in action, while Born, Harbold, Davidson, Brentnall and Simonton were ends who also went through the forward pass drill.

Perry was in for Sprague at tackle, and Hammack and Seeman alternated at right guard. There was no kicking because of the lack of light and other disadvantages of the indoor arena.

Plans for the movement of the cadet corps to Chicago were announced today. Special trains, running in five sections, will leave here on Thanksgiving Day morning between 8 and 9 o'clock. They are due in Chicago Friday morning, next day.

For the first time in the history of Army-Navy football meetings the cadets will carry rifles and take along their full dress uniforms. These will not be in evidence at the game, however, but will be used in the formal dedication exercises at the Stadium Friday afternoon, when the West Pointers will stage a parade and review. The corps is due to return home from Chicago so as to arrive here at 8 o'clock the Sunday evening after the game.

About 1,120 cadets, 35 officers and approximately 100 enlisted men, the latter members of the Military Academy Band, will constitute the official party. Lieut. Col. Campbell B. Hodges, Commandant of Cadets, will be in direct command.

NAVY COMPLETES PLANS FOR TRIP TO CHICAGO

Middies Will Leave Week From Today for Scene of Battle With Army Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 16.—The move of the Navy upon Chicago for the service game of the 27th will begin tomorrow with the departure for that city of Lieut. Commander Keasing, graduate manager of athletics. He will take charge of the Navy's interests. The football squad will leave a week from tomorrow at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Practice will be held on Soldiers Field Thanksgiving Day afternoon and on Stagg Field on Friday afternoon.

The midshipmen will be under the general charge of Commander Jonas H. Ingram, Director of Athletics, and the players will be under the direct charge of Commander Douglas L. Howard, representative of the Navy Athletic Association and former head coach. The coaches with the squad will be Bill Ingram, Johnny Wilson, Rip Miller and Lieutenant Johnny Beckett. The regiment of midshipmen will leave over two roads about noon on Thursday, arriving in Chicago in time to parade with the West Point cadets in the afternoon.

Practice this afternoon was on a wet field and was made up of work on the new formations. The members of 13 squad wore the names of West Point players in big letters across their chests.

Alabama to Meet Stanford In New Year's Game on Coast

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 16 (AP).—Alabama and Stanford have been chosen as the football teams to meet in the annual New Year's Day game at the Tournament of Roses Bowl here, it was authoritatively reported today in Tournament circles.

FORDHAM ABSENT FROM C. C. N. Y. LIST

Gallaudet is the only newcomer on the C. C. N. Y. 1927 football schedule announced yesterday by Professor Walter W. Williamson, Faculty manager of athletics at the Lavender institution. Seven contests, the same number as was played this year, are listed for next season. Fordham is the only 1926 opponent that will not be faced next year.

George Washington, which opened the Lavender schedule this year by defeating C. C. N. Y. in the last fifty seconds of play, will again open the card, the game to be played in the Lewisohn Stadium on Oct. 1.

On the following Saturday St. Lawrence will be met for the third consecutive season, the contest to be played at Canton. The Scarlet and Brown was defeated this year at the Lewisohn Stadium, 20 to 7.

Upsala travels to the stadium on Oct. 15 and will try to avenge the 7-6 defeat it suffered this year. For the fourth consecutive season Rhode Island State has a place on the City College schedule. The Kingston eleven will be played on Oct. 22 at Kingston, R. I. The Lavender eleven has the edge in the series, having won two games to Rhode Island's one.

Gallaudet opposes C. C. N. Y. at the stadium on Oct. 29, and on Nov. 5 Manhattan will return and endeavor to earn its first victory against the Lavender on the gridiron. Haverford closes the season on Nov. 12, playing at the Lewisohn Stadium.

COAST GUARD ELEVEN WINS.

Academy Players Trim Connecticut Aggies' Second Team, 19 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 16.—Playing in a driving rain the United States Coast Guard Academy football team defeated Connecticut Aggies' second team, 19 to 0 here today.

The Cadet backs ripped off large gains consistently throughout the game and, in the second quarter, completed seven consecutive forward passes.

DARTMOUTH AWARDS SEVENTEEN LETTERS

Nine Will Be Lost to Football by Graduation—Hawley Says Psychology Beat Team.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 16.—Seventeen members of the Dartmouth 1926 football team were awarded the "D" by the Athletic Council yesterday. The two letter games this season were the Brown and Cornell battles, fifteen minutes of actual playing being required for a letter.

The men who were granted the varsity insignia are: C. M. Horton, E. B. Dooley, J. A. Davis, D. W. Gardner, C. L. Hardy, J. H. Holleran, J. E. Picken, W. S. Prescott, H. Rubin, seniors; G. L. Cole, A. T. Fusonie, M. J. Lane, R. E. Langdell, R. E. MacPhail, J. Phillips, juniors; R. W. Black and S. Harris, sophomores.

Nine of the seventeen were letter men last year and the same number will not be available for the team next Fall.

Head Coach Hawley of the Dartmouth team stated today that psychology was the only thing that beat the Green team this Fall. At the start of the season the eleven looked more powerful potentially than either the 1923 or 1924 team, although it did not quite come up to the high standard of the great eleven of 1925. Due, however, to too much favorable publicity the players became obsessed by a superiority complex or something of that sort, according to Coach Hawley.

By OLIN DOWNES.

Puccini's posthumous opera, "Turandot," was produced for the first time in North America last night in the Metropolitan Opera House. The production was attended by intense excitement on the part of the audience. The reasons for this enthusiasm are not far to seek. They lie in the curiosity and excitement of a premiere; in Puccini's superb technique as composer for the theatre; in a libretto and score designed for spectacle and splendor, and a production which must surely rank as one of the most brilliant and sumptuous in Metropolitan history.

The production invites more commendation than the music. The music has certain interesting features, but they are not those that inhere in a score of significantly creative or emotional quality. The progress of this score over Puccini's earlier works—where any progress is shown—is technical or theatrical, but it is not a progress of inspiration or power. The opera, as always has been the case with this composer, owes much to its book. The development of the story is rapid, the scenes are short; the audience is assailed immediately the curtain rises, indeed breathless, as it were, by the gong and by the opening chorus—one of the best pages in the work—and before there is opportunity for considered criticism the scene is changed with another bewildering vista of color and Far East fantasy on the part of Mr. Urban.

Climax Lacking at the End.

This progress is kept up to the very end of the opera. That end, in its turn, would have probably been a final resounding climax of some kind if Puccini had lived to complete his score and particularly if he had lived to test it out in the theatre. It is only the end, which is in the least indirect or lacking the sure-fire quality of the theatre, and this is because when Puccini died in November, 1924, he had left his final passages in fragments, which were strung together and orchestrated by Franco Alfano, Puccini's friend, commissioned by Toscanini with the melancholy duty of writing "Finis" for the departed composer.

Otherwise "Turandot" goes forward from incident to incident, from climax to climax of the exterior and spectacular kind, to the fall of the final curtain. Those who go to opera purely for spectacle and brilliant entertainment will not be disappointed in it. Nor will the music lovers be wholly disappointed in the music. It often fails by sheer impact and by theatrical dexterity on the part of the composer, and it has in places a decorative charm. Long ago Puccini learned where to put his arias or his concerted movement, interludes, commentary upon the action; where to place orchestral sonorities, interludes, commentary upon the action; where give his tenor the high tone that would drown the sound of the performance in the sudden crash of applause—in brief, how to combine every musical and showy device possible in opera for the glory of the singers and the pleasure of the throng. In the main these exterior things are accomplished in "Turandot"—accomplished with a skill that ripened steadily as Puccini's creative powers declined, and that save his effects when his invention fails him. More than that, under circumstances of wanton invention no librettist or composer might hope to do, and what he achieved is rather astonishing. "Turandot" is a first-night success and an ultimate failure—a striking example of what can be done by means of technic, ingenuity, experience of popular taste, and what can never be accomplished by any means in the world save those of creative genius.

Based on Play of Gozzi.

The history of this opera, first performed under Toscanini at La Scala, April 25, 1926, has been narrated in THE TIMES, and needs only recapitulation here. Puccini, in 1921, after some years during which he had refrained from important composition, applied to his friends, Adami and Simoni, for a new libretto. Always difficult to please in this respect, the composer was not easily satisfied. There was talk of a work in realistic vein, based upon a novel by Charles Dickens. There were other suggestions. At last by mutual common consent, the subject of "Turandot" was accepted. The basis of the libretto was the play of Gozzi and the translation that Schiller made from it. Of the age-old theme of the merciless Princess who tested her suitors by three riddles, and killed them when they failed in the answers, there have been many dramatic versions and interpretations by various composers. One of the latest was Busoni. Puccini's libretto, characteristic of his wisdom in planning operas, shears the story down to the fewest possible incidents consistent with situations and plot development for a three act opera, dispenses with some characters and subordinates others, particularly when these are needed to "humanize" the story.

The principal instance of this humanization, and a shrewd stroke of music drama, is the figure of the slave girl, Liù, and her hopeless and sacrificial passion for the hero. The figures of the Chinese ministers appear under the title of Ping, Pang and Pong; they are farcical elements in the score—and here it is particularly a pity that Puccini had not an invention equal to his facility, since he has composed music for them with a care for the text equal to and in some technical principles reminiful of Sullivan's settings of passages of the Gilbert texts, but—without Sullivan's invention. The other principal characters are those of Gozzi. The libretto of "Turandot" is a good job for the kind of an opera Puccini wished to make, one with elements of both comedy and pasteboard with "fat" opportunities for all the participants in a production—singers, scenic artists, chorus, and—by no means to be forgotten—the modern orchestra, welded to the voices and situations with a skill and an unfailing precision of touch that even Puccini has not equaled in a previous score.

Populace Protest Execution.

The opera divides itself in three acts and five scenes. In the first act the populace protest against the execution of the Persian Prince, Turandot's latest and unfortunate suitor, as the executioners grind their swords for the beheading. Calaf and Timur, exiled father and son, find each other in the seething mob. With them is Liù, the faithful slave girl, doomed to love Calaf to her death. Turandot appears, defying the wrath of the crowd. Calaf beholds her. The warnings of the ministers, the appearances of the ghosts of the slain suitors do not deter him. He rushes forward, strikes the gong that announces him as suitor, crying "Turandot!" as the curtain falls.

The first scene of the second act is short and funny—the three ministers crying out upon the evil that Turandot has done, and the prayer that in this year of the Tiger the Marshal of the Skies will send wedlock to the terrible one and peace again to the country. In the second scene, a scene set by Mr. Urban with rare felicity and an unparalleled gorgeousness of color—it is not his fault that there is inevitable thought of a Chinese "Aida"—Turandot appears and propounds her riddles, which, to her consternation, the Unknown Prince successfully answers. Then, following the old story, she repents her bargain and begs release from it. Calaf replies that he will have her with love or not at all, and proposes the new riddle: Turandot must tell his name—in which case he dies—or become his bride.

In the last act, in the palace gardens, a populace, threatened by Turandot with death if they do not discover the Prince's name for her, gather angrily about him. Timur and Liù appear on the scene. Turandot herself arrives, ordering that the father and the girl be tortured if they do not reveal the secret. Liù, rather than betray her beloved, stabs herself and dies. The heart of Turandot is at last moved by this sacrifice. She surrenders herself, and the last scene is one of rejoicing before the Emperor's throne. It only lacks, as has been said, the smashing finale that Puccini undoubtedly would have furnished, had he lived, to provide the last punch, the final bang and splurge of "grand opera."

Music Has Exotic Color.

In the compilation of his score Puccini has indulged, as he previously had indulged in "Madame Butterfly," in effects of exotic color. He was never the composer to set at a task without full investigation of his materials and background. A portion of a letter he wrote Mr. Gatti-Casazza in 1921, asking to have sent to him any existing American records of Chinese music, old or new, was one of many of his activities in research. It was in the British Museum that he secured the specimen of the context of the ancient Chinese Imperial Rhythm. The theme of the Imperial Hymn, thundered forth by the orchestra in the presence of the Emperor, in the last scene of the second act, is of ancient and authorized origin. A fragment, not unakin to certain material in "Madame Butterfly," appears as one of the accompanying motives of "Turandot," and is likewise of Chinese derivation. In Chinese mode and accent, likewise, are the responses of Calaf and the Emperor. There is a short and concise phrase suggestive of the cruelty of the Princess. Elsewhere is Eastern color rather than quotation. The motives require little description or pointing out. They are there in the score, as plain as signs at a crossroads, for every one who runs—or listens—to read.

As for the style of the music, it harks back, for the greater part, to "Madame Butterfly," "Tosca," "Bohème," even "Manon Lescaut." But it is manner and not matter that affords the principal interest of the score—its occasional harmonic bite and tang, and the beauty and lasciviveness of much of the instrumentation. This score is not merely an amplification, but a decided maturing and even refining of previous Puccini methods. Percussion instruments, especially those of Oriental origin, are of course used considerably, but not in an excessive or merely pictorial minor. There are fine colors, for which they are often largely responsible, in the score, and it is also true that whereas in "Madame Butterfly" the Oriental melodies are quoted as fragments, in "Turandot" they are integral elements of the music.

First Chorus Spirited.

The initial chorus heard, after a very short prelude, as the curtain rises on the whole the freshest and the most spirited writing in the opera—although the magnificent singing of the Metropolitan chorus may have added a deceiving element to this impression. The crowd yells and roars its rage in sharp and pungent music. Music that harks back to the torture music of Tosca is heard as the Persian Prince is led to slaughter. More music, of polyglot ancestry written with inordinate skill for effect, makes the frame for the high notes of Mr. Lauri-Volpi, shouting to the high heavens his adoration of Turandot.

The first scene of the second act is out of the frame of the rest of the work because of its lapse into operetta style, and perhaps a little too fine in its texture for Puccini's theatre. It is not farcically effective, as perhaps it should be to match the rest of the opera. It has ouance- adopt inflections mated to comical text, and not ordinary with Puccini, in the conversations of the Ministers, their laments, consternations, apprehensions, for China, disturbed by Turandot from her centuries of lethargy and for the Prince who will be the thirteenth victim of Turandot in this the Year of the Tiger.

In the second scene, the great scene before the throne, there are mass effects of voices, admirably contrived with the dramatic interludes furnished by Turandot and the Prince to whom she propounds her riddles.

But where is invention, humanity, passion in all this music? The despairing song of Liù, is far in intensity even from what Puccini did for his Des Grieux in "Manon Lescaut." The score relies more and more upon the stage and the situations to carry it through—Much ado, musically speaking about nothing.

Fine Work by Cherus.

But the Metropolitan production and performance are other matters. First to mind, in recounting these achievements, are the scenery of Mr. Urban, and the singing of the chorus. The Metropolitan chorus has long had a high and deserved reputation. It sang last night as if its heads and not those of Turandot's suitors, were at stake, with a certainty, a rhythm, a headlong effect when that was required which swept everything before it. So the effect of the opening chorus in particular, much did depend—perhaps the head of the opera! For this passage has a lion's share of the life, and it establishes the pace of an opera that dare not pause or flag for an instant in its progress. Throughout the performance the chorus singing, whatever the nature of the music, was superbly effective.

Mme. Jeritza's Turandot was what might have been expected, and exactly what is needed for this rôle, which she has now "created," as the operatic phraseology has it, for New York and for Vienna. Her gowns were resplendent in the last degree, and their colors in some measure symbolized her supposed moods in the drama. She was shimmering magnificence, imperiousness, allurement personified when she appeared a brief instant on the balcony in the first act, and after one savage, imperious gesture to the angry, disappeared from the gaze of the enraptured Calaf. She was almost Beardsleyesque when she crouched over Calaf, in the black, gold and red of the scene of the Riddles before the imperial throne. Vocally speaking she may have given finer performances, but a certain brilliancy which is at times hard and cold, but which she can color dramatically, was well adapted for the voice of the Princess. In regard to pose, line, grouping, rhythmical movement she was a properly dominating feature of the picture, and at the last she took the opportunity of emotional expression.

Lauri-Volpi Matches Cast, Too.

Likewise was Mr. Lauri-Volpi cast excellently for a rôle which demands principally leather lungs and a good stage presence. He had both. It were injustice to say that he had nothing else, for he gave a degree of sensuousness and feeling to commonplace music. In lyric passages his singing was operatically, that is to say falsely, ridiculously, exaggeratedly and appropriately expressive, and warm in tone quality. Subtleties did not have to escape him for there were none there. The part of Calaf is purely conventional in its character and its music. It was delivered in a manner better, if anything, than it deserved.

There were two Metropolitan débutantes—those of Pavel Ludikar, who stepped on the Metropolitan boards for the first time as Timur, Calaf's father, and Martha Attwood, one of the many Americans whom the Metropolitan had engaged of late, who has studied music in this country and abroad and profited by experience of other opera stages. Mr. Ludikar has a voice of agreeable quality; he uses it with experience and artistic judgment. Miss Attwood's voice is thin and it lacks sensuousness. Possibly nervousness had something to do with faulty intonation. She carried herself with intelligence and a reasonable degree of discernment on the stage.

The Metropolitan was fortunate in its trio of Ministers, Messrs. de Luca, Bada and Tedesco. Mr. de Luca, who is especially amusing in a comedy part, also sang with exemplary art and with a niceness of effect that matched the intention of the music. Similarly, Mr. Bada lived fully up to his high reputation as singer and interpreter, and Mr. Tedesco combined amusingly with his colleagues in buffoonery. Mr. Cehanovsky, the young Russian baritone, who had made his début last Saturday night as Kothner in "Die Meistersinger," made an excellent impression as the Mandarin whose proclamations stirred the crowd, and as the master of ceremonies in the scene of the Riddles. These and all other elements of the ensemble presented an extremely well-rounded and coordinated performance—one that questionably would have gratified the composer, long and frequently indebted to the Metropolitan, and to Mr. Gatti-Casazza's zeal in his behalf. Mr. Serafin conducted with a master hand, giving to the performance the success, unity and brilliancy of effect which it never lost. It was with excellent reason that he, Mr. Setti and Mr. Wymetal were called before the curtain.

The audience was exceptionally demonstrative. Applause repeatedly interrupted the progress of the opera. Curtain calls were more than will be numbered here. There was every feature of a triumph. The American première of "Turandot" was, in fact, a triumph of a sort—a triumph of the occasion and of the opera company which had so lavishly mounted a work of qualities various. It was a triumph which may repeat itself some five or six more times this season. But a second season, if it should occur with "Toraodot," would tell another story.

PAY $20,000 TO HEAR OPERA.

Puccini Work to Go Into Regular Subscription Next Wednesday.

Twenty-thousand dollars, or within a hairbreadth of that amount, was paid last night by New York's first audience to hear "Turandot." The thirty-five shareholders of the Metropolitan's golden horseshoe retained the use of their parterre boxes for the special occasion, otherwise another $7,000 would have been added to the sale.

For the first time in recent years at any similar "premiere" not a ticket was left in the box office racks on the actual day of performance. The public paid $15 yesterday on the Broadway curb for a few $11 seats at the back of the orchestra circle. Toward evening, on chance offers of desirable pairs by purchasers deterred at the last moment, eager bids were reported up to $50 and $60.

Standees, including many of those humbler compatriots who had greeted Puccini himself here fifteen years ago, were not discouraged last night, though their ardor was evidently dampened by the evening's rain. At 7 o'clock some 200 persons in the opera lobbies were asked to line up, four abreast, across the main entrance and back. Two hundred more were admitted before the gates were barred there, while a hardier fifth hundred, defying weather, held Fortieth Street's outer door to the gallery.

Arrivals by limousine and taxicab began as early as 7 o'clock, an hour before the rising curtain. Some came early to see the opening scene of realism at Peking's gates in the first act, of which report had spread following Sunday's dress rehearsal. More of the crowd were intent on the two pictures of the Chinese throne, in which more than 600 performers by actual count were massed on the Metropolitan stage.

The house programme were specially bound in glazed paper, a "kid glove" handbill, such as old-timers recalled at the late Heinrich Conried's gala night for Prince Henry a quarter century before. On the semi-transparent cover, stamped with a cobweb design, ran the legend in red letters: "First performance in the United States of Giacomo Puccini's opera 'Turandot' at the Metropolitan Opera House, Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, 1926." The social quality of the house was all-American, and there was no claque.

Puccini's portrait, a more than life-size photograph framed in laurel branches and violet satin bows, was hung over the parterre box promenade rail to the Broadway entrance. During the performance a census of those singing on the stage and mostly visible to the house showed these large totals: 120 opera chorus, 120 chorus school, 60 boy choir singers, 60 ballet girls, 30 male dancers and procession leaders, 30 stage musicians, 230 extra "supers"—650 persons, all told, besides the eleven-star cast and a hundred orchestra players in the pit.

"Turandot" is announced at the Metropolitan a week from tonight, when Puccini's work goes into the regular subscription, a margin of unsubscribed seats being open to the public at the box office this morning. Stravinsky's little Chinese opera, "Le Rossignol," new last season, will be sung in a matinee double bill with "Madame Butterfly" on Thanksgiving Day, the casts headed by Marion Talley, Easton and Martinelli. Meyerbeer's "L'Africana," with Ponselle, opens the fourth week of the season next Monday.

Other operas next week will be a Thursday night "Vestale," with Ponselle; Friday "Rigoletto," with Talley; Saturday matinee "Tannhäuser," with Jeritza, and Saturday night, Nov. 27, both "La Bohème" at the Metropolitan, with Rethberg, Lauri-Volpi and Scotti, and "La Cena delle Beffe" at the Brooklyn Academy, with Alda, Gigli and Tibbett. Next Sunday's "opera concert," in addition to Renee Chemet, violin, will have as soloists Mmes. Attwood, Vettori, Alcock and Fleischer and Messrs. Tokatyan, Bloch, Cehanovsky and Ludikar.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Solito de Solis, young Spanish pianist, who scored a notable success at his first Paris concert on Oct. 30, gave another tonight at the Salle Gaveau to satisfy many persons who were unable to hear him at his first appearance. His popularity was again in evidence from the start of his interesting program. The crowded hall enthusiastically applauded the brilliant musician.

De Solis played with a technique and assurance which mark him as one of the first virtuosos of the day. He displayed profound musical feeling in Chopin's Fantaisie, Opus. 49. He will soon be heard in the United States.

MUSIC NOTES.

Arcadi Birkenholz, violin, and G. Waring Stebbins, organist, give a joint program for the Plymouth Ladies' Choral this evening at Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

Tito Schipa, tenor of the Chicago Opera, assists at the Waldorf-Astoria tomorrow morning in the first musicals of the thirty-sixth season of the Haarlem Philharmonic Society.

Gilda Musitano, soprano, sings tomorrow evening at the Engineering Auditorium, in West Thirty-ninth Street, assisted by a string trio, Messrs. Nacciarone, Ardizzone and Baselics.

Ingeborg Torrup, a Danish dancer, will give a program of "expressionist" dances tomorrow evening at the Central Park Theatre in West Fifty-ninth Street.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

A Pirate of 1815.

Although it lacks drama, "The Eagle of the Sea," the current feature at the Rivoli, is satisfying to the eye. It was adapted from Charles Tenney Jackson's novel, "Captain Sazarac," and directed by Frank Lloyd, producer of "The Sea Hawk." The chief participants in the offering are Florence Vidor and Ricardo Cortez, and while nothing can be said against their acting, their performances will not go down in history. Miss Vidor does not seem quite suited to the type of the New Orleans belle, even though she herself comes from San Antonio, Texas. More subtle and sophisticated impersonations are in Miss Vidor's line. As for Mr. Cortez, he never impresses one as being a Jekyll and Hyde of the seas of the days of 1815. He ought to stick to modern rôles, for even when his physiognomy is decorated with an imperial, in "The Eagle of the Sea," he is by no means an object of terror.

This story is mainly concerned with a group of New Orleans society blades, whose aim is to fit out a vessel to bring Napoleon away from St. Helena. However, they do not get as far as that, but there are moderately exciting sequences dealing with piracy and the fire aboard a vessel. La Fitte is a pirate, who, on dry land, poses as Captain Sazarac. It is he who stops the runaway horses attached to Louise Lestroo's carriage, and it is he who is thought to be just the person to carry out the great adventure.

Mr. Lloyd has gone to no little trouble in his sea scenes, and also in depicting those of a mask ball at which Sazarac again encounters the beautiful Louise (Miss Vidor). But little does she know at the time that her hero is the very man she is opposed to as a commander of the Seraphine expedition.

André Beranger, who gave a clever performance in Ernst Lubitsch's comedy, "So This Is Paris," figures in this current film as John Jarvis, an admirer of La Fitte. Jarvis is a sort of haphazard comedian who apparently arises in an intoxicated condition and, like Swinburne, greets the dawn with a foggy brain and staggering legs. What he has to do with 1815 pirates is not quite clear. He endeavors to be a poet in his way, first by picking flowers from the gutter and telling Louise that they have just been plucked and are wet with dew; then by declaring, as he is about to breathe his last, that he has jested with life and that death is jesting with him, for he points out that he is dying on the bed intended for an Emperor.

MISS MACKAILL TO WED.

Will Become the Bride of Lothar Mendes, Film Director, Today.

Miss Dorothy Mackaill, English motion picture actress, will be married today to Lothar Mendes, a German film director. Mr. Mendes confirmed yesterday reports of the marriage, but declined to say where, at what time and by whom it would be performed.

Miss Mackaill began her stage career in the United States in 1920 with the Ziegfeld "Follies." Later she entered the movies, and recently has appeared on the screen as leading lady for Richard Barthelmess.

Three that seem alike, but there is a difference!

ALMOST any music lover will tell you that only three reproducing pianos can bring you great music for life. But that is too inclusive. For the Welte-Mignon, honored as it is to be one of the three, is different from the other two!

It is the only one that embodies the perfected reproducing action in the piano perfected for it. The only one in which the playing device and the piano are built as one. Subtle these things may seem, but very important they are, as you may easily prove.

Hear the other two first. Then with the beauty of their playing fresh in your ears, challenge the Welte-Mignon in an hour's recital at our studios. It will answer you by the faithfulness of its renditions in its mellow, golden voice. And very probably it will win you as it has won the critics of Europe.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Rough Times in Montana.

LILY SUE, "a melodrama of the West in the early '90s," by Willard Mack. Settings by Joseph Wickes; staged and produced by David Belasco. At the Lyceum Theatre.

Harve Pedley	Huron L. Blyden
Fhronia	Florence Geraid
Lily Sue	Beth Merrill
Asa	Leslie M. Hunt
"Duke" Adams	Curtis Cooksey
Louis Lindgard	Joseph Sweeney
Lance Llodgard	Joseph Sweeney
Joe Holly	Willard Mack
"Stonewall" Billings	James Grady
Charlie Highhorse	William Courtleigh
Miss Keason	Beatrice Maynard
Uncle Jehnny Hines	Robert Wayne

Rough doings of the wild boys of the early 90s out Montana way provide the occasion for Willard Mack's "Lily Sue," put on at the Lyceum last evening hy Mr. Belasco as "his annual melodramatic production." Nearly every gun-toting ruffian near the Pedley Ranch was in love with this gawky eighteen-year-older, Lily Sue, and practically no one meant her the slightest good. Leastways, Joe Holley, the Sheriff, who had always thrown a good loop at the women, and Louis Lindgard, the hlackguard of the community, had no permanent plans in mind. But "Duke" Adams was plum out of his mind; and after nearly two acts of r'aring round Sue admitted that she loved him. Before the first shot was heard off-stage the play was nearly half over. With so many guns constantly in sight the shooting seemed needlessly delayed.

When the shooting began, however, the marksmanship was excellent. Louis Lindgard, with sin in his heart, bit the dust in earnest. Suspicion fell naturally upon "Duke" Adams, whose rivalry for Sue's affections appeared to be sufficient motive; and the Sheriff, bitten hy the same gadfly, was nothing loath to clear the field hy locking "Duke" up in the hoosegow over toward Sweet Grass. Who fired the shot that picked off Lingard so neatly? You will never guess. Before his identity is established in the play, bloody threats are spit out between clinched lips, thousands of horses gallop up in the moonlight, a gang of drunken ruffians pull an innocent man out of the log jail, twist a rope round his neck, a flaxen-haired girl clatters up on horseback and, after considerable delay, spills the true story and saves the honor of Montana. The murderer's motives, it may be reported, were of the best. As the Sheriff remarks: "All murders—that is, all murders half-way decent—are about women." Confronted with the facts the lynching party swears that the murderer done right. Even Lindgard's brother, a twin, for no apparent dramatic purpose, keeps his gun in his holster and a civil tongue in his head.

Mr. Mack writes dialogue with a tang, well suited to melodrama of the West, but in "Lily Sue" he has not blended it with action. For nearly two acts he lets it run on aimlessly before the story begins to develop. Even in the first scene of the last act, when "Duke" Adams is still at large, these Westerners keep up their picturesque matching of sentences while the audience twiddles its fingers. Mr. Belasco has set these scenes with colorful backgrounds of ranch interiors and exteriors, perfectly lighted, meticulous and complete; and he has directed his players to the last detail of fan-waving, mosquito-slapping and all that goes into the making of "atmosphere." A drunken Indian, an "allin'" female, a lazy rancher, gamblers and all the paraphernalia of Western melodrama decorate his large canvas and make the picture complete. In spite of his genuine skill, "Lily Sue" marks time until the final scene.

Virtually all the action is crowded into this concluding scene outside the jail in the moonlight. To this place come the lynching party; they stand on a footbridge while the sheriff tries to protect his jail. The scenic illusion of this scene is extraordinary with stars of different intensity flickering in the sky and the soft light of the moon bathing the dooryard. Even in this scene, replete with movement, the postponement of the inevitable action, the feints and the delays, mar its theatrical effectiveness.

Miss Merrill, as "Lily Sue," and Mr. Mack, as the Sheriff, play the leading parts and share the honors of large type in the program. They are both excellent in the sweeping style of melodrama. As the robust "Duke" Adams, Mr. Cooksey plays his part vigorously, hut with less Western flavor than his associates. Mr. Courtleigh makes an agreeable Blackfoot Indian. Most of the parts are well cast and bespeak thorough direction.

'TWINKLE TWINKLE' PLEASANT, DIVERTING

Musical Comedy Opens at the Liberty With Gay Lyrics and First-Rate Dancing.

TWINKLE TWINKLE, a new musical comedy in two acts. Book and lyrics by Harlan Thompson, music by Harry Archer; additional scenes, lyrics and music by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby. Book directed by Frank Craven; musical numbers staged by Julian Alfred and Harry Puck; costumes designed by Charles Le Maire; settings by P. Dodd Ackerman; produced by Louis F. Werba. At the Liberty Theatre.

The Harlan Thompson-Harry Archer duo, to whom in certain circles the honors, manties and emoluments of the Princess Theatre team of Bolton, Wodehouse and Kern have been more or less definitely assigned, have been at it again with "Twinkle Twinkle," which had its first local exhihition at the Liberty Theatre last night. This time they are, possihly, a little less intimate than they were when their wares were on display at the Vanderhilt Theatre, and the product, although of no great pretensions, is a genuinely pleasant and diverting entertainment, with some gay tunes, lyrics that can pass the Binet test, and all the usual first-rate dancing of musical comedy as presented in the vicinage. The show starts off in excellent fashion—its earlier portions, in fact, are much better than previous of the Messrs. Thompson and Archer's eye and ear confections—and although, perhaps inevitably, it does not maintain the pace, it still holds to a high level throughout.

Filling out the coupiet that begins with "Twinkle Twinkle" gives at least an idea of the none too substantial plot. Should you wonder where the little star known to the cinema goers as Alice James is, you may be interested to learn that in the first scene she is discovered on a train going through Kansas en route to or from Hollywood. Although she seems to be going through Kansas in the ideal way—in a private car filled with the best motion picture Scotch and gin and with about the finest complement of chorus girls on West Forty-second Street as traveling companions, she is dissatisfied with her art, the film sheik aboard the train and with her manager, particularly as he insists on making extra-business love to her. Deciding it may he better to walk home, she leaves the train at a small town somewhere in William Allen White's realm and under an assumed name becomes a waitress at what must he one of the finest Fred Harvey restaurants in the West. She falls in love with the reporter for the local paper and the remaining act and a half leisurely takes up the matter of her discovery as the film star by the village Hawkshaw and the development of her romance with the young journalist, who, it seems, is really Vice President or something of the John W. Whoozis Film Company, a rival organization, and is in the small town looking for a site for a million-dollar picture palace.

The young woman involved in all this is Ona Munson, who is not unfamiliar to vaudeville goers or to those who saw "No, No, Nanette," in which she played the Louise Groody rôle both on tour and in New York. A personable young woman, possessing more than a fair share of dainty charm which was, if anything, enhanced by opening night nervousness, she was hailed by some of the first audience as an authentic discovery, which, perhaps, she is.

The comedy is mostly in the hands of the open-faced, expansive-mouthed and vastly amusing Joe E. Brown, and hence particular care is taken of it. Then, too, the personable Alan Edwards is there in a rôle that if "Twinkle Twinkle" were "The Pearl of Great Price" would be called Love Interest.

Possibly the most damning thing that can be said of this new musical comedy is that it is clean. Further than that, it serves to bring back to the ranks of the active producers Louis F. Werba, last represented, unless many of the opening night audience had bad memories, by "Adrienne." And the Thompson-Archer team, further reinforced by several contributions from the indefatigable Kalmar and Ruby collaboration, have seen to it that he sponsors something to his credit.

5,000 TO SEE YALE'S THEATRE DEDICATED

University to Put Drama Among Fine Arts at Five Opening Performances Next Month.

GIFT FROM E. S. HARKNESS

Drama Department Students Will Produce "The Patriarch," Written by One of Them.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16.—Yale will place the drama side by side with architecture, painting, music nnd sculpture as one of the fine arts, in opening the new University Theatre here on Dec. 10, 11 and 13. This is a novel step in the history of universities of the world.

The innovation was made known today in the announcement of the program for the dedication of the theatre, which is the gift of Edward S. Harkness, Yale '97, of New York City. There will be five dedicatory performances, for which invitations will be issued to nearly 5,000 persons.

This will be the first time that a university building specially built for a department of drama has been opened with a play written and produced by students, the work to include scenic and costume designing and lighting.

Professor George Pierce Baker, Chairman of the Department of Drama, said today that the play would be "The Patriarch," written by Boyd Smith of Elkins, W. Va., a student in the department. It was chosen, he added, because it thoroughly represents the methods of the department. Written last year in the advanced work in playwriting, it had a very successful "tryout" before a small, selected audience invited to watch all productions of the department. The members of the audience sent in written criticisms of the play, which was revised last Summer in the light of these comments.

In view of the fact that the theatre will seat only 700 persons, whereas 5,000 invitations are to be sent out, a sixth performance may be found necessary.

The first performance, Friday evening, Dec. 10, is to be Founder's Night, and will be for the Corporation and officers of the university, the Deans, all full professors and members of the Yale University Dramatic Association. The second performance, a matinee on the next day, will be for members of the Yale Faculty, including assistants in instruction and administration, except associate professors. The third performance, that evening, will be for the Associates in the Fine Arts, associate professors, benefactors and former members of Professor Baker's "47 Workshop." The fourth will be a matinee on Monday, Dec. 13, for workers in professional theatres interested in the Department of Drama and Yale undergraduates. The fifth, that evening, will be for undergraduates.

LENOX QUARTET HEARD.

Loeffler's "Music for Strings" Presented by Festival Players.

The Lenox String Quartet, in which the players associated with Wolfe Wolfinsohn are three former Berkshire Festival men, Edwin Ideler, Herbert Borodkin and Emmeran Stoeber, opened a new season's subscription concerts last night at Aeolian Hall before an audience of both professional students and amateurs of chamber music. Between two classics, Haydn's quartet in F, Opus 77, No. 2, and Beethoven's in E minor, Opus 59, No. 2, the program offered the modern and American-made "Music for Four Stringed Instruments," by Charles Martin Loeffler.

Mr. Loeffler's music, remembered in a festival performance by the Flonzaleys, and perhaps others since, was of meditative mood, in contrast to more objective cheer and playfulness of the elder days of art. In classic company it bore comparison by virtue of a ripe richness of deep-toned harmony. The work was heard with an enjoyment as genuine as had greeted the players in Haydn's charming antique, to which the former Berkshire men brought the lightness of touch, the resilience and delicacy, for a musical fabric like rare old point-lace.

It was made known that the Lenox Quartet is to appear at Washington in Mrs. Coolidge's concert series at the Library of Congress in December, producing there a new chamber work by Alois Reiser of New York, conductor at the Strand.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Al Shean has been engaged for "Betsy Kitzel," in which Florenz Ziegfeld will star Belle Baker.

"The Nightingale," a musical show dealing with the life of Jenny Lind, will be produced in New Haven next Monday by the Shuberts. Peggy Wood and Stanley Lupino head the cast. Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse wrote the book and lyrics, and Armand Vecsey the music.

A change of plans will permit "Loose Ends" to continue indefinitely at the Ritz Theatre. "Sisters," which was to have opened there next Monday, will go to Chicago instead.

Era Brigge has succeeded Vivienne Segal in "Castles in the Air."

Aline MacMahon will have the leading feminine rôle in "Beyond the Horizon," which the Actors' Theatre is reviving.

Walter Hampden will continue "Caponsacchi" indefinitely at his own theatre. "An the Mayfair, beginnig tonight. Enemy of the People," announced as a revival, will be played at matinees only.

"The Ladder" will move from the Belasco field Theatre to the Waldorf Theatre tonight. Philip Merivale will share with Vernon Steele in the leading rôle.

"When Ignorance Is Bliss," a comedy by William J. Perlman, will be produced as the curtain raiser to "The Emperor Jones."

MUSIC

BY RICHARD ALDRICH.

Orchestral Music of Bach.

Mr. Stokowski gave a "one-man" program of the concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra last evening in Carnegie Hall. Such programs are sometimes to be dreaded. It depends altogether on who the "one man" is. Last night he was Bach. He appeared to have the ordeal well. Some have declared that Chopin was the only man who could stand such an ordeal. But Mr. Stokowski let us feel as if Bach could fulfill the necessary conditions even better. There is no doubt, indeed, a spreading "Bach cult," such as the once-eminent J. C. Lobe complained of in Germany some hundred years ago, in a powerful article in which he compared what he called the conspicuous characters of Bach to "the haggard figures of dry bones" of Albert Dürer's pictures, "the weaknesses and extravagances" of Shakespeare's plays, "not thinking only to his time and to its manners and customs."

Some ideas have pretty well been laid by now as regards all these three points. Yet there are some who hint that there are some who throng the concert halls to hear Bach's choral works, as at the concerts of the Friends of Music, or Bach's clavier works, as when Josef Lhevinne gives whole evenings of them to them; or, as last night, his orchestral works—that these people are posing and are adopting merely a temporarily fashionable cult.

But it is difficult and tiresome to listen to this or any other pose beyond a certain point. The photographer's camera fails to bore into the back of the head to say nothing of the music. Bach seems to show signs of lasting qualities, in fact, simpler to believe that people really like Bach and find getting more and more pleasure from his music. There undoubtedly seem to be evidences of pleasure last night.

It was rather daring to put on one program three of Bach's Brandenburg concertos—pieces written in the same form, at the same period and for the same purpose—as Mr. Stokowski did, the first, second and third; because they were put his own transcriptions for orchestra of the choral prelude "Aus der Tiefe" and the toccata and fugue in D minor, for organ. In the process of these things was abundantly interesting, thrilling and even startling. If the performance did not reach the Philadelphia Orchestra's own level that has come to perfection, the staggering difficulties of certain portions of the programs were to blame. There were certain instruments prescribed in the scores for which substitutes have to be provided. There are passages written for instruments now in which players of the present day are not frankly avoid. In the first concerto there is a part for the "violino piccolo," a small violin tuned a minor third higher than the ordinary instrument, or a fourth, as the program has it, by mistake. This part can well enough be played by the full-sized violin, no doubt with the loss of some of the brilliant or piercing quality aimed at by Bach. The solo parts in the "concertino," or solo group, of the first concerto are of astounding difficulty because of their high range. The second concerto has, as a member of the concertino, a part to which is allotted a part so high as to strike terror to modern players; or, rather, which does not strike terror, for most of them would never dream of undertaking it.

In Bach's time there are supposed to have been two classes of trumpeters, the one playing those who played habitually parts in the higher, another who played habitually parts in the lower register. Bach cultivated the lip music, the "embouchure," in the way needful for his part; and these two are not interchangeable. There has been some doubt about exactly what he did and how; but the custom, it seemed, has long been obsolete, and conductors resort to various expedients to overcome the difficulty. Some transpose the part an octave lower; others substitute other instruments. Whether anything, or much, that Bach wrote is lost remains a question; whether the high trumpets did not exist otherwise is also left to conjecture. Another change that is made is the substitution of the flute d'amore for the "flute à bec," or flageolet, which Bach prescribes in the score of the second concerto, long obsolete in musical annals. Regret for this change is easily assuaged.

But Mr. Stokowski and his men took even these by the horns, figuratively as well as literally. The distinguished first players of the orchestra played the parts. The distinguished first trumpeter of the orchestra played his part with a second player to relieve him of some of the work and give him chance to rest. He used, apparently, a small trumpet of a high natural pitch, probably in C. It may be presumed to have given something of the effect Bach had in mind; at any rate, there was not deliberate substitution of a different effect. And so, between them all, Mr. Stokowski and his men achieved the impossible.

These three concertos, like their three fellows, are splendid examples of Bach's youthful vigor and freedom of invention.

It is a somewhat strange choice to call upon them as "the purest product of Bach's polyphonic style," as the eminent commentator has done. Bach's polyphony indeed makes a good showing in the three that were heard last night; he can be highly commended for it. But if the most characteristic things in Bach's polyphonic style are his fugues, as most will think, then these concertos do not wholly justify the remark. In them Bach indulges in a fugue only once—in the last movement of the second concerto: a movement of immense vitality and power, of superb and mounting elation. In short the fugal form is used with the freedom and flexibility of one to whom it was as natural a means of expression as his own language—to whom it was, indeed, his own language. The other fast movements are equally oxygen-filled, breathing fresh air under blue skies; and it made little difference to the master whether he was manipulating the stricter complexities of fugal form or a freer style of counterpoint. The movements differ widely in spirit and expression; but they are all unmistakably signed with Bach's name. So are the slow movements; the elaborately decorated and nobly eloquent song in the first concerto, divided between the oboe and violin; the simpler but no less poignant andante of the second concerto, in which the violin, oboe and flute engage in a plangent trio, as though taking the words from each other's lips.

There might be discussion of some of Mr. Stokowski's conceptions of style, of tempo; of some of his instrumental doublings. It is impossible to give, with a modern orchestra, the effect that Bach had in mind for what was almost chamber music. There should be gratitude and glad recognition of what was achieved in these performances and of what was indeed a distinguished occasion.

Mr. Stokowski's own orchestral transcriptions—they may be assumed to be his, though no credit was given him on the program—gave a modern richness of color to the program. The choral prelude, "Aus der Tiefe," is not certainly Bach's, but it is certainly of a grave and poignant beauty, which the orchestral paraphrase is especially successful in setting forth. In the arrangement of the toccata and fugue in D minor, a frankly virtuoso piece for the organ much mauled by pianists in their own arrangement. Mr. Stokowski has wreaked himself in obtaining orchestral sonorities. It has been heard here before and always creates excitement. Yet it sounds really better on the organ; as most works written by masters sound better in the medium for which they were intended. Perhaps some day there will be an organ in Carnegie Hall to play it on.

AN OPEN LETTER

I had never really seen "The Vagabond King" till I saw it last night at the Century Theatre. The splendid surroundings—the perfect acoustics—the wonderful orchestra pit—the marvelous stage and lighting facilities made for the finest performance of this Friml musical play that has ever been given (and we played nearly 500 times at the Casino).

I advise our old friends to see "The Vagabond King" again at the Century. See it tonight.

STUDIO

My Dear Mr. Pemberton:

I wish to express the appreciation I felt for your beautiful production of "The Ladder."

The finely balanced cast that you have assembled would do credit to any theatre in the world; especially the excellent work of Antoinette Perry.

It must be gratifying to know that a play of this fineness is a success.

All of my friends who have seen "The Ladder" are quite as enthusiastic about it as I.

Cordially,
(Signed) Percy Rector Stephens.

NATIONAL CHAIRMEN.

There is no great surprise in the announcement that Senator BUTLER of Massachusetts—ex-Senator we must now call him—is to remain Chairman of the National Republican Committee. Such is the will of President COOLIDGE, and by party custom he is entitled to have his way. He has gravely announced that it may be even an advantage to Mr. BUTLER to be freed from "time-consuming duties" in the Senate, so that he will be at liberty to give all his thought and energy to the welfare of the Republican Party. This may seem as if the President were trying to extract a little cold comfort out of the rejection of his friend and political adviser by the people of Massachusetts. It may be said, without malice, that very few are driven to look about for similar consolations. Senator BUTLER'S defeat has been accepted with extraordinary resignation even by great numbers of Republicans.

As for the National Chairmanship, it is still an important position, though it does not bulk so large as it used to in the days of QUAY and GORMAN. The practice of allowing Presidential candidates to name the head of the party organization has become more firmly established than it used to be. One result has been to make the National Chairman seem to depend more upon friendship and personal favor than upon party authority. Another consequence has been to bring about the naming of Chairmen who live a very brief life of importance and glory while the campaign is on, but who quickly lapse into obscurity thereafter. There is, for example, today a Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, left over from 1924, whose name most people cannot recall without an effort.

LEAVING IT TO CONGRESS.

It was probably with a kind of wry humor that Secretary MELLON asked the Washington correspondents, who were questioning him about the return or rebate of taxes, what plans they had to propose. Suggestions of all kinds have been raining upon him. Why should not the newspaper men lay before him their little projects? But this is hardly a case in which there is wisdom in a multitude of counselors. Just now the multitude is too great, and the counsels are too divergent or contradictory. It is agreed on all hands that the President's first plan of a rebate on the instalment of the income taxes to be paid on Dec. 15 has been dropped. That being no longer under consideration, the rival schemes are for a credit on next year's taxes, a reduction of the corporation tax, abolition of the inheritance taxes, turning over the surplus to the farmers, applying it to redemption of the public debt, and Heaven knows what others.

In the presence of such confused and conflicting recommendations, Secretary MELLON naturally holds himself in a position of benevolent neutrality. He does give out revised Treasury figures to show that a surplus, over the sinking fund, of something like $300,000,000 will probably be available at the end of the fiscal year. Congress could vote to distribute that sum among the taxpayers, if it saw fit. But will it? The Secretary of the Treasury evidently has grave doubts whether any tax legislation at all will be forthcoming this Winter. Moreover, his previous experience warns him that it would be unwise for him to tie himself up to any specific plan. Congress does not like to have its hills drawn for it in the Treasury Department. Mr. MELLON limits himself to a statement of what could be taken ont of the Treasury without compelling it to borrow money to refill it, and expresses a willingness to go before the Ways and Means Committee to answer questions without formulating any plan of his own.

Against any plan the chances are great during the next session of Congress, on account of the divided state of opinion and also because of the certainty that the political game will be played in all its rigor. This is clearly apprehended by Government officials. "They play politics in those countries, too," said Under-Secretary WINSTON in the course of a hearing before the Ways and Means Committee on plans to adjust war claims. The plain implication is that he expects politics to be thoroughly mixed with finance as soon as Congress gets to work. It is not a happy blend. It is good for neither politics nor finance. But it has to be reckoned with as one of the pretty ways of Congress in time of peace.

LIGHT ON THE TOMBS.

The Warren report leaves little room for donbt that conditions in the Tombs have been bad and directly contributed to the recent murderous attempt to break jail. The prison is undermanned. Prisoners are brought down to the doctor's office needlessly. Important barred gates are kept open and unguarded. Telegraph messengers, waiters and barbers are allowed to come and go more or less as they please. Prisoners are permitted to retain large sums of money. Inspection is slipshod. Such are the findings of the Commissioner of Accounts in his preliminary inquiry.

Mr. WARREN plainly feels that Mr. WALLIS must shoulder at least a share of the responsibility. He points out that the Commissioner of Correction had received authority to take money away from the prisoners months ago. If administration of the prison was lax, a vigorous Commissioner of Correction could have brought about improvements. Then there was the matter of the eight-hour shift: balked in his efforts to get from the Board of Estimate enough additional keepers to make this reform effective without dangerously redncing the number of keepers on dnty, Mr. WALLIS nevertheless went ahead. Here the Board of Estimate would seem to be partly to blame.

Overcrowding, undermanning and the money allowed prisoners would seem to be the three worst evils in the Tombs. Its normal capacity is about four hundred. It has been housing more than five hundred. That means donbling np, and that affords the inmates greater opportunities for concerted action. Commissioner WARREN agrees with Commissioner WALLIS that the prison is understaffed. English jails average five prisoners per keeper. The ratio in the Tombs, with particularly dangerous inmates, is nearer ten to one. Here are prisoners with plenty of cash to spend—a third of them use the private commissary; the more wealthy carry several hundred dollars abont on their person—in charge of keepers who get less than $2,000 a year. The wonder is that there hasn't been more corruption.

A SITE FOR THE AIRPORT.

Chairman HOYT of the Aeronantic Committee of the Merchants' Association, who recently urged that a tract of land "near the portal of the Pennsylvania Terminal" in New Jersey be acquired for a New York City airport, now recommends a spot in the town of Secaucus. It lies along the railroad tracks and is less than ten minntes' run from the Pennsylvania Station. Near the station is the General Postoffice. Mr. HOYT points out that hy pneumatic tubes incoming mail could be delivered in five minutes from the time it was unloaded from airplanes. Express and passenger traffic could be accommodated by shuttle trains. Travelers on their arrival from the West and South could make a prompt exchange from airplanes to a waiting train. "The Secaucus location," says Mr. HOYT, "would avoid flying over the congested area of New York."

The stretch of land available at Secaucus is undeveloped. No better use could be made of it than to turn it into an airfield. The Merchants' Association has suggested Riker's Island, hut the city wants it for prison and hospital sites. It would not be a particularly happy selection for an airport. It would be in a sort of hack eddy. Pilots would have to manoeuvre to make a landing while still over the congested city. Flying over crowded Manhattan would have its hazards not only for the ant-heap of human beings but for the aviators themselves. Ground for an airport might be found on Western Long Island and within the city limits, but it would be an inconvenient distance from the General Postoffice.

The only objection to Secaucus is its location in another State. Many cities are acquiring airports or airfields, hut New York is still marking time. The development of aeronautics may come with a rush, and the municipality must not be caught unprovided. We have an interstate park used hy the people of both New Jersey and New York. Why not an airport to be operated in common?

Mr. HOYT says that New York City could own or lease land in New Jersey. The Legislatures of both States will soon assemble. The matter of the airport site should be taken up early. It is illogical to establish air mail routes to the West, North and South and balk at constructing an adequate airfield for the metropolis.

"LAFE" YOUNG.

In his way "LAFE" YOUNG was a more interesting character than many greater and more solemn men. Born in pioneer Iowa, he was brought up in village newspaper offices. At 15 he was learning to set type in the shop of The Alhia Union, edited by a thirsty lawyer. Long afterward he recalled the simplicities of this then newspaper and forensic world:

I used to sleep with him in the office in his bed, where he had a quart of whisky leaning against the front bedpost, in order to take a drink whenever he awoke. He went to Oskaloosa at one time to defend a man charged with stealing a horse. The man was acquitted, and the lawyer rode the horse home as his fee.

In 1865 he hitched his wagon to The Eddyville Star:

I boarded with the editor, as usual, and was not overfed. The editor was Postmaster, and I slept in the back part of the little postoffice. One of my duties was to get up at midnight or afterward when the Western stage came in and throw the mail bag on the sidewalk, when the driver shouted "Mail!"

Primitive days, at which one loves to look. Between jobs the boy went to school. He also enjoyed the larger liberal education of a journeyman printer, still envied by some sedentary and prosperous men. He started his own village newspaper. Though born a little Democrat, he had become one of the most Republican of Republicans. In 1890 he established The Des Moines Capital. He knew the whole business—news, mechanical, editorial, advertising, circulation. But the joy and main pursuit of his life was politics. In this capacity he was dear to all devil's advocates and all true believers in the sacred tariff. That could be put up with advantage. Put it down, and the wide arch of our ranged Union would fall. He never forgot the days when Iowa was Iowa yet. Governor GEER and Senator ALLISON and "DAVE" HENDERSON and JONATHAN P. DOLLIVER, before his conversion, were his gods. He fought Senator CUMMINS and the Iowa Idea for years, calmly but with undiminished courage and good humor.

The irony of death made him DOLLIVER'S successor. CUMMINS'S colleague. He served five or six weeks hy appointment in 1910. There was a homely directness in his speech, pleasing to those who weary a little of the perfection of the saints. Mr. YOUNG, who had had the honor of nominating Mr. ROOSEVELT for Vice President, scandalized the insurgents. He couldn't away with the word "progressive." He called it "an apology for being caught with the gang." "You've got to come back to your father's house," he told the insurgents. "I'm the keeper of the ark of the covenant." The insurgents and Progressives are, unfortunately, doing business at the old stand. The ark is far from well kept and in his last days "LAFE" accepted, not without reservations, the egregious BROOKHART.

We have always wished that Mr. YOUNG could have stayed in the Senate. He called the august ones, to their faces, "those boys." To the unsuccessful users of the prosperity prescription in this year's elections, and to all and sundry, may be commended "LAFE'S" formula:

It would be a good thing if Congress should adjourn for two years. Legislation is a menace at times. Let ne have a cessation of hostilities. This is the only way to insure a new era of prosperity.

With all his prejudices and defects, this unregenerate old standpatter had more sense than the whole collection of Iowa professional wailers and weepers now on exhibition.

THE DOMINIONS SELECT SETTLERS.

Underlying the movement of the British Dominions to restrict immigration is a latent consciouesss of nationhood. Theirs ie the attitude of the United States and other immigrant-receiving countries that it is of great concern to them whom they admit as permanent residents. This attitude, which in a modified form has been adopted by some Latin-American States, is a direct challenge to the theory that a surplue of population gives the overcrowded country the right to ship its nationals where it pleasee, while demanding of them loyalty to the mother land. It is aleo a challenge to the old conception of a colony—some of the early settlements in Georgia and in Australia illustrate the point—as a dumping ground for undesirable citizens. Canadians in particular have made it plain that they consider the social and personal value of the prospective settler of greater importance than the mere fact that England would like to get rid of him.

Canada and Australia have both experimented with assisted immigration. In neither case have the results been altogether satisfactory. The system, although in theory excellent, has tended to make the immigrant feel that the State has assumed responsibility for him by helping him to leave his old home. In many instances immigrants have not realized the arduousness of pioneer life nor the severity of the Winters, especially in the region which corresponds climatically to the Dakotas and Northern Minnesota. To this sort of existance many Americans and numerous Scandinavians are accustomed. Compared to England, the difference is pronounced.

It had been hoped in England that the Dominions might be able to offer practical assistance in taking care of her unemployed surplus. But the Dominions want farm laborers and servants. As Dean INGE pointed out in his recent volume, the industrial revolution weaned away hundreds of thousands of English families from farm work, and some of them have now for generations been in industrial occnpations. They not only have no special desire to till the soil, but have not the necessary experience to do it. To place them on the uncultivated lands in Canada or Australia would be unprofitable and would probably result in dissatisfaction to all concerned.

This important British problem remains unsolved. The Dominions look at it from their own point of view. Unless and until they embark on wholesale industrial enterprises, they will have no use for England's excess of workers. "We want only "euch settlers as will fit into our "life and will add to the commu-"nity" is the substance of their attitude. In other words, they are determined to be judges of their own immigration requirements.

BABYLON.

Mr. EDISON'S forecast of urban man developing a protective deafness against the rising roar and grind by which he is encompassed reads like a bit of Swiftian satire. Noise and congestion came in with the city, with the workshop and the market place. There are no skyscrapers in the bazaars of Damascus and Cairo, but there are clamor and crowding. New York City of pre-Civil War days was not so Arcadian as we imagine. The old pictures of traffic jams on Broadway supply enough evidence. Broadway in 1860, relatively to the general tension of life at that time, was probably not much quieter than Times Square is today. If the skyscraper era should now draw to an end, it will not be by legal prohibition or nervous exhaustion, hut through the operation of economic forces.

It is necessary to distinguish between the city as a workshop and market place and the city as a collection of homes. In the latter sense the modern city is already overgrown and a decentralizing process is under way. Actually we have an exaggerated notion of the growth of the super-city as compared with the entire population. In 1860 New York City, with something over 800,000 inhabitants, had 2½ per cent. of the population of the United States. In 1890, with a population of 1,440,000, it had 2 3-10 per cent., a slight decline. In 1920 it had 5 3-10 per cent. of the country's popnlation, but that was Greater New York, with large stretches of semi-suburban homes. Other great cities have similarly grown hy annexation. Yet even today, in the greater part of Brooklyn or the Bronx, conditions are no' what we mean by "city" conditions. Manhattan Island today has less than 2 per cent. of the population of the United States. It has nearly 400,000 less people than five years ago.

We adjust ourselves to a growing din in working hours because there is escape outside of the city in home honrs. It is far from inconceivable that in the next ten years Manhattan may lose another half-million residents. The lower east side, from which the people have been drifting away, may be transformed into an industrial section. The whole of the west side up to Riverside Drive is definitely headed in that direction. Even the high-cost residential districts ribbed by Fifth and Park Avenues are only part-time home districts. With long Summer vacations, shorter Spring and Winter holidays, and lengthening week-ends, the most prosperous homes tend to become homes only for the "season in town."

In this manner the vision of the future city as made np of suhnrbs is by way of being realized. It is not quite the suburban city which some would welcome, with each section grouped around its own industries and trade. That may come some day when we have learned to make nse of the decentralizing agencies which the inventor has placed at onr disposal. As yet we have failed to do so. Despite Mr. EDISON'S electric lamp, which permits every Main Street to be a Gay White Way; despite the telephone, which in theory makes the conduct of husiness as easy over fifty miles of distance as between two floors of a building; despite the auto, movie, radio, which have apparently destroyed the city's monopoly in amusements, we insist on crowding together. But only for work, husiness and the theatre. For home-making we are learning to ecatter.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Good Loser.

Two weeks after the election in this State, Representative MILLS issues a statement full of good humor and good sense. He emerges from the contest with no bitterness and no complaints. He made the best fight he could against Governor SMITH, but found that gentleman too strong with the voters, and that is the end of it so far as Mr. MILLS is concerned.

With the post-election demand for changes in the organization of New York Republicans Mr. MILLS has no sympathy. He offers no alibi for his defeat by charging that the party leaders did not support him. On the contrary, he testifies that the Republican machine was almost everywhere in a high state of efficiency, and functioned well throughout the campaign. It could do little, however, against "the strongest man the Democratic Party has developed in a generation."

Mr. MILLS puts his finger on the weak point of New York Republicanism when he remarks on its hopeless division over the question of prohibition. Until that breach is healed, until the party makes up its mind that it must be one thing or the other, wet or dry, and gets down off the impossible fence of compromise, it can have only small hope of making headway in this State. Mr. MILLS did not say this, hut it is implicit in what he did say.

As he goes back to Washington to serve out his unexpired term in Congress, Mr. MILLS may be assured that he carries with him the good wishes of all who have watched with approval his fight for sound measures in national finance. This regard for him personally will be heightened by his manly comment about his losing campaign for Governor.

A Workable Dramatic Censorship.

A solution of the problem of theatrical censorship satisfactory apparently to every one is found in the New York play jury system. Last year there was some confusion in its operation, hut that has now been cleared up, and in the first case of the season it has worked smoothly.

The silence of the producer, the actors and the members of the jury that judged "The Captive" might be considered ominous if we did not know that disapproval has a way of making itself heard. No one has made any comment except the adapter of the play, who expressed satisfaction, so it may be assumed that the entire group concerned is pleased. The jury was divided, hut the six who condemned the play have not registered protests nor indeed made themselves known.

Two notable merits of the system are the division of responsibility and the secrecy which eliminates undeserved and profitable publicity for bad plays. The old statement that nobody competent to act as a censor would undertake the joh does not apply to a jury. Its members express individual opinions, as they would to friends in private, and the condemnation of nine is required to close a play.

They go individually to see a play against which a protest has been lodged, and the name of the play is not divulged until they are ready to vote. Actors and producers are pledged to abide by the jury's decisions, and hy the new rules, which iron out last year's wrinkles, the jury is enabled to come into court if difficulties arise. This possibility makes for ready obedience from offending theatres.

The Thanksgiving Turkey Market.

It would be glad tidings for housewives if they could be sure that the prices given out hy the Department of Agriculture for turkey would hold until Thanksgiving. Every year the department endeavors to show, ten days before the celebration, that there will be a full table at moderate prices. This year Texas, which raises 15 per cent. of the country's supply of turkeys, reports a local rate of 26 to 27 cents a pound. The wholesale price "in many Eastern cities" is quoted at 33 cents. The wholesalers must be astonished at their own moderation.

The vital thing is the retail charge. There is said to be a better supply of live birds this year than last, and cold storage holdings "are low." But who will make an affidavit to that effect?

Each year the line is drawn between storage turkeys and the birds fresh from the farm. The latter are apt to be held high—60 cents and npward a pound. If the weather is cold in the week before Thanksgiving, prices keep up. The poor man's friend is an unseasonably high thermometer. Then turkeys go fast and cheap.

What we know about the "fixings" is reassuring. The supply of apples is bountiful. Sweet potatoes are cheaper than usual, and so are cranberries and grapes. Rabbit as a side dish should be available, for the hunt is now on.

Twilight of the Rats.

Berlin has declared a three-day war on rats. There will be no Geneva convention to bar the use of poison gas. Small-calihre rifles may be used, after the fashion set by the Capitol police at Washington for ridding the legislative cellars of these pests.

A man in Australia named RODEN thinks that such efforts at wholesale destruction are wholly unscientific. He has songbt to rally world opinion to a new approach to the rat problem. The male rats are more "venturesome," it seems. They are always getting into traps. This causes an artificial rise in the male death rate and leaves the females preponderant. The rats then become polygamous.

Mr. RODEN urges plans to catch rats alive and uninjured. "Kill all the females and let the males go alive." Result: Not enough females. Rats become polyandrous. Birth rate declines. Tempers of male rats become increasingly mean; by and by, "when they largely exceed the females in numbers, they will worry the remaining ones to death."

A Use for the Reservoir.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not retain the Central Park reservoir for water storage, and at the same time use the space above it, or at least a portion of such space, for park purposes?

The depth of the reservoir and the character of the bottom are unknown to me, but, considering the benefits to the city, it does seem that the cost of supporting soil to a depth of several feet upon a concrete roof resting on concrete piers would not be prohibitive. GILBERT H. ANDERSON.

THE GRAND CENTRAL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The late George A. Harwood was an engineer of distinguished ability; but he would have been the last man to approve the obituary articles which credit him with the reconstruction of the Grand Central Terminal, some twenty-odd years ago. That vast undertaking—carried ont without interruption of the immense volume of traffic flowing below Park Avenue down to Forty-second Street, over the tracks of the New York Central, the New Haven and the Harlem Railroad lines—causes the layman to take off his hat to the hnman intellect, if one can geeticulate to an abstraction!

This great idea was conceived and executed by an engineer, William J. Wilgus, who at the close of 1902 submitted the details of his conception, including the laying of tracks on different levels, enlargement of the station and the utilization for building purposes of the wide spaces above the tracks necessarily left open for ventilation so long as steam was employed for power, with its attendant combustion of coal. President Newman at first opposed the project, hnt was won over to its enthusiastic support by the arguments addnced by Mr. Wilgus, who in 1903 was appointed Vice President and put in charge of the work. On his resignation, four years later, Vice President Brown wrote him:

"The great work undertaken and practically completed by you, of changing the power within the so-called electric zone and the reconstruction of the Grand Central Station, was the most stupendous work of engineering I have ever known; and it has gone forward practically without a halt, certainly without a failure in any essential feature, and snch imperfections as experience has developed have been corrected without material change in your original plans.

"In my experience of nearly forty years I have known of no other engineer who, I feel, could have accomplished what you have, or to whom I would have felt justified in recommending entrusting this great work."

Not only the obituaries of Mr. Harwood, but a recent article in The Century Magazine, have given the impression that that gentleman was the originator and creator of the work in question. As a matter of fact, he was appointed by Mr. Wilgus, three years after the plans were adopted, as head of one of the three organizations charged with various responsibilities in connection with the undertaking, his special task being the electrification of the three lines using the tracks under the terminal building. He became a Vice President of the New York Central seventeen years after his former chief's retirement from that post.

RALPH (PRONOUNCED "RAFE").

Ralph (pronounced "Rafe")—what? in all of these Winters
No one has told you his name?—
Ralph is a goblin who lives at the printer's,
Some one who's always to blame.
He eats np the ink and he ties np the presses,
He mixes the paste in unspeakable messes,
He trips up the foreman (the scandalous japer!),
Bewilders the copy boy, smudges the paper,
Tips over the pails till the floor is all sloppy,
Misplaces the galleys and loses the copy,
While publishers worry and editors chafe
Because of the antics of Ralph (pronounced "Rafe").

Ralph (pronounced "Rafe"), irrepressibly spiteful—
No one has ever said why—
Jumbles our beautiful type in the frightful,
Hopeless confusion called "pi."
Debaser of manners, corrupter of morals,
His guile is the cause of uncountable quarrels;
Inciting disputes about hours and wages
With bull-headed misunderstandings and rages,
The Apple of Discord—whole barrels of apples!—
He casts in the conclaves of bosses and chapels.
All lockouts are due to that impudent waif,
All strikes are fomented by Ralph (pronounced "Rafe").

Rriph (pronounced "Rafe"), that insidious terror,
Fitfully—no one knows how—
Hatches a black typographical error,
Starting the deuce of a row—
An error so shocking I can't even quote it;
The author is certain that he never wrote it,
The comp. will be jiggered if he ever set it,
The etonemen can prove that they didn't abet it,
The proofreader shows that he wasn't the sinner;
The thing simply happened like breakfast or dinner;
But Robert and Timothy, Michael and Lafe,
Will quake for the mischief of Ralph (pronounced "Rafe").

Ralph (pronounced "Rafe"), the deserving of curses—
No one can measure our wrongs!—
Harbors a Philistine hatred of verses,
Madrigals, lyrics and songs.
He punches a stanza and gives it the staggers;
Slips in a few asterisks * * * * *, dollar signs $ $ $, daggers † † †,
With maybe a colon : and dash — for good measure,
Mispeling a wurd with maulevolint plezure;
He varies the spacing to make it look better,
He turne up a quad & and reverses a letter.
A masterpiece even like this isn't safe
From that reprehensible Ralph (pronounced "Rafe")!

THE LIBBY PRISON VOTE.

Mr. Putnam Tells How Lincoln Carried It Three to One.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES has lately brought into print letters from correspondents who had the privilege of voting for Lincoln. It may be of interest to these correspondents, and to some other of your readers, to have recalled to them the fact that on the first Tuesday in November, 1864, the men in Libby Prison held a Presidential election and elected Lincoln by a vote of three to one against his opponent, McClellan. The votes of the prisoners could, of course, have no influence on the decision in the Electoral College, hnt these votes were nevertheless of service.

Robert Lincoln told me, years after the close of the war, that when his father heard that the soldiers in Libby Prison had given him a substantial majority, he was exceedingly gratified. He said to Robert: "If the boys in prison, who have been very badly treated (through the delay of twelve months in the arrangements for exchange), still have faith in me as the leader, we are going to pull this thing through."

I cast my first vote in that election. It could hardly be called a legal vote, as I was only 20 years old. General Joseph Hayes, senior officer in the prison, decided, however, that if I was old enough to be an Adjutant and a prisoner, I was old enough to vote.

GEORGE HAVEN PUTNAM.

New York, Nov. 15, 1926.

Gen. Nobile on Arctic Exploration.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I ask you to quote exactly what I said to my lecture Sunday night on the last polar expeditioo:

"Our expedition no doubt is connected with the previous attempt of Amundsen and Ellsworth to reach the Pole with two seaplanes, an attempt which failed, and great credit is certainly due to the Norwegian explorer and the courageous American that they did not get discouraged and persisted in trying to realize their idea, asking and obtaining our cooperation.

"However, if the truth is to be known, it is fair to state that the first idea of a polar exploration with an Italian airship belongs to us Italians. In fact, in the month of May, 1925, when we were without news of Amundsen and his companions, I was, naturally, so to speak, induced to consider the problem of using aerial means in polar explorations. There became evident to me at once the absolute superiority of the lighter-than-air machines for such undertakings, and so I conceived the idea of preparing and effecting an Italian polar expedition with a dirigible.

"In June my plan had already taken shape in its main lines, and while it was ripening Amundsen asked to meet me. In our interview he explained his idea to use a dirigible to reach the Pole and cross the polar region from the Pole to Alaska. This idea of using an Italian dirigible for Arctic exploration was then conceived by Amundsen independently from me, but about two months after me. However, our idea was only to explore the polar region within a radius of 900 miles, taking Spitzbergen as the starting point and coming back, while the idea of Amundsen was that of crossing in order to reach Alaska."

Also, sir, I would be grateful to you if you will recall to your readers that in my lecture I gave credit for the success of the expedition to all those who collaborated with us for the preparation and the flight, and especially to the Aero Club of Norway.

GENERAL UMBERTO NOBILE.

Tribute to Tombe Guard.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that the flash of real heroism which the doorkeeper, Lorch, exhibited in the recent "Battle of the Tombs" has been accepted by the general public in perhaps a little too matter-of-fact way. It takes a great deal of grit for one man to look into three revolver muzzles and calmly withdraw from the lock the key to the only avenue of escape. It may be ascribed to a miracle that Lorch's life was not taken, but he certainly exhibited a harder tempered nerve than the prisoners who were attempting to escape. Perhaps it was this unusual exhibition of daring and fidelity to duty which saved his life.

This sort of thing, perhaps, is becoming more common every day. It would seem, however, that if more people were to take the risk which Lorch took, the so-called crime-wave would receive a substantial setback. But if it is foolhardy for men in the discharge of their duties to risk their lives, then we must place all the more value on the heroism displayed by this doorkeeper. That the three men did not escape to terrorize the city is entirely due to the courage of this man.

Has the city, or any association of citizens of the city, undertaken the expression of some appropriate form of appreciation—not so much for Lorch the man as for the spirit of fidelity to duty which he so bravely personified? If not, I would suggest that such a step be undertaken.

Is Parking a Right?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What has happened to the Mayor's Committee of Five Hundred? What is this body of distinguished citizens doing with the many grave civic problems which were dumped into its lap by his Honor? Particularly, what is it doing to remedy the intolerable traffic situation?

It is evident that our traffic jam is getting worse; but, so far as can be ascertained, neither the regularly constituted authorities nor this unofficial committee has made any serious attempt to untangle it. The most we see is an occasional gesture.

Even the parking restrictions—which, according to police officials, brought about a marked improvement in traffic conditions—have been either quietly amended or allowed to lapse. Any one who doubts this needs only to drive up Fifth Avenue, Broadway, or any other thoroughfare, during the evening rush hour. He will observe hundreds of empty cars parked along the curb, while the mass of supposedly moving vehicles in the centre of the street looks like a Wisconsin log-jam.

Unless the storing of private autos in public streets is an inalienable right, it would seem to be time that something was done about it. R. S. BROWN.

Other Indian Runners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Amoog Indian runners, it would seem as though the Tarahumare had little superiority over his neighbor, the Yaqui. About twenty-five years ago, as told by Dean Harris in his book, "By Path and Trail," representatives of the two tribes contested over a course of 100 Spanish miles, equal to about ninety of our miles, the decision going to the Yaqui runner one year, and to the champion of the Tarahumares the following year.

The runners, clad only in bullhide saodals and breech-clouts, started at 4 A. M.; every two miles they received a rub-down and a mouth wash of pinola or atole, a cornmeal gruel. The course took them over rocky ground, along the brink of precipices, through arroyos and across sandy stretches. At 3:15 P. M. the Tarahumare crossed the mark just ahead of the Yaqui; time, 11 hours 15 minutes, breaking the Yaqui's record of the previous year by five minutes. These would seem to be better records than the one recently reported of 62½ miles in 9 hours 57 minutes. W. N. LEONARD.

PHYSICIANS TO BUILD NEW HOSPITAL HERE

Institution, to Cost $4,000,000, Will Have Hotel Service for Relatives of Patients.

NOT A COMPETITIVE MOVE

Site Chosen Overlooks the East River—Well-Known Doctors Identified With Project.

One hundred and fifty physicians and surgeons of New York, it was announced yesterday, were planning to build a $4,000,000 hospital, with hotel accommodations for the relatives of patients, in East End Avenue, between Eighty-seventh and Eighty-eighth Streets, overlooking the East River.

[illegible] H. Fountain, a former official of the National City Bank, who will be President of the new institution, which may be called "The Doctors' Hospital," said that the associated physicians and surgeons have been working on the project for more than two years in an effort to supplement the present inadequate hospital facilities for private patients, and that, through the subscriptions of friends in other professions and in business, approximately $1,000,000 had been subscribed toward $1,750,000, which, with mortgage loans, would be required to build up and equip the hospital.

The new hospital, he said, would contain not only the best of medical, surgical and research facilities, but also the advantages of the most modern hotels.

"There will be provisions for relatives and friends who may desire to be near patients during treatment," he said. "One of the features will be an à la carte restaurant service for those guests. While treatment, nursing, research and everything having to do with the actual medical phases of the enterprise will be under direct control of eminent practitioners and scientists, the details of operating the institution will be in the hands of an experienced hotel manager, who also has been a hospital superintendent.

Not a Charitable Move.

"The proposition is not a charitable movement or a hospital 'drive.' The whole thing grew out of conditions that are rapidly becoming more and more involved. It is not in any sense competitive; instead, it is merely supplementary to the hospital situation in the city. No provision is made for the care of the sick in apartment houses in which New York lives today. Sickness puts a tremendous strain on the machinery of the metropolitan household, not to mention the dangerous handicap inflicted upon the patient.

"Hospitalization, unfortunately, has lagged far behind this development, but not through any fault of those who are responsible for our present institutions. With no way of preventing it, their budgets have increased out of all proportion to their incomes. Therefore they have been compelled to adopt policies based on broad philanthropy; in other words, to provide as well as possible for the sick who have no resources.

"The result has been that only 19 per cent. of the beds in our hospitals are in private pavilions; that is, available for patients who really are able to pay for treatment and attention. In the last two years the demand for private rooms has gone up from 20 to 40 per cent. of patients admitted to hospitalization. It follows that, no matter how great the emergency and no matter how influential the physician or surgeon in the case may be, there often are times when it is impossible for him to find hospitalization at any price for his patient. These considerations, and the desire to have under one roof all possible facilities for observation, diagnosis, treatment and research, led these physicians and surgeons to get together to interest their influential friends, and to obtain the means to establish an institution that would meet their requirements."

Some of Those in Project.

Dr. Alexander Lambert, it was said, organized the physicians and surgeons. They include Malcolm Goodridge, Adrian V. S. Lambert, John M. Wheeler, Arthur B. Duel, J. Bentley Squier, Foster Kennedy, H. McM. Painter, Ludwig Kast, Henry James, H. Rowle Geyelin, William L. Snead and Wilbur Ward, each of whom will be a Chairman of a standing committee.

Some of the other doctors interested are Joseph A. Blake, John F. Erdmann, James Alexander Miller, Margaret Stanley-Brown, Frederick Tilney, Anna I. Von Sholly and Edwin G. Zabriskie.

EX-PRISONERS MOURN AT UNCLE TOM'S BIER

Tributes Paid Anderson, Salvationist and Lifers' League Founder, at Funeral.

Salvation Army workers, derelicts and former prisoners who have reformed attended yesterday morning the funeral services for "Uncle Tom" Anderson, held at the army's headquarters in West Fourteenth Street.

Twenty-five years ago "Uncle Tom" was sentenced by mistake to ten years at hard labor. The mistake did not become known until after he had served more than six months. Meanwhile he had instilled in his mind a desire to help all prisoners. On his release he joined the Salvation Army as a prison worker, and later founded the Lifers' Club and the Brighter Day League for men still behind the bars. He died Saturday night from a gunshot wound accidentally caused by a passing stranger.

Half an hour before the services a line began to pass into the auditorium of the Army headquarters, where the body lay in state. Men with prison pallor still on their faces brushed away tears after looking at their friend for the last time. An old man who was released from Sing Sing a week ago had walked from Battery Park, where he had spent the night, still holding the newspaper by which he had learned of "Uncle Tom's" death. His wife had died while he was in prison, he said, his sons had been killed in the war, and now his old friend was gone.

The body was buried in Kensico Cemetery.

PROFESSOR FRANZ EXNER.

VIENNA, Nov. 16.—Professor Franz Exner, widely known physicist and last member of a family famous in the scientific world, died yesterday at the age of 78. His father, Franz, was one of the reformers of the University of Vienna. Three of the four sons achieved names in science—Adolph in philology, Sigmund in medicine, and the other in law.

Franz, the youngest, invented a transportable electrometer used throughout the world, and was noted for his investigations of atmospheric electricity, spectrum analysis and radium. He founded the Vienna Radium Institute.

T. J. NEACY DIES OF STROKE.

Immigrant Who Arrived With $10 Became a Millionaire.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 16.—T. J. Neacy, millionaire manufacturer, known as "Injunction Tom," because of his battles in the courts, died of a stroke of apoplexy at his home here today.

Mr. Neacy was born in Ireland 78 years ago and came to America in 1866 on $10, which he borrowed from a relative. He worked as a machinist at East Troy, Wis., for several years, later became a salesman in Milwaukee for the Filer, Stowell Company, and was President and general manager of the concern at the time of his death. He leaves a wife and six children.

After being graduated at Brown University, Mr. Sellect entered the publishing house of Appleby & Johnson in New York, retiring from business thirty years ago. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Helen Haynes of Stamford.

EX-SPEAKER CANNON BURIED AT DANVILLE

SIMPLE RITES AT CHURCH

Coffin Is Borne to Final Resting Place Between Lines of Knights Templar and Boy Scouts.

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 16 (AP).—Under the branches of a red haw tree, sketched against a gray November sky, the body of Joseph Gurney Cannon was committed to the grave today with a simplicity which belied his crowded half-century and more of public service.

In keeping with his own dislike of ostentation, the man who served for more than twoscore years in Congress, and who held its scepter for almost a decade with a hand of iron, received the humble rites of a private citizen.

Officials of the State and nation mingled at the grave with an outpouring of thousands of his townfolk. Only a few of them knew him, except in tradition, as the fiery young attorney who chose a public career while Lincoln was aspiring to the White House, but most of them remembered the Cannon of his prime, a figure without parallel in national politics. Even the merest child in the great concourse remembered the humble "Joe" who walked among them daily and found benign repose in their midst in his declining years.

Business and public life in Danville halted for the funeral and in the throng of mourners were many school children. Eight thousand of them, from kindergarten to high school, gave a penny each toward a floral tribute.

Crowd Overflows the Church.

Long before the hour set for the funeral St. James Methodist Church overflowed with the throng which converged at Vermilion Street and swept down past the Cannon home to the place of worship. Hundreds tarried to see the coffin borne out between lines of Boy Scouts and Knights Templar to the church a block away.

As the organ intoned a funeral march the coffin was carried to the front of the church, where it reposed against a bank of flowers, while the Rev. T. H. Ewing, Cannon's pastor, paid simple eulogy to his memory and said a prayer. A quartet sang "Uncle Joe's" most loved hymn, "Now We Leave Thy Servant Sleeping."

Behind Miss Helen Cannon and Mrs. Mabel Le Zure, daughters, and other members of the mourning party, sat Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Governor Len Small and other officials of the State and nation.

At the conclusion of the church service the cortège journeyed to the cemetery, half a mile distant. A marble monolith stood where already were the graves of Mary Reed Cannon, the ex-Speaker's wife; a son who died in infancy and Mrs. Cannon's mother.

Tribute to Cannon in Verse.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP).—As a tribute to the Speaker under whom he served for many years, William Tyler Page, Clerk of the House, has penned a free verse "parliamentary ode" to the memory of "Uncle Joe" Cannon. It follows:

Here the gavel fell.
The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.
The previous question is ordered.
Debate is exhausted.
The subject is closed to amendment.
Points of order cannot be made nor reserved.
The Speaker has left the chair and gone into the Committee of the Whole,
Where the point of "no quorum" is never raised,
Where the great majority rules, and
From whence no adverse report ever comes;
Where no dilatory motions are entertained, nor Filibustering practiced—
Where minorities claim no rights,
Where rules are superfluous, decorum is preserved, and Where politics is adjourned.

CHARLES PHILLIPS SCOTT.

Boston Organist and Composer Dies After an Operation.

MALDEN, Mass., Nov. 16 (AP).—Charles Phillips Scott, organist and composer, died yesterday after an operation at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Most of Mr. Scott's work consisted of organ preludes, hymns, chants and anthems, although, together with Charles Stanton Hill, he composed many light operas and songs.

For nearly five decades Mr. Scott was organist in Boston churches, including the Meeting House Hill Church, Dorchester; Temple Chabei Shalom, and the Winchester Unitarian Church. He was born in Newport, R. I., and studied in Germany.

CARR DIES AFTER ELECTION.

Led the Democratic County Ticket That Won in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (AP).—Patrick J. Carr, Sheriff-elect of Cook County, (Chicago), who was hurried to a hospital on election night after leading the Democratic ticket in Chicago, died today of internal hemorrhages. Two blood transfusions were made yesterday in an attempt to save his life.

Mr. Carr was completing his term as County Treasurer. His election as Sheriff by a majority of 125,000 votes was hailed by his friends as marking him for the Mayor's office.

Mrs. Potter's Funeral Today.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Mrs. Emma Houghton Potter at her late residence, 15 Neptune Avenue, New Rochelle, where she died Sunday, aged 84. She was the widow of Joseph J. Potter of this city, of the real estate firm of Potter & Bros., and a daughter of the late Edwin Houghton, a mahogany importer, who came to New York in 1830 from Milton, Mass., where his ancestors settled in 1647. Her sister, Mrs. Edward Berry, and several nieces and nephews survive.

Services for Hiram Abrams.

Funeral services for Hiram Abrams, President of the United Artists Corporation, were held yesterday afternoon at the West End Funeral Chapel, 200 West Ninety-first Street. Rabbi Stephen Wise conducted the services. Burial will be in Portland, Me., this afternoon. Many motion picture artists, including Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, sent flowers.

DR. E. S. BISHOP, DRUG EXPERT, DIES

Narcotic Addiction Authority a Victim of Influenza After Brief Illness.

A LEADER AS DIAGNOSTICIAN

End Comes at His Summer Home in Blandford, Mass.—Funeral to Be Held Here.

Dr. Ernest Simons Bishop of 15 West Seventy-third Street, this city, authority on narcotic drug addiction, died on Monday night at his Summer home in Blandford, Mass. He had been ill a week with influenza. His age was 50.

Although best known among laymen for his work on narcotic addiction, including promulgation of a new theory, advisory services to legal bodies and welfare work, Dr. Bishop's reputation among members of the medical profession was as a diagnostician and clinician.

Dr. Bishop's interest in the drug addiction question was aroused when he was resident physician at Bellevue Hospital. He noticed that the accepted form of treatment of addicts by decreasing the amount of dosage was at best a compromise measure which did not effect a cure and in many cases caused such a severe nervous shock that persons with weak hearts were unable to endure it.

Mr. Bishop was born in Pawtucket, R. I., in 1876. He was graduated in 1899 from Brown University, where he took part in athletics, and later from Cornell University Medical School. He served as an interne and then resident physician at Bellevue, and in 1912 became Professor of Clinical Medicine at Polyclinic Hospital. He later was also visiting physician at Polyclinic and St. Joseph's Tuberculosis Hospital and consulting physician on the staff of St. Mark's Hospital.

During the war he served on the Medical Advisory Board for the draft. He also had been called frequently as an expert witness in courts and as an adviser to legal bodies. He was one of the authors of the New York State Narcotic bill. In 1914 and 1915 he established a clinic for narcotic addicts on Welfare Island.

He later advanced the theory that the use of drugs of the morphine or opium class was not a "habit," but a definite physical need caused by physiological changes in the body through efforts of the system to counteract the effects of the drug. This theory he did not apply to drugs of the cocaine group, which he held were a "habit," to be stopped by exercise of will-power.

Dr. Bishop's method of treatment was to build the patient's physical condition to the point where he could endure the nervous and physical derangement incidental to deprivation of the drug and assist the process during the early period by the use of mild sedatives. He did not describe his patients as cured, but as no longer needing the drug, and pointed out that administration of a small amount for medical purposes at any subsequent time would cause the patient to become an addict again.

Dr. Bishop's theory that addicts were medical cases and not legal cases brought him into conflict with the Federal authorities in 1920. He was indicted for violation of the Harrison act, but the indictment was dismissed in 1925 at the Government's request. Prominent persons in both the medical and legal professions came to his defense.

AMOS J. PRESCOTT DEAD.

Headed Manufacturing Concern and Did Much for Needy Children.

Amos L. Prescott died yesterday at his home, 182 West Fifty-eighth Street, in his seventy-fourth year. He was President of the J. L. Prescott Company, manufacturers of stove polish at 90 West Broadway. He leaves a wife, Harriet Gooch Prescott, two married daughters, a brother, the Rev. William W. Prescott of Washington, eleven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

A native of New Hampshire, Mr. Prescott came to New York in 1895. He was deeply interested in philanthropy, particularly as applied to needy and imperilled children. Among the institutions that had received his help in many ways were the Good Will School at Hinckley, Me., the National Child Welfare Association, and the Boy Conservation Bureau, which had its headquarters in his office. Mr. Prescott belonged to the Lotos, New York Athletic and Camp Fire Clubs.

TELLS OF A PROCESS OF LIQUEFYING COAL

W. E. Trent, at the Bituminous Meeting, Says New Fuel Will Rival Gasoline.

RAW COAL WASTE DECRIED

Burning It as It Comes From Mines Will Soon Be Criminal, Experts Say.

FRENCH USE COAL ALCOHOL

Patart and Dumanois Describe Success With It in Internal Combustion Engines.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 16.—Chemists, mining engineers and fuel experts united at today's session of the International Conference on Bituminous Coal at the Carnegie Institute of Technology that the world was on the threshold of a new era in the utilization of coal and that soon it will be deemed a criminal waste to burn raw coal as fuel instead of extracting the countless valuable chemical compounds which are far more valuable than the heat from burning coal.

Walter R. Trent of New York, a mining and metallurgical engineer, declared that the process of pulverizing coal to the consistency of talcum powder so that it becomes a fluid when heated and runs like water, will be followed by the use of the new coal oil in internal combustion engines instead of gasoline. The first automobile engine to use oil obtained by pulverizing coal will be operated in Kansas City in a few weeks, he asserted.

Now that coal can be treated as a liquid instead of a solid, the coal industry and all coal technic must undergo a change, said Mr. Trent, predicting that the mining of coal, its transportation, its burning and carbonization and its gasification will be affected.

Merely heating the crushed coal to a point at which vapors are generated gives to the coal a state of great mobility, he explained. In this condition it resembles liquids and it can be made to flow, run and seek its own level.

Says Locomotives Will Use It.

Power from pulverized coal, said Mr. Trent when questioned after reading his paper, will compete with that of gasoline at 6 cents a gallon. The first use of the fuel he expects to be in the stationary engine, then in the automobile engine and later in locomotives and ships.

In the process of pulverization, which he explained today, Mr. Trent said that the 600 square miles of high ash anthracite of Rhode Island and Massachusetts, now untouched, could be brought into use. The ash could be removed by "dry cleaning" the coal, then mixed with oil to form an amalgam or "plastic fuel" and the briquettes burned in the furnace.

This development should considerably reduce New England's $200,000,000 annual fuel bill which goes to other States, he said. In the same way, he added, the hitherto worthless oil fields of Brazil might be brought into the market to help make South America independent of foreign sources of supply.

"Because coal can be purified," he said, "because it can be pulverized to minute sizes; because it can be distilled at high thermal efficiencies to produce oil, gas or carbonized powder; because it can be made to flow and to pump; because it responds to the most efficient methods for the creation of mechanical energy, the world may look forward with confidence to a new age of coal, greater and more permanent."

Synthetic Alcohol in France.

General Georges E. Patart, who was in charge of the manufacture of munitions in France during the World War, described his work in building up alcohol from coal which he said would compete with gasoline as motor fuel.

Paul Dumanois, chief engineer of the French Air Service, who was unable to be present but forwarded his paper to be inserted in the proceedings of the conference, supplemented the narrative of General Patart by describing the successful use of the synthetic alcohol in internal combustion engines.

In a 1,000-kilometer run conducted by the Automobile Club of France, wrote M. Dumanois, the synthetic alcohol showed a saving of 15 per cent. in calories over gasoline, and the temperature of water in the radiator was considerably lower than in the case of gasoline.

Grades were climbed with the throttle wide open without the least bit of knocking, wrote M. Dumanois, the motor giving the impression of a steam engine. He said he could easily conceive of the successful manufacture of a fuel from coal for automobile engines that offers safety of operation and a convenience of use at least equivalent to that given by the best gasoline, with a saving of calories in respect to the latter.

Dr. R. Lessing, a consulting engineer of London, discussed the tremendous waste of burning coal that has not been cleaned. He calculated the tonnage of ash contained in the annual coal production of Great Britain as being 25,000,000 tons or more than the output of iron ore. The cost of railway transport of this useless material he estimated was about $25,000,000, which, after the cost of handling, ash disposal and consequental losses, "brought the total to the stupendous figures of from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 of non-productive expenditure."

Sees New Age of Coal at Hand.

Dr. Edwin E. Slosson, Director of the Science Service, Washington, in an address on "the coming of the new coal age," said that the "old coal age," which has lasted 600 years, knew nothing better to do with coal than to burn it. But in "the new coal age," he said, "we have found that coal can be put to better purposes than to be burned in its crude state."

After pointing out that 600 years ago the use of coal as fuel in London was a capital offense and one man was executed for the crime, he said:

"We laugh at the people of 600 years ago because they thought that coal was not fit to burn. But bill not the people of 600 years hense laugh at us because we thought that coal was fit for nothing but to burn?"

George A. Orrock, consulting engineer of the New York Edison Company, discussed the problem of stations generating power at the mine mouth. Many papers on this subject, he said, have been written by people who were not in the power business and who had a more or less imperfect knowledge of the demands of an electrical supply system.

The location of every generating station, said Mr. Orrock, was a separate problem, in which many factors had to be taken into consideration.

"Under normal conditions," he continued, "the building of mine mouth central stations will be limited to those localities where a sufficient and reasonably good supply of water may be obtained and where the market is sufficiently close at hand to avoid high transmission cost."

Mr. Orrock pointed out that to locate a power generating station in a coal field where there is a lack of abundant water would be prohibitive in cost.

Industry's Dependence on Coal.

Walter Barnum, President of the National Coal Association, spoke of the dependence of modern industry on a constant supply of bituminous coal.

"An industry which has been functioning for more than a century and during its entire life has had only four marked interruptions of supply on account of labor difficulties can certainly stand comparison with the other major industries of the country," he said. "Neither of the two occasions since the war when there were sudden increases in demand, with some consequent rise in prices, was attributable either to a strike already in existence in this country or to the fear of a strike.

"In both cases the immediate cause was a sudden increase in export demand, and on both occasions this increase was due to the suspension of mining in Great Britain, where the coal industry has been legislated nearly to death."

Referring to demands for Federal interference in the way of price legislation, he said that the cause of these price increases, export demand, was not only beyond the control of American operators but beyond the control of the Government itself.

Other speakers today were: Dr. Yoshikiyo Oshima, Director of the Imperial Fuel Research Institute, Tokio; Robert M. Crawford, Pittsburgh; Dr. Charles M. Stine, Wilmington, Del.; John Morris Weiss, New York; S. R. Church, New York; Frank F. Marquard, Clairton, Pa.; Alfred H. White, University of Michigan; Jean Bing, Paris, France; Fred R. Low, New York; Henry Kreisinger, New York, and Dr. Hugh S. Taylor, Princeton University.

The conference will continue tomorrow.

New Russian Brake Fails; Seven Die on Trial Trip

TIFLIS, Georgia, Nov. 16 (AP).—Experiments intended to demonstrate the efficiency of the new Kazantzev brake, which Russians hoped would replace the American brake, ended disastrously near here today, when a train of thirty-six cars equipped with this invention toppled over an embankment while going at full speed.

Seven persons were killed, a score seriously injured, and some of the cars were reduced to splinters because the device failed to work.

Iggor Kazentzev, the inventor, was at Tiflis while the experiments were being made.

WALK IN HUDSON TUBE FINISHES ELOPEMENT

Youth and Girl in Boy's Garb Seized as They Emerge in New Jersey—Wed After Arrest.

A trip to the far West which James Berbrick, 23 years old of St. James, L. I., and Mary Kelly, 16 years old of Ozone Park, commenced early yesterday morning by walking through the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel from Manhattan to New Jersey ended last night in North Bergen where Recorder Alfred Miles married them instead of holding them on the charges on which they were arraigned.

The decision to leave for the West was reached on Monday night when the girl was reprimanded by her father for not having supper ready when he returned. She informed Berbrick, a switchman for the Long Island Railroad, of her plans and leaving home stealthily changed to boy's clothing in a box car near by.

Berbrick and she rode in the subway to the Pennsylvania Station and eluding guards there plunged into the tunnel. For threo hours they walked under the river. Eight trains passed them, forcing them to press closely against the tunnel walls.

Black with grime they were caught by Patrolman Becker just as they were emerging near the Homestead station in North Bergen. At the police station sleep overcame their cares and they slumbered until the afternoon and then awoke to find Michael Kelly and Mrs. Kelly, Mary's father and mother, at the station house. The father was irate but the mother was inclined to be lenient.

There was considerable bickering, but finally all was put aright when the Recorder performed the marriage ceremony in the court room. Mrs. Kelly said the couple probably would go through another marriage ceremony soon before a Catholic priest.

TENTH OF KING ESTATE TO GO TO COLUMBIA

Banker and University Trustee Announcing Intention, Urges Other Alumni to Do as He.

Willard V. King, banker and trustee of Columbia University, announced yesterday that he had made provision in his will to leave one-tenth of his estate to Columbia University, and urged other Columbia graduates to follow his example.

"I have discussed the question with many other graduates of Columbia and have reason to believe that a number of them will join me in making provision for Columbia in similar fashion," said Mr. King yesterday at his office, 60 Broadway. "I am not at liberty to name any of them.

"I owe a great deal to Columbia. So do other graduates. The future of the institution must depend largely on the financial support it receives from the alumni. The students at present pay only about 40 per cent. of the cost of maintaining the institution. Columbia is an institution of tremendous value to this nation. We must consider her financial needs and plan for her future.

"Now, what I propose is this, that every loyal alumnus should draw a will leaving to Columbia one-tenth of his property. If his estate is small this one-tenth will not hurt his heirs, and if his estate is large it will be a blessing to them, for I firmly believe that the worst thing a man can do for his children is to leave them large sums of money.

"Of course, it would be some years before the university would profit much by this means, but after some years a steady stream would be added to its resources."

SAYS SKYSCRAPERS DRIVE OUT TRADE

R. A. Pope Would Have Height Limited by Capacity of Streets.

PICTURES IDEAL NEW YORK

It Should Be Centre of Art and Play, Not Largest Manufacturing City, He Declares.

No solution of the skyscraper problem will be reached until city authorities determine the traffic capacity of streets in various parts of the city and then arbitrarily limit the height of buildings so as not to "overload" the streets, according to Robert Anderson Pope, an engineer, of 36 West Forty-fourth Street, and a member of the American Town Planning Association.

Mr. Pope drew up a plan to deal with the increasing menace of the skyscraper nearly ten years ago, and for some time was interested in city planning, until, he said, he found that apparently nothing radical enough to cope with the situation could be done. The only city plan that dealt with the height of buildings, he said, had been formed with regard to light and air and not at all with regard to traffic, which should be the scientific basis for any height limitation.

Natural laws are to a certain extent curbing the bad influence of the skyscraper, he said, because the present congestion is proving so uneconomic that it is driving business from New York and causing many office buildings which formerly would have been located in the heart of Manhattan to be built in Brooklyn, or even in Jersey City.

Calls Size a Liability.

"Size is a liability, not an asset," said Mr. Pope. "New York should not necessarily strive to be the biggest city in the world. To me that is a wrong conception of New York's position. The greatest city is not the biggest city. The greatest city is the city which offers the best possible living conditions to its citizens and which is so planned that, although it may be large, it also is the home of people who have the greatest opportunity to live happy lives.

"There is no solution in merely providing greater traffic facilities, as Mr. Edison suggests. We got along very well before the subways were built. Building them merely increased the congestion by opening up districts which flowed every day into the centre of the city. To build more subways will merely have the same effect.

"New York shouldn't be the largest manufacturing city, the largest business city, in the world. That is not its future. New York should be the centre of art and music, of recreation, of theatres, of hotels; the place where the people of all the country come when they want to play as well as to conduct financial operations."

Herbert Adams of the Regional Plan for New York said that although skyscrapers were a small part of the city and did not seem to be the greatest cause of congestion, they might in the future threaten the life of the city itself. He thought that the greatest argument against the skyscrapers was the statement of Borough President Miller, "who was in favor of them, but said that to have them we would have to live underground."

The modern skyscraper is not altogether an economic asset, said W. Bourke Harmon of the Harmon National Real Estate Corporation. It had been proved, he said, that the first two stories of a high building were the revenue-producing stories and that above that only enough income is produced to pay the interest on the investment in construction.

ROCKEFELLER GIFT OF $25,000 TO Y. W. C. A.

Anonymous Donor Subscribes a Like Sum for Studio Club Building Fund.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr. gave $25,000 yesterday toward the $265,000 needed by the Y. W. C. A. of the City of New York for the 1927 current expense budget. An anonymous donor gave $25,000 through Mrs. John C. Clark toward the $65,000 building fund for the Studio Club of the Y. W. C. A.

The campaign total reached $174,566.36 yesterday and the Studio Club Building Fund $29,655. Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan of the Special Gifts Committee reported the gift of $25,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller.

Mrs. Philip Le Boutillier, campaign Chairman, presided at the luncheon and Mrs. Jonathan Buckley, First Vice President of the Y. W. C. A., called for the reports from teams. They were as follows: Central Branch, $724.62; Central Club for Nurses, $1,213.50; French Branch, $74.48; Harlem Branch, $456.94; International Institute, $196; independent teams, $95; Laura Spelman Hall, $180; Margaret Louisa, $515; Tatham House, $570; Studio Club, $30; West 137th Street, $397.05; West Side Branch, $1,663; Special Gifts Committee, $25,000; making a total of $31,130.78 for yesterday.

Three teams—French Branch, Margaret Louisa and Tatham House—were reported yesterday as having raised their entire quota for the campaign.

TWO POLICEMEN CLEARED.

Complaint of Girls Against Dolan and O'Halloran Dismissed.

Magistrate Georgo W. Simpson in the Tombs Court yesterday dismissed charges which had been made against Patrolmen James J. Dolan and John O'Halloran of the Old Slip Station by two 13-year-old girls. The Magistrate said that insufficient evidence had been produced and he disbelieved the stories told by the girls—Mildred Rhodes of 206 Elton Street and Mary Foley of 23 Arlington Avenue, both of Brooklyn.

The two policemen were arrested on the complaint of the girls last week when the girls were discovered to have registered at the Glen Island Hotel at West and Cortlandt Streets on the representation that their homes were in Philadelphia. Cross-examination of the Rhodes girl by counsel for the policemen revealed that she frequently had run away from home. It was understood that despite the dismissal of the girls' charges, the policemen still would have to face disciplinary charges in the Police Department.

Hawk Drops in on Admiral Sims.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 16.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., retired, had quite a surprise this morning. While he was sitting in his home on Catherine Street a hawk as large as a hen came crashing through a windowpane. The bird evidently had been blown out of its course by a gale that was blowing. The hawk lay stunned on the floor. The Admiral put it on the window sill, and a few minutes later it flew away.

Australia to Name Minister to Washington; Premier Bruce May Come to Elevate Denison

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The status of Sir Hugh Denison, Australia's High Commissioner to the United States, is to be changed to that of Minister within three months, according to informations gained tonight in an authoritative quarter.

Premier Bruce of Australia may possibly proceed homeward from the British Imperial Conference at London by way of the United States, and it is probable the contemplated change in Australia's representation in this country may be made at that time.

If, however, the Australian Premier—who must he home before the Duke and Duchess of York make their official visit to the Commonwealth—is forced to cancel his American trip, some other suitable occasion will be selected for the announcement, and one that may emphasize the importance of closer relationship between the two English-speaking peoples in the Pacific.

The appointment of Sir Hugh Denison as Minister for Australia at Washington would make the third British Dominion represented by a Minister in the United States. Soon after it was set up, the Irish Free State sent a Minister to Washington. It is now represented by Timothy A. Smiddy, M. P. A few days ago it was announced at Ottawa that Vincent Massey had been appointed Canadian Minister to the United States.

The status of the representatives of the Dominions in Washington has been a live issue in their various capitals for some time, and has been a subject of discussion at the imperial conference still in session in London. No objection has been raised by Great Britain at any time to the raising of the status of the Dominion representatives, and the principal difficulty has been to draft a method of procedure so the Dominion Ministers could work in cooperation with the British Ambassador, who hitherto has singlehandedly taken care of all empire interests. Evidently the imperial conference has decided on such a procedure.

The Irish Free State also has a permanent Minister accredited to the League of Nations at Geneva, and is reported considering the appointment of a Minister to the Vatican.

CHICAGO DECLARED 'AN OUTLAW CITY'

Speakers Before Lake Harbors Association Denounce Her Diversion of Water.

CANADIANS JOIN PROTESTS

Shipping Men Assert Chicago Is Guilty of Violating Treaty in Her Sanitary District.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—Chicago's diversion of water from the Great Lakes was called "steal," "robbery" and equally uncomplimentary terms by speakers at today's session of the Great Lakes Harbors Association of the United States and Canada.

The keynote of the meeting was sounded by William George Bruce of Milwaukee, President of the organization, with the assertion that Chicago stood before its nation as an outlaw city, shamelessly ignoring the rights of its neighbors and defying the laws of the land.

Representative W. W. Chalmers of Toledo and Cornelius Corcoran, President of the Milwaukee City Council, were even stronger in their denunciations.

M. F. Fennell Jr., representing the Shipping Federation of Canada, asserted that Canada would oppose any project for international control affecting the Great Lakes or the St. Lawrence until the wrong done to Canadian shipping by diversion at Chicago was righted. He termed the diversion an infringement of Canada's rights and the violation of an international treaty.

"Neither Canada nor her shipping interests," he declared, "will ever accept compensation for the diversion, but will insist on the water itself, and nothing else."

C. Alfred Maguire, former Mayor of Toronto, expressed confidence that the present proceedings against Illinois and the Chicago Sanitary District would result in an honest settlement of the dispute, but he asked the convention to pass a resolution urging that Chicago be compelled to live up to the amount of diversion allowed under the law.

Mr. Corcoran urged that Chicago be prevented from treating as a scrap of paper the international treaty with Canada, and called up the Government to stop the "robbery."

Representative Chalmers absolved the Illinois Representatives in Congress of guilt in the matter, saying they were mere pawns in the hands of the real "criminal," the Chicago Sanitary District.

PLAN $15,000,000 DRIVE FOR CHURCH PENSIONS

Presbyterian Laymen Arrange Details at Dinner—To Start on December 3.

Plans for carrying on the $15,000,000 service pension fund campaign in the Presbyteries of New York, Brooklyn, Nassau and Westchester were discussed last night at a dinner in the Hotel Biltmore, given by the National Laymen's Committee of One Hundred of the Presbyterian Church. About 300 layman and ministers for the 177 churches in these three presbyteries were guests. William M. Kingsley presided.

The importance of the service pension plan, which will provide moderate pensions for ministers, missionaries and their dependents, was explained by Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Laymen's Committee. The campaign to raise the fund will start Dec. 3.

"I have complete faith in the fulfillment of the campaign," said Mr. Hays. "Nothing with which any of us is engaged is so important as that which has to do with religion. The one essential industry of the world is religion."

The Rev. Henry B. Master, General Secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relief, also spoke on the pension plan.

MRS. DENINO ARRAIGNED.

Harry K. Thaw to Hire Alienist to Aid Girl Slayer's Defense.

After a conference yesterday between Harry K. Thaw and Samuel Goldstein of 910 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, counsel for Mrs. Catherino Denino, the sixteen-year-old slayer of Luigi Fino, who, she said, had wrecked her life, it was announced that Thaw contemplated engaging an alienist for her defense. Mrs. Denino was arraigned in the Bronx Homicide Court and, at the request of counsel, her case was put over until Nov. 24. She was held without bail.

After the shooting Mrs. Denino charged that Fino had wronged her when she was only 13 and that her baby had died at birth. Mr. Goldstein said yesterday that although Mrs. Denino believed her baby died it had really been taken from her and placed in the care of foster parents. The baby is now 3 years old. The lawyer said that as soon as it was discovered that the baby was alive District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx had been notified and the child probably will be brought to Mr. McGeehan's office today.

SHORTAGE ALLEGED IN PAINTERS' UNION

Secretary of a Local Charges Audit Shows $100,000 Missing in District Council Funds.

INQUIRY BY NATIONAL BOARD

Some Members Say Payments Were Not Properly Recorded—Case Laid Before District Attorney.

Trouble long brewing in the New York ranks of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America has come to an acute stage, it was announced yesterday by Thomas Wright, Secretary of Local 905, who said that an audit of the minutes of District Council 9 had disclosed a shortage of between $100,000 and $200,000. The audit covers several years and was made as a result of a preliminary investigation, which was alleged to have shown a shortage of $30,000 in the last nineteen months.

Investigation into the affairs of the District Council here has been taken up by the Executive Committee of the union, which has headquarters in Lafayette, Ind. Not only have the facts disclosed been laid before the District Attorney, but several days ago Mr. Wright obtained in the West Side Court a summons for Charles Koenig, the Financial Secretary of the District Council, who he wanted to explain the alleged withholding of funds of the organization. Local 905 has been joined by Local 1011 in the inquiry now pending.

The preliminary examination of the minutes of the council was undertaken, Mr. Wright said, after it had been discovered that some members contended they had made payments to the council and that no proper record had been made of them. In the nineteen months covered by the first audit it was found, Mr. Wright said, that 330 members were alleged to have paid $75 initiation fee and that this money could not be accounted for. The District Council is made up of thirty-eight representatives of fourteen local unions, and of this number, it was said, only a few took an active interest in the business of the council.

As soon as the first alleged shortage was discovered Local 905 had the accounting firm of Falk, Dworkin & Co. make an investigation covering several years and notified headquarters in Lafayette. The Executive Committee in a body hurried to this city and personally checked up the audit. Then the committee returned to Indiana and promised a searching inquiry into the whole subject. Mr. Wright has been trying to find Koenig to serve him with the summons.

Officers of Local 905 appealed to the District Attorney because it was alleged that threats of violence had been made against those who have the inquiry in hand. The District Council is said to handle more than $100,000 union funds each year. The charge made to the Executive Committee is supported by the affidavits of some of those who allege they paid money for which no proper account has been made.

NEW PARKS ARE NAMED FOR GUIDER AND KILMER

Aldermen Honor Late Borough President and Poet Killed in the World War.

Two new memorial parks were designated by the Board of Aldermen yesterday. One, in Brooklyn, in a section in which he was born and reared, will be known as Joseph A. Guider Park, in memory of the late Borough President of Brooklyn. The other, a four-block site on the Grand Concourse, the Bronx, will be designated Joyce Kilmer Park, in honor of the soldier, poet and journalist who was killed in the World War when a member of the old "fighting Sixty-ninth Infantry."

It was a coincidence that Father Francis P. Duffy, beloved chaplain of that famous regiment, pronounced the invocation yesterday at the opening of the session of the board.

Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee will ask the Board of Estimate on Thursday to provide funds so that the Brooklyn Park Commissioner may put the new Guider Park in order. It is bounded by Eastern Parkway, Classon Avenue and Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, and was designated under a resolution introduced by Alderman James B. Allen of that district.

Alderman Edward J. Walsh of the Bronx introduced the resolution for the Joyce Kilmer site. It extends one block east and west of the Grand Concourse, between 161st and 164th Streets.

DYOTT IS DELAYED IN BRAZILIAN WILDS

Explorer Has Difficulty Getting Men to Make Trip to Roosevelt's River of Doubt.

INDIANS APPEAR HOSTILE

But He Fortunately Meets Roosevelt Canoe Man, Who, With His Comrades, Promises Help.

By GEORGE MILLER DYOTT.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SEPOTUMBA, Matto Grosso, Brazil, Nov. 6, via Millers Station I-LB, Brazil, and Decatur, Ill., Nov. 15.—The Dyott expedition is still encamped at Sepotumba. We are unable to proceed, as few men are willing to accompany us further.

Six men are reported to have been killed by Indians near Juruena. Heavy storms during the past week indicate that the rainy season will start early. If so, the difficulties of traveling to Duvida [the River of Doubt] will increase and the delay will be very serious.

Fortunately, we have found the canoe man who went with Roosevelt. He will come with us, bringing other comrades with him.

All hands have settled down to a round of camp life. Our food is simple. We are now enjoying two meals a day. Rico and beans for breakfast and beans and rice for supper. We have also a supply of dried meat with a strong smell, but it tastes like a dinner at the Ritz when you are hungry.

The addition to the party, Ramovde Oaz, whom we took on in Rio Janeiro, will continue to Duvida and then return with our pack animals, bringing photographs and films to that point, thus avoiding possible loss in the river.

Commander Dyott is leading an expedition in the footsteps of Colonel Roosevelt over the highlands of Matto Grosso in Brazil and down the River of Douht, first explored by Colonel Roosevelt and his party.

Commander Dyott's expedition has the approval of the Roosevelt family and of the Roosevelt Memorial Foundation. One of its purposes is to film the region explored by Colonel Roosevelt in order to fill in the one great gap in the film history of the ex-President.

The River Juruena, mentioned in the dispatch, is one of the feeders of the Tapajos, which flows north into the Amazon. After reaching the Juruena, the Dyott expedition will have a long march across the Brazilian highland to the upper reaches of the Rio Duvida, or Rio Teodoro, or River of Doubt. This also flows north to the Amazon, paralleling its course of the Tapajos, but to the south of the latter.

The Indians, who are reported to be active again, have been hostile to all white men who have entered the region. One of their arrows whizzed close to Colonel Roosevelt. It came without any warning.

Commander Dyott carried varied radio equipment with him and hoped to report progress on short wavelengths throughout the entire course of his expedition.

The above dispatch was sent by Commander Dyott on Nov. 6 through his portable radio set to Amateur Station I-LB in Brazil for retransmission to this country. It took Station I-LB until Nov. 15 to make contact with an amateur station in the United States, when the message was taken by M. C. Spies in Decatur, Ill., and forwarded by telegraph to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HUNT IN RAINSTORM FOR TWO MISSING MEN

Searchers Scour Catskills Vainly for Trapper and Adirondacks for New York Hunter.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—At nightfall tonight searchers for Edwin Probst, aged 24, of Elizabeth, N. J., were still unsuccessful in their efforts to locate him on South Mountain, near Windham, twenty-five miles from here. Probst has been missing since Sunday morning.

High winds and driving rain kept the searching party today to not more than fifteen, but they were out all day in the mountain storm in their fruitless search. George Probst, brother of the missing man, arrived today from Elizabeth.

Mr. Probst came to Hensonville, a mile from Windham, last July to recover his health after he had suffered a nervous breakdown. With improvement in his health he became interested in trapping and soon established a large line on South Mountain. He left his boarding house in Hensonville at 6 o'clock Sunday morning to visit his forty traps. When he had not returned at noon, as was his custom, F. B. Makely, proprietor of the boarding house, sounded the alarm.

CHASEY-LAKE, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—Searchers returned here tonight after an all-day tramp through Ellenburgh Mountain in the Adirondacks without finding a trace of Charles Hanson, New York hunter, who has been missing since yesterday.

One of the searchers, Hugh Rell, also of New York, was preparing to return to the mountain and planned to light a fire in Bradley Swamp, while others of the party notified State Troopers and the barracks of the 26th Infantry at Plattsburgh.

Hanson was lost when he and Rell and Joseph Noel of Chasey Lake started a drive for deer down the mountain yesterday. Hanson walked in the centre of the drive and Noel and Rell on either side of him. Noel and Rell met at the appointed place, but Hanson failed to appear.

When Hanson did not appear, both of the hunters fired shots into the air, but received no answer. They then returned to the Noel home at Chasey Lake where Hanson and Rell had been boarding. Rell went back to the mountain and searched all night, visiting the lumber camp of Clinton Prison at Dannemora, two miles from the mountain. Hanson is lost in a wooded area of about forty-five square miles.

Search for Hanson was made difficult by a heavy rainstorm.

BANK THIEVES MISS $10,000.

But Loot McClure (Pa.) Institution of Bonds and Other Valuables.

McCLURE, Pa., Nov. 16 (AP).—Robbers looted the First National Bank of this place of approximately $1,000 in cash and thousands of dollars' worth of negotiable securities today and escaped without leaving any trace of their identity.

A check-up showed the robbers overlooked about $10,000 in cash, but got away with about $20,000 in securities belonging to the bank and securities and other valuables estimated at $30,000 belonging to holders of safety deposit boxes which the robbers ripped open and rifled.

WALKER AND WALLIS CONFER ON TOMBS

Correction Head Agrees With Warren's Report, but Will Continue Own Inquiry.

PLAN AWARD FOR WIDOWS

Aldermen Get Bill to Compensate Slain Guards' Wives With Sum Equal to Year's Salary.

Mayor Walker conferred yesterday for an hour and twenty minutes with Commissioner of Correction Frederick A. Wallis, whose administration of the Tombs was criticized in the report of Commissioner of Accounts Warren on the attempted jail break of Nov. 3, which resulted in five deaths. At the end of the conference Mayor Walker said:

"Our discussion was not finished. It is going to be renewed when Commissioner Wallis concludes some phases of the investigation he is conducting himself."

Asked if the explanations of Commissioner Wallis were satisfactory, Mayor Walker said:

"It doesn't make any difference whether I am satisfied or not until the Commissioner finishes his investigation and our discussion ends."

Wallis Agrees With Report.

A letter from Mr. Wallis to the Mayor was made public, in which the Commissioner said he found himself in general agreement with the Warren report, which reflected so severely on the Wallis administration. In this letter Commissioner Wallis said:

"I would respectfully state that I feel that Commissioner Warren's report is in general a fair one, although in minor details there are a few conclusions which one not in official daily touch with prison administration would make, coming suddenly into a new situation of this kind.

"Referring to the suggestions in the Commissioners' report, I would say that I endorse them absolutely as they are in substance, the recommendations which were incorporated in official communications, under date of June 3, Aug. 11 and Aug. 31, and which I have made in person to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment from time to time and in official orders to the Wardens and heads of our various penal institutions in the last nine months."

A report on the attempted break in the Tombs, written by Commissioner Wallis on Nov. 10, also was made public. Mr. Wallis described the steps that he had taken, after the Tombs break, to prevent any repetition. In his report Commissioner Wallis said:

"Our investigation has been hampered by the death of Warden Mallon and the keeper in charge of the yard. There has been full and complete cooperation between the Department of Correction, the District Attorney's offics and the Police Department in running down every possible clue and rumor. Furthermore, our general order files will show repeated notices to the heads of all institutions, in addition to repeated conferences in this office and in the offices of the Wardens."

Bill to Compensate Widows.

While Mayor Walker and Commissioner Wallis were discussing the Tombs tragedy in the Mayor's office the Board of Aldermen meeting on the floor above, received in the aldermanic branch of the Municipal Assembly a bill, which was referred to the Committee on Local Laws, to empower the Board of Estimate to make an award equal to a year's salary to the widow of any prison guard killed in the performance of his duty. The provisions of the bill make it retroactive and if it becomes a law it will apply to the dependents of Warden Peter J. Mallon and Keeper Jeremiah Murphy, who were slain in the Tombs attempted break.

With utmost secrecy as to the identity of witnessee, the investigation of the Tombs break was continued before the regular November Grand Jury. Assistant District Attorney William P. Ryan called witnesses and will eventually ask indictments against Oscar Amberg and Robert Werner for first degree murder in connection with the alleged conspiracy which resulted in the deaths of Warden Mallon and Keeper Murphy.

Meanwhile the larger phases of the investigation, as to possible graft and possible collusion from within the Tombs, will be held somewhat in abeyance until Chief Assistant District Attorney Fordinand Pecora is able to return to his desk. He is now ill and may he confined to his home for several days.

HOLMES CHARGES SLANDER.

Pastor Demends Vindication From Attack by Schools Official.

Vindication of his character from an alleged "slanderous attack" was demanded yesterday by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church of this city, in a letter to Dr. Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education.

Mr. Holmes alleged that the "slanderous attack" had been made upon his character by Eugene C. Gibney, director of extension activities of the New York public schools, in a memorandum dealing with the barring of the American Civil Liberties Union from the New York Public Schools, especially in a passage in the memorandum headed "Public Utterances of the Rev. John Haynes Holmes on Revolution; on Schools and Colleges; on Birth Control." Mr. Holmes is a National Committee member of the Civil Liberties Union and was scheduled to speak at the "old-fashioned free-speech meeting" in the Stuyvesant High School forbidden by the Board of Education last May and June.

ADVOCATES TREATY ON GERMAN CLAIMS

David H. Miller Offers the Ways and Means Committee New Settlement Plan.

WOULD RETURN PROPERTY

But Retain That of the German Government Itself for the Payment of Claims.

PROPOSES PROMPT ACTION

Under His Scheme, He Asserts, Each Government Would Pay Its Own Debts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A treaty between the United States and Germany for settlement of claims arising from the World War was advocated before the Ways and Means Committee today by David Hunter Miller of New York, who was associated with President Wilson as legal adviser to the American Peace Mission. He said he appeared solely in the interest of a just and fair settlement and represented no claimants, nor anybody but himself.

Mr. Miller took sharp issue with Under Secretary of the Treasury Garrard B. Winston, who submitted a plan yesterday contemplating an appropriation of $100,000,000 by Congress for part payment of private claims, and asserted that Germany was not "bankrupt," as intimated in yesterday's testimony, but was enjoying great prosperity.

Mr. Miller pointed to the ability of German interests to borrow money in the United States as an indication of internal good conditions, and said the Winston plan was not necessary for her recovery. Neither the Winston nor other proposals, including the pending Newton and Mills bills, he said, would afford a settlement of the problem on proper terms.

Points in Miller Proposal.

His proposal, Mr. Miller said, would be carried in a bill providing for the proposed treaty, and the main points he advocated were:

The United States to return all property taken over by the Alien Property Custodian, except property of the German Government.

Property belonging to the German Government, if any, taken over by the Alien Property Custodian, to be devoted to the payment of claims against Germany.

The unallocated interest, amounting to about $36,000,000, to be devoted to the payment of claims against Germany.

The amounts now on hand or to come into hand during this year from the 2½ per cent. clause of the Paris agreement of January, 1925, to be devoted to payment of claims against Germany.

Board to Determine Amount.

The amount due by the United States for ships, radio station and patents taken over by the United States as owner or as licensee under the patent, to be determined by a tribunal to be appointed.

This amount found to be due under the foregoing paragraph to be devoted to the payment of American claims against Germany.

Germany to agree to reimburse her nationals in Germany for the amount due for ships, radio station and patents.

In the payment of the American claims from the various sources aforesaid, estimated at $180,000,000, the Government claims would be postponed in favor of the claims of American citizens and American corporations. The claims of American citizens and corporations, with interest, are estimated at $190,000,000; the Government claims, with interest, at $60,000,000.

The balance of the American citizens' claims and the Government claims to be paid from the 2½ per cent. annuity—$11,000,000—under the Dawes plan.

After the American claims are paid, the 2½ per cent. annuity under the Dawes plan to revert to Germany.

Would Pay Most Claims at Once.

Mr. Miller outlined the features of his plan as follows:

The collections for American army costs of $13,000,000 a year, under the Dawes plan, go into the Treasury and stay there. The American claimants other than the Government would substantially all be paid at once. All claims up to, say, $2,000,000, would be paid in full, and the few remaining claims would each get $2,000,000 on account. The balance due on these remaining claims would be paid in approximately five years. The debts of the United States would be paid by the American Government and the debts of Germany by the German Government. All problems of transfer and exchange would be avoided. The American payments would be made in the United States in dollars and the German payments in Germany in marks.

James J. Peaslee of New York, representing German and American claimants, and Lieut.-Col. Joseph MacMullen of the Judge Advocate General's Department also were heard today. The latter estimated the value of German ships, radio station and patents as $45,000,000. He predicted that unless broad general powers were given to an arbitrator to settle these claims at once, it would take ninety years to dispose of them.

RITZ TOWER OPENS.

Apartment Hotel Gives a Dinner in Celebration.

The Ritz Tower, the new forty-story apartment hotel at Park Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, was formally opened last night with a dinner. The hotel is under the management of the Ritz-Carlton Restaurant and Hotel Company, and with the exception of two floors which will be reserved for transient guests, the building is devoted to apartments which are leased for extended periods.

Many of the apartments are already occupied and many of the occupants had guests at the dinner last night. Mr. and Mrs. Rene Gimpel's guests included Mr. and Mrs. F. Ridgway Macy, Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Marshall and Hope Johnson. Others with guests included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Logan, Count and Countess Zichy, Mr. and Mrs. J. Copley Thaw and Colonel and Mrs. George Carruthers.

In performance Radiola 20 Challenges any competitor at any price

Radiola 20 has been tried, tested perfected

Radiola 20, with Radiotrons. Single controlled on near stations; with verniers for accuracy on distance . . $115
RCA Loudspeaker 100 . . $35

NEVER has there been so fine a set at so moderate a price. Never has there been a supply of Radiolas great enough to stand the strain of fall and Christmas demand. Put these two facts together and you will order your Radiola 20 NOW to be sure of getting the RCA Radiola you want, this year.

The Radiola 20 is one of the outstanding achievements of RCA—the proud product of famous engineers. RCA, General Electric and Westinghouse have cooperated to make it finer in tone—sturdier in build—dependable in operation. Plug in the RCA Loudspeaker 100—and match this combination against any competitor—at any price. The real way to let your ear judge is the method the experts use. Listen to the Radiola 20 for at least ten minutes. Then switch to an ordinary set, and the difference shows up sharply because you have accustomed your ear to finer tone.

Radiola 20 has many newly developed refinements—and they have all stood the "road test" of experience. They are proved and perfected.

One outstanding feature is a special "amplification" that gives this set the added distance reach of more tubes! It is extremely sensitive.

It is twenty times as selective as the ordinary radio set.

Its tone quality is unexcelled. A power tube assures clear, true tone even at big volume.

It can be operated either with batteries—or battery eliminators.

Radiola 20 is one of the biggest values in radio today. Such quality at a moderate price has made "unreal" radio obsolete forever. Hear it—and you will be satisfied with nothing else in radio!

892,333,561 FARES FOR B. M. T. IN YEAR

Company Reports 2,500,000 Loss on Surface Lines, but Gain of 30,000,000 on Others.

71.2% INCREASE IN 8 YEARS

More Articulated Cars Expected to Be in Use Next Month—Earnings Improve.

The Brooklyn Manhattan Transit Corporation yesterday issued a pamphlet report of operations in the year to June 30, showing that in that period it had carried 892,333,561 passengers, against 865,169,904 in the same part of last year. Passengers traveling on its surface lines decreased from 271,800,914 to 269,233,886, but those using its elevated and subway lines increased from 593,368,990 to 623,099,695. The report confirmed a preliminary statement that net income in the fiscal year, after payment of 6 per cent. dividends on its preferred stock, was $5,748,187, or $5.52 a share on 769,911 shares of no par common stock outstanding. This compares with $5,073,534, or $4.64 a share, in the previous year.

The report shows that passenger traffic on the company's elevated and subway lines has increased 134.7 per cent. in the last eight years and that the increase for the entire system has been 71.2 per cent. It also shows that the surface lines carry 30.1 per cent. of the total traffic. The report says in part:

"The city is now proceeding with the completion of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line, with the construction of shops and storage tracks near Coney Island, and with the lengthening of certain station platforms to accommodate eight-car trains. In anticipation of requirements for additional equipment your rapid transit operating subsidiary, New York Rapid Transit Corporation, during the preceding year, had under construction twelve cars, comprising four units of articulated cars, designed to produce greater efficiency and safety in operation. They were placed in operation on Aug. 31, 1925, and proved so satisfactory that contracts were placed for 201 additional cars, comprising sixty-seven units of such articulated cars. Deliveries are expected to start in December. The work of assembling and equipping these cars will be undertaken at the Coney Island shops."

SUMMERALL REVIEWS 71ST AS 5,000 LOOK ON

Regiment Stages Its First Dress Review Since 1916—General Is Guest at a Dinner.

Five thousand persons witnessed the first dress review staged by the Seventy-first Infantry since 1916 last evening at the regiment's armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall was the reviewing officer. Many sought in vain for admission after the doors had been closed. The 800 men of the regiment stood at attention at the close of their drill while General Summerall addressed them. Later he and General Robert Lee Bullard, his predecessor in command of the Second Corps Area, addressed the officers in the reception room of Colonel Walter A. DeLemater.

Preceding the review General Summerall was guest of honor at dinner at the Hotel McAlpin, attended by members of his staff and the officers of the regiment. The tables were formed in "S" shape and a miniature in sugar of the General on horseback leaving Governors Island along a road that passed the Capitol and led to the Army Building was placed in front of the General's place.

When General Summerall, accompanied by General Bullard and Colonel DeLamater, passed along the lines of guardsmen standing at attention the crowds in the gallery cheered. After the drill, as he walked from the reviewing stand to the Colonel's quarters, the regimental band played "Auld Lang Syne." Addressing the officers, he expressed the wish that all regiments of the national guard and the regular army would follow the example of the Seventy-first in renewing the custom of wearing distinct regimental uniforms.

TAFT'S WORDS TO STAY IN HARVARD BOOKLET

Reference to Criminal Courts as 'Disgrace to Civilization' Held Despite Protest.

The term, "a disgrace to civilization," applied to the administration of criminal law in this country and attributed to Chief Justice Taft, will be retained in a booklet issued by the Harvard Law School despite the recent protest of William D. Guthrie, President of the New York Bar Association, according to a letter to him made public by Wilson M. Powell, Chairman of the endowment fund of the law school.

A week ago yesterday Mr. Guthrie contributed $10,000 to the endowment fund. In a short speech before Harvard Law School alumni at the Bar Association Building at that time, he attacked the use of the quotation from Chief Justice Taft in a booklet issued for the endowment campaign. Mr. Powell at that time offered to delete the quotation from the book.

In his speech Mr. Guthrie said that Mr. Taft had not been actively engaged in criminal law for many years at the time he made the statement. In his letter, Mr. Powell points out that the phrase was used by Mr. Taft in 1908, in another speech in 1909, and on a third occasion in 1913. He also asserts that it was quoted publicly in Mr. Taft's presence in 1923 without objection on the part of Mr. Taft. On the basis of these findings, he informs Mr. Guthrie that he feels he "must withdraw the offer to delete the passage."

Mr. Guthrie was out of town last night and could not be reached.

DINE IN BUILDING SHACK.

Medical Association Members Elect Mrs. Vanamee as President.

Members of the Uptown Medical Centre Association waded through mud last night at the site of the unfinished medical centre, Broadway and 165th Street and held their second annual dinner in a construction shack. They elected officers for the coming year, formed three committees to aid the work of the medical centre hospitals, and heard Dr. C. C. Burlingame, Executive Secretary of the association, declare that the medical centre idea was spreading from New York to other cities.

Officers elected were: President, Mrs. William Vanamee; First Vice President, Colin Woodward; Second Vice President, Frank Ritchings; Secretary, Dr. Louis T. Wright, and Treasurer, J. Conrad Scheider. Mrs. Vanamee succeeds Murray Hulbert as President.

An educational committee was formed to familiarize the people of New York with the work of the medical centre. Library and flower committees which will assist the hospitals were also formed.

In their addresses, Dr. Burlingame and Mrs. Vanamee called upon the members of the association to insure success for the medical centre by building up cooperation.

It was announced that the association now has over 600 members and would hold quarterly meetings hereafter.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—The principal disturbance that was central immediately north of Lake Superior Monday night has continued to move slowly northeastward, and the secondary disturbance that developed over the Southern Appalachian region has moved rapidly northeastward to the lower Saint Lawrence Valley, with a marked increase in intensity (Quebec 29.36 inches). It has been attended by southeast and south gales along the Atlantic Coast from North Carolina northward to New York City, Atlantic City reporting a maximum velocity of seventy-two miles an hour from the southeast.

The disturbance that moved inland from the North Pacific during Monday has moved quite rapidly southeastward to Texas, with a marked increase in intensity (Abilene 29.48 inches). This disturbance is being closely followed by an area of high pressure of great magnitude, with crest tonight over the Northern Plateau region (Boise, Idaho, 30.54 inches). Pressure is relatively high over Florida and it is high but falling from Newfoundland southwestward to Bermuda.

The Texas disturbance will advance eastward and later toward the northeast and the extensive disturbance over northern sections will move eastward. These disturbances will be followed by the area of high pressure now over the Northwest. As a result there will be rains or snows in the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and in the interior of the North Atlantic States and rain elsewhere east of the Mississippi River within the next thirty-six or forty-eight hours. The weather will be mostly fair Wednesday, however, in the Atlantic and East Gulf States.

The temperature will be somewhat lower in the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, the lower lake region and the Ohio Valley on Wednesday and colder weather will overspread all sections east of the Mississippi River during Thursday.

Storm warnings remain displayed along the New England Coast north of Boston, Mass.

Public School Notes.

PERFORMANCE OF "PINAFORE": The James Monroe High School Glee Clubs are preparing to give several performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "H. M. S. Pinafore." The chorus is being trained by the Misses Gordon and Hoffman of the Music Department. The Elocution Department is coaching the speaking parts. The Physical Training Department is directing the dancing. The Art Department is making the scenery. Mrs. Scanlon of the History Department is in charge of the sale of tickets. Mr. Brown of the Printing Department is chairman of the committee in charge of the programs and advertising. The Science Department will take charge of the lighting effects. Two dances will be interpolated between acts—one by the girls, the other by the boys' dancing classes.

~~ so we measured quantity

~ The quality of Globe~Democrat Financial and Market News has always been acknowledged

A BIG MORNING NEWSPAPER in a wealthy district simply has to offer excellent financial and market news service. The Globe-Democrat found that out long ago.

It's a definite responsibility.

Here is St. Louis—a big industrial city in one of the wealthiest agricultural sections in the nation....the banking and marketing capital of the Eighth Federal Reserve District....the seat of one of the Federal Land Banks, too ....a big investment center....with stock and grain exchanges and close contacts with other big markets....and with dollar-contacts with hundreds of tributary towns throughout this district.

Indispensable to Bankers and Business Men

Now bankers and business men and farmers and stock raisers depend upon institutions like the Globe-Democrat for ready and accurate information as to market quotations.

For instance, we know that the Globe-Democrat is read by executives in 80.1% of the banks in The 49th State and in 68.4% of the banks in the Eighth Federal Reserve District.

Naturally....We have taken special pains to build up and improve our Financial and Market Pages. That's our responsibility.

And, as the responsibility has grown, we have added and added to these pages. New features. More features. Bigger scope. Better, more comprehensive service.

People who know have been telling us that our Financial and Market Pages were among the very best in the country....and that has made us prouder than ever of this service.

We were proud of the quality of this service.

But we didn't realize—really—how big a job we were doing.

....Until, just for a test, we measured the quantity of our Financial and Market News....and compared it with that of other newspapers.

A Striking Comparison with Other Big Papers

For purpose of comparison, computation was made on four highly active market days, in February and March, 1926, but the general average immediately preceding and following this period is practically unchanged.

In a group of twenty of the best known newspapers (both morning and evening) in the nation, the Globe-Democrat ranked among the first six in the average daily volume of financial and market news.

Only in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Los Angeles were the figures tabulated in excess of those of the Globe-Democrat.

It is to be noted that the comparison with the other great metropolitan papers demonstrates most conclusively ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT pre-eminence as the MARKET PAPER, not only of the Eighth Federal Reserve District, but of the Middle West.

In ST. LOUIS ALONE the Globe-Democrat carried more financial and general market news and features of interest to the banker, broker, business man, farmer, investor and the general reading public than the second and third local papers combined.

And the Globe-Democrat naturally carries more Financial Advertising than all other St. Louis newspapers combined.

Such is the medium offered in the St. Louis market for investment advertising. Imagine the influence of your message when it shares the influence of this great newspaper.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Yesterday was not distinguished by important movement on any market. The Stock Exchange call-money rate remained at 5 per cent.; sterling and the franc rose no further, although holding extremely strong around their best recent price; cotton sold down a fraction, and the stock market repeated its irregular action of the last few days. During much of the day there was again the semblance of decided strength in certain quarters of the Stock Exchange. But a survey of the market at the close once more showed net advances and declines to be numerically fairly balanced; some of the day's declines ran to a point or more, and most of the stocks which rose emphatically lost part of their gains in the later trading.

It was not easy to see any real uniformity in the market's movement. Apparently prices rise more readily than they fall, but that is scarcely remarkable, so soon after a drastic downward readjustment. The Standard Oil of New Jersey shares made slight response to the overnight conversion offer; both common and preferred stock ruled below their earlier high prices of the year. United States Steel declined, ostensibly because the company's Chairman brushed aside a Wall Street report, somewhat superfluous in view of the company's recent official declarations, that an extra dividend had suddenly been decided on.

Strength continued to be exhibited on the bond market. The day's "averages" for domestic issues went to a new high figure for the year and since the middle of 1917; foreign bonds averaged only a trifling fraction below the high-record point of last Saturday. The fact that both sterling and francs remained practically stationary in price, notwithstanding active business, was not of itself uninteresting. It suggested, so far as regards the franc, an upward tendency checked by bank or governmental selling, but continuance of the strong buying movement which has characterized this whole month's market.

It is only because of the very large sums involved that the rearrangement of its capital by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey attracts particular attention. The management points out that the transaction has the single purpose of converting into a 5 per cent. capital obligation the bulk of $200,000,000 preferred stock on which at its issue in the difficult market of 1919 and 1920 the company had to fix a cumulative dividend of 7 per cent. These shares were by the terms of issue "callable" at 115; now they are called, the money to retire them being mostly raised through an issue of twenty-year "non-callable" 5 per cent. debenture bonds.

This shifting of liabilities might cause, to people with long memories, recollection of the celebrated and somewhat ill-starred offer by the United States Steel Corporation, in 1902, of $200,000,000 second mortgage bonds in exchange for an equivalent amount of 7 per cent. preferred stock. That proposal met with the severest criticism in conservative quarters of that day; eventually it was abandoned by the company, after only $150,000,000 had been thus exchanged. But the two transactions differ widely. The Steel Corporation of that day was converting a stock liability into funded debt with a fixed lien on the property; a conversion which, opponents of the plan contended, was very far from being warranted by 2 per cent. saving in yearly interest payments. The Standard Oil of New Jersey replaces the 7 per cent. preferred stock which it retires either with new common stock whose dividend is not fixed by contract or with debenture bonds—whose interest, as their descriptive title indicates, is dependent on the earning of the requisite 5 per cent. over the company's actual fixed charges. No valid criticism, even theoretical, can be passed on such an operation.

STANDARD OIL ISSUE OVERBID IN ADVANCE

Subscriptions for $120,000,000 Debentures Estimated at $500,000,000.

OFFERING PRICE NOT KNOWN

General Public Expected to Get Chance at Jersey Company's New Securities.

Heavy oversubscription of the forthcoming offering by J. P. Morgan & Co. of $120,000,000 of 5 per cent. 20-year debentures of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey became assured yesterday when orders for the securities in unprecedented volume continued to pour into that banking house. It was estimated that the advance subscriptions amounted to nearly $500,000,000, and this figure will be greatly increased before the actual offering is made later in this week.

It was reported yesterday in banking circles that the debentures would be offered at 101. Several bids for them at 101½ on a "when issued" basis were reported in Wall Street. Bond experts agreed that the debentures would find a ready market at 101, although it appeared doubtful that the public at large would have an opportunity to participate to any considerable extent in the financing.

By giving the holders of the present $200,000,000 6% 7 per cent. preferred stock, which has been called for retirement on March 15 next, the preference in subscription allotments, the company and the bankers have made it certain, it was estimated yesterday, that virtually all of the debentures will pass into the hands of the present holders of the preferred stock, among whom are some of the most influential interests in the company. Common stockholders, it was said unofficially, would receive preferential treatment also in the allotment of the debentures.

The debentures, it was learned yesterday, probably will have a callable feature, but they will not be convertible. The callable terms have not been disclosed, but it was indicated that they will be favorable.

Trading in the stocks of Standard of New Jersey was active yesterday. Both preferred and common were in active demand, although they moved in opposite directions. The common made a high of 42⅝, a low of 41½ and closed at 41⅝ for a net loss of ⅛ point. The preferred sold at a high of 117⅛ and a low of 117 and closed at 117⅛ for a net gain of ⅛ point. The turnover in the common approximated 33,000 shares, while the transactions in the preferred were around 25,000 shares.

Reports yesterday that a meeting of stockholders of the corporation would be required to authorize the issuance of debentures were found to be unfounded. Authority for the issue already has been granted and the directors are fully clothed with power to complete the entire operation.

So far as could be learned there was no trading in the common stock "rights" involved in the readjustment of the company's capital structure. They are worth about $2.50 apiece, calculated on the basis of the present market price of the common stock. The company is giving the common stockholders the right to subscribe to one additional share for each six now owned.

SILVER UP IN BRISK RALLY.

Exchange Also Advances Here, in London and in China.

A scramble by Chinese and Indian speculators in silver to repurchase short sales yesterday accounted for a brisk rally in the metal. In its wake there also followed a vigorous upturn in the exchanges of the silver issuing countries.

In London the price of silver rose 9/16d to 36d, while locally the price advanced ⅝ cent, to 55⅝ cents. Hongkong exchange improved ½ cent, to 49⅝ cents, and the Shanghai remittance, 1½ cents, to 61½ cents.

Dealers said the immediate reason for the buying came from the close approach of delivery date for silver sold during the hectic selling campaign in August and September, which grew out of the recommendation of the Indian Currency Commission to put India on a gold basis. During the depression, London silver sold down to 24½ d, the lowest since 1915, while the New York price sagged to 51½ cents, also a new low for the last several years.

BRUSSELS LOAN DISTANT.

Bankers Here Say It Is Not Imminent, as Reported.

A report that the City of Brussels was negotiating a large loan in New York and London elicited the information from Wall Street bankers yesterday that while such a transaction was a possibility in the future, it was not imminent. The stabilization of Belgian currency on a gold basis has placed Belgian municipalities on a favorable basis for foreign financing, it was said. Bankers believe that eventually a considerable volume of Belgian industrial and municipal financing will be arranged here.

Another foreign loan being discussed is one of $10,000,000 to the State of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil. This is expected to be offered within the next two weeks by a group headed by Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. Rio Grande do Sul has an 8 per cent. external issue outstanding in the American market, the latest sale of which was at 103½.

BANK TO DOUBLE CAPITAL.

Stock Increase to $100,000,000 Planned by Bancitaly Corporation.

The Bancitaly Corporation will hold a meeting Dec. 7 to authorize an increase in its capital stock from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. For two years the institution has been carrying on a program of expansion which included, in New York, the purchase and subsequent merging of the Bowery Bank and the East River National Bank, and the recent acquisition of the Commercial Exchange Bank in Wall Street, formerly Lionello Perera & Co.

The Bancitaly Corporation controls the Bank of Italy of California, which is said to operate more branch banks than any other institution in the United States.

North American Water Capital.

The North American Water Works Corporation announced yesterday that its initial capitalization would consist of $3,000,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and 60,000 no par common shares. It is not planned to issue any of this stock at present.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

While determined efforts were put forth at various times yesterday to depress the market, the trend of prices on the New York Stock Exchange was in general upward. The call money rate remained at 5 per cent, but that seemed to have little influence in the movement of stocks. Baldwin Locomotive was one of the outstanding features, moving within an arc of more than 5 points and closing the day with a net gain of 2¾. Woolworth, American Can and General Electric were also in active demand and advanced so briskly at times as to attract attention. United States Steel, reversing the trend which it has followed for some time, turned downward and ended the day with a net loss of 1⅝ points. Standard Oil of New Jersey common reacted in response to the announcement of the proposed financing and the declaration of an extra dividend. The stock was down ½ point at the close. The preferred stock of the company, which has been called for retirement next March, moved upward and showed a net gain of ⅝ point at the end of trading.

The Market Under Control.

The more that Wall Street traders in the stock market watch the action of particular issues, the more they seem to be convinced that the market is under skilful control at present, and that movements are staged to synchronize closely with news when it is favorable and that every effort is made to gloss over and minimize developments which might be construed as unsettling. This never has been more evident at any time this year than in yesterday's market, in which price movements were considerably confused, but from which professional traders inferred by the reading of their tickers, ability to hold prices steady.

Awaiting Standard Oil Issue.

Seldom has so much confusion been caused in investment circles as that which has arisen in connection with the forthcoming $120,000,000 issue of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey 5 per cent. debentures. Although the price has not been announced, the orders already received assure a heavy oversubscription. Bids for the bonds on a when-issued basis appeared in Wall Street at 100½ yesterday and the bid price advanced steadily to 101. It was estimated that subscriptions amounting to $500,000,000 will be received for the issue. When the issue was first announced it was believed that it might help to supply the need of new securities among large investors, but it soon became apparent that there would not be nearly enough of the new debentures to go around. This is because the holders of the preferred stock will have the first chance at allotments, and because, if they turn into the new issue only half of the $220,000,000 which they will receive, there will be nothing left for the general market. Investment dealers said frankly that they would be glad when the new offering had been made and was out of the way.

B. & O. and Pennsylvania.

Daniel Willard's announcement that new financing for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad "could be accomplished by further extending the partnership through the medium of the sale of additional shares of stock" drew comment yesterday that the B. & O. might yet beat the Pennsylvania to the tape in the race to issue rights of subscription to new stock. Both roads are in need of remedying their capital structures, but neither would issue stock merely for that purpose. For the last year or so earnings have been so large that additions and betterments to the lines could be provided for out of surplus. This is not as healthy a financial practice for railroads, however, as it is for industrials, as it builds up earnings per share so large as to bring out unfavorable comment, and when additional demands for capital come stock financing will probably be employed to obtain new money.

Chairman Gary Speaks.

A brief statement by Chairman E. H. Gary yesterday set at rest rumors which had spread throughout the financial district to the effect that a special meeting of directors of the United States Steel Corporation was about to be held to authorize a special distribution to stockholders. The action of the common stock quickly demonstrated that at least some of its recent advance had been based upon these rumors. Heavy selling began around 2 o'clock yesterday and before the close of the market the stock had sunk from a high of 153⅝ to a low of 150⅝. Holders of the stock unloaded in such volume at times that the Stock Exchange's ticker tape was almost an unending series of the well known "X." The stock showed some signs of rallying just before the close.

U. S. Bond Yield and New Financing.

The high levels reached by United States Government obligations indicate that the Treasury will be able to obtain very favorable terms in its next great refunding operation, which will be the retirement of the Third Liberty 4¼ per cent. bonds, due in 1928. Three Treasury issues established new high records for all time in the last few days, and most of the Government bonds are now selling on a yield basis of about 3.60 per cent. In the case of one of the Treasury issues, it was pointed out that an institution that bought it at the offering price and sold out at the current premium would have obtained a net yield of close to 6½ per cent. on its money, which is considered remarkable for a premier obligation such as a United States Government bond. The strength in Government issues continued yesterday to be one of the factors contributing to firmness throughout the general bond list.

The Missing Link?

The tentative report submitted yesterday by Examiner Weed of the Interstate Commerce Commission, recommending that the petition of L. F. Loree to lease the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh be denied, dwells particularly on the failure of the promoter to show how he would connect the Delaware & Hudson and the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh. This is exactly what Mr. Loree is believed not to wish to show until he can determine definitely whether it is possible to obtain control of the Lehigh Valley or, failing in that, to purchase the Baker holdings of the Erie. The Lehigh Valley picture is considered a bit discouraging as the stock is so closely held that it has so far been impossible for Mr. Loree and his bankers to do other than prevent the New York Central from absorbing it.

Canada May Get Gold.

Renewed shipments of gold to Canada are considered likely in view of the strength in Canadian exchange. The Canadian dollar was quoted yesterday at a premium of 5-32 of 1 per cent. This is a tiny fraction below the point at which it is calculated gold transfers are profitable, but shipments have been made in the past at the present level. The strength in Canadian exchange is attributed to the heavy movement of grain through the Great Lakes, which is expected to continue in volume until the Winter closes navigation. This movement is somewhat later this year than in 1925, when the gold movement had ceased by the first of October. The exchange rate usually swings in favor of the United States in the Winter months, when Canadian exports are restricted and the Dominion's foreign buying is enlarged.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, NOV. 16, 1926.

Stock Exchange call money continued firm all day at 5 per cent. Something like $20,000,000 was withdrawn, but despite this and the $35,000,000 item on Monday, the day's renewal at 5 per cent. brought such an influx of funds as to leave a moderate share unloaned at the close. Business in time money was light, and quotations nominal. All maturities remained offered at 4½ per cent., with the bid at 4⅜, and here and there occasional trades were arranged at the lenders' figure. No changes were reported in either commercial paper or acceptances.

Pennsylvania and Connecticut four mills tax, Maryland four and one half mills tax and Massachusetts 6% income tax refunded on timely application. Coupon bonds in interchangeable denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100 registerable as to principal. Redeemable at any time on thirty days' notice before September 30, 1936 at 105 and interest and thereafter at a premium decreasing gradually to par in the year preceding maturity.
Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, Trustee.

The Company is the largest public utility in the State of New Hampshire and supplies electric light, power or gas to the cities of Manchester, Nashua, Keene and Laconia. It also operates through subsidiaries the street railway in Manchester and an interurban line to Nashua. The total population served by the Company is approximately 170,000. Installed generating capacity includes hydro-electric stations of 20,200 kilowatt capacity and two steam stations of 20,250 kilowatt capacity, all of which are of modern construction. In the year 1925 about 65% of all kilowatt hour output was hydro generated.

In the opinion of counsel, these Bonds will be secured by a first mortgage on physical properties with a book value substantially in excess of the principal amount of bonds and by a direct lien on the balance of the Company's properties, subject to the lien of certain divisional closed mortgage bonds outstanding with the public in the amount of $5,228,500. The principal amount of these bonds is less than 59% of the book value of the property on which they are to be a direct first mortgage and together with divisional closed mortgage bonds now outstanding are less than 56% of the total book value of all physical properties of the Company.

Combined earnings, after giving effect to present financing:

Twelve Months Ended June 30, 1926
Gross Earnings	$3,417,447

Net Earnings	$1,580,108
Total annual interest on outstanding bonds, including this issue	437,205
Balance	$1,142,903

The proceeds of this financing are to reimburse the Company for retirement of capital obligations amounting to $1,168,500, for additions to its physical properties and other corporate purposes. On completion of this financing the Bonds will be followed by 34,100 no par value shares of $6 Dividend Series Preferred Stock and 100,000 shares of no par value Common Stock, the latter representing a cash investment of more than $8,000,000.

Through control by the New England Public Service Company, the management is in the hands of men of long and successful experience in the operation of important public utility properties.

Issued with the approval of the Public Service Commission of the State of New Hampshire.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE IN NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

Business: Beacon Oil Company, incorporated in Massachusetts in 1919, is engaged in transporting, refining and marketing petroleum products in New England and New York State.

Earnings: Consolidated net income of Beacon Oil Company and its subsidiaries for the four calendar years ended December 31, 1925, before depreciation and Federal taxes, but after deducting all other charges, averaged $1,147,352 per annum or more than 6 times annual interest requirements on this issue. In no year of the above period was such net income less than 3 times such interest requirements.

Such net income for the eight months ended August 31, 1926, as certified by Messrs. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., amounted to $1,297,225, or at the annual rate of more than 10 times such requirements.

Security: Mortgages can be placed on the fixed property of the Company only under the provisions of the indenture, summarized in the President's letter, unless these Debentures shall be equally secured or with the written consent of two-thirds of the then outstanding Debentures.

Based upon a consolidated balance sheet of the Company and its subsidiaries as prepared by Messrs. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. as at August 31, 1926, after giving effect to this financing, net tangible assets, applicable to these Debentures, amount to over $18,000,000. Current assets as of the same date amount to $7,096,082 against current liabilities of $2,244,200.

Common Stock Purchase Warrants: Each $1,000 Debenture is to carry a detachable warrant entitling the holder thereof to purchase Common Stock of the Company as follows: prior to July 1, 1928, 25 shares at $20 per share; on and after July 1, 1928, and prior to July 1, 1929, 24 shares at $21 per share; on and after July 1, 1929, and prior to November 1, 1930, 22½ shares at $23 per share, and on and after November 1, 1930, and prior to November 1, 1931, 22½ shares at $25 per share. Scrip is to be issued for fractional shares. On and after November 1, 1931, such warrants shall be void. The Common Stock of the Company is currently quoted on the New York Curb Market at $16 per share.

More detailed information regarding this issue is contained in a descriptive circular, copies of which will be supplied upon request.

We offer these Debentures, when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of counsel. All legal matters will be passed upon by Messrs. Cotton & Franklin, New York, for the Bankers, and by Messrs. Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt, Boston, for the Company. It is expected that delivery will be made in the form of temporary Debentures with either temporary or definitive Warrants, or in the form of Interim Receipts on or about November 30, 1926.

DELAWARE & HUDSON LEASE CONDEMNED

I. C. C. Examiner Reports Plan for Control of B., R. & P. Is Not in Public's Interest.

NO CONNECTING LINK SHOWN

Way Left Open for Resubmission of Application With Change in This Respect Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Disapproval hy the Interstate Commerce Commission of the application of the Delaware & Hudson Company to acquire control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway is foreshadowed in a report submitted to the commission today by Examiner O. D. Weed.

Examiner Weed recommended a finding that the proposed merger would not be in the public interest. The report will he made the subject of hearings before the commission on Dec. 21.

Commenting on the suggestion of the applicant that consolidation of the two properties would he a step toward formation of a new trunk line, Examiner Weed said that "a plan should be promulgated for the complete formation of a new trunk line before the acquisition herein sought is urged as a step toward the formation of such trunk line."

The examiner's adverse report is based largely on the wide distance that separates the rails of the Delaware & Hudson and the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh. It says:

"The fact that the lines of the applicant and the lessor are so far apart, and the absence of evidence that the applicant can exercise control over any of the existing lines between them, militate against the proposed acquisition of control being viewed as in public interest.

"It is recommended that the application be denied without prejudice to resubmission at such time as it may be shown that a plan has been promulgated for the formation of a combination of carriers that will include a connecting link between the line of the applicant and that of the lessor."

Under the proposed lease, bearing date of Jan. 1, 1926, the B. R. & P. would have been taken over by the D. & H. for 999 years, the latter road paying a sum equal to 6 per cent. of the $6,000,000 preferred stock and $10,500,000 common stock, the interest on bonded indebtedness and other expenses. The stockholders of both roads unanimously approved the arrangement.

The B. R. & P. operates about 600 miles of line extending from Pittsburgh and Newcastle, Pa., to Buffalo and Rochester, N. Y., with branches. The nearest connection with the line of the D. & H. is over the line of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, about 155 miles. By other lines the distance is greater.

The merger of the roads was opposed by the Baltimore & Ohio and the New York Central at recent public hearings.

From first mention of Loren F. Loree's plan to lease the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway for the Delaware & Hudson, Daniel Willard, as President of the Baltimore & Ohio, has actively opposed it. Mr. Willard contended that the day had passed when a railroad promoter could "pay a fancy price" for another line and be permitted to buy it. Such dispositions, he said, under the present system of Federal regulation, must be left to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Counsel for the Delaware & Hudson gave the commission no information at the hearing on the application as to Mr. Loree's plan to join the lines of his system with those of the B., R. & P. Negotiations hy Mr. Loree and the road's bankers for a connecting line have been in progress some time, hut no information as to what property they have obtained has been issued. There have been strong indications that the Lehigh Valley might be used, but an examination of the outstanding stock of that company shows the principal holdings to be about evenly divided between the Loree group and the New York Central group, which also has been impressed by the possibilities of use of the road in a consolidation. Other possible connections for the Delaware & Hudson are the Erie, the Lackawanna or a new road proposed between Easton and Pittsburgh, Pa., which the commission so far has failed to approve.

"In view of the reference by Examiner Weed to the fact that the application might be resubmitted if it included a plan for connecting the lines, railroad men are inclined to believe that Mr. Loree either will "show his hand" before long or will etep out of the picture and leavs the property to the Baltimore & Ohio or the New York Central.

GARY DENIES STEEL EXTRA.

Chairman Declarss No Dividend Has Even Been Discussed.

Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, denied yesterday the report that a special meeting of directors was to be called soon for the declaration of a substantial extra dividend on the common stock.

"The question of an extra dividend or of any dividend in addition to the rate now being paid," be said, "has neither been considered nor discussed."

The common stock broke sharply in response to the publication of this statement. The selling was particularly heavy in the last hour of trading on the Exchange. After retaining the leadership of the market for some time, the stock sold off from 153⅜ to 150⅝ and closed at 150⅞ for a net loss of 1⅝.

STOCK SYNDICATE BROKEN.

Tide Water 6% Preferred Shares Go on Curb and Priee Reacts.

The syndicate which underwrote $46,000,000 of 6 per cent. convertible cumulative preferred stock of the Tide Water Associated Oil Company some months ago has been dissolved and the members have been released from their agreement to hold stock from the market. A few thousand shares of the preferred came on the Curb yesterday and the price reacted about 2 points.

The dissolution does not affect the statue of the syndicate which formed some months ago to sell the common stock of Tide Water. The stock has never been offered and the syndicate has been extended from time to time. The next expiration date is March 20, 1927.

766 Miles of High-Tensio. Lines.

The General Engineering and Management Corporation announced yesterday the completion of 766 miles of high-tension electric lines. The largest operation wae in Michigan, where 537 miles of line extend from Whitehall to Mackinaw City in the north and thence south to Grayling. Other lines connect the central station at Roneeverte, W. Va., and Charlottesville, Va., a distance of 129 miles.

BANK OF AMERICA OPENS ITS NEW HOME TODAY

Structure Will Be Fourth on Same Site—Ceremony Will Last Three Days.

The fourth home of the Bank of America on the same site will be officially opened to the public today at Wall and William Streets. The ceremonies, lasting three days, will include receptions to the officers of correspondent banks, friends and the general public.

Tbe new building, twenty-three stories high, was begun in the Spring of 1924. The Bank of America occupies four floors in addition to the main banking floor and five sub-basements, extending 60 feet deep. Tbe remaining floors are leased for office space. The safe deposits and mechanical equipment for the building are in the five sub-basements.

The Bank of America's first home, occupied 114 years ago, was a brownstone house owned by Francis Bayard Winthrop. The annual rental for this house was $2,000, and the purchase price for it in 1831 was $70,000. The bank's second home was erected in 1835 and served until it was replaced with a much larger structure in 1888. It was this latter building that was torn down to make way for the new structure. Several consolidations have been made by the bank in recent years, including those with the Franklin Trust Company, the Atlantic National Bank and the Battery Park National Bank.

According to its last statement, the Bank of America now has deposits of $144,601,152 and total reeources of $169,917,654. It has four offices in New York City and four in Brooklyn.

TO STOP FOUNDRY WASTE.

Hoover Would Reduce Styles and Sizes, Manufacturers Hear.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 16.—Saying there was a $10,000,000 waste in the Industries of the United States today, W. H. Rastall, Machinery Division Chief of the Department of Commerce in Washington, in addressing the Foundry Equipment and Supply Manufacturers' Association in the Ambassador Hotel stated today that Secretary Hoover was working on a program of elimination of waste and urged the manufacturers to cooperate with him. He said the campaign would aim in part to eliminate unnecessary sizes and styles of machinery.

S. T. Johnson of Chicago is presiding over the convention, which is a quarterly meeting. The delegates represent more than 6,500 foundries. It was reported that the business in the first nine months of this year was 15 per cent greater than the entire trade of last year, a banner period. The association le a branch of the American Foundrymen's Association.

STRAWN DENIES MERGER.

Says Montgomery Ward Will Not Merge With Sears, Roebuek.

Silas H. Strawn, Chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., denied emphatically last night that his company would merge with Sears, Roebuek & Co. Despite previous denials, rumors that the two mail order houses would come under one management, with J. P. Morgan & Co. in control, have been persistent.

"The report is utterly false," said Mr. Strawn. "It is the product of brokerage houses. Such a move may have been discussed by shareholders of our company, hut it has never come before the directors."

Mr. Strawn said that his visit to the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday was in connection with certain of his railroad interests. He said he did not believe that this banking house, as has been reported, had acquired the controlling interest of Julius Rosenwald in Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Mr. Strawn discussed conditions in China before the Foreign Relations Council in the Harvard Club last night.

BANKERS ENTERTAIN SKELLY

Dinner in Vanderbilt Hotel for Head of Oil Company.

William G. Skelly, President of the Skelly Oil Company, drew an optimistic picture of the future of the petroleum industry of America in a talk at a dinner given for him by bankers in the Vanderbilt Hotel last night. There never has been a time in the history of the industry, he said, when conditions have been sounder basically.

"Our net production of both crude oil and natural gasoline is the highest in the company's history," he said. "We are now produeing at the rate of 18,000 barrels of erude and 123,000 gallons of natural gasoline daily. During October the company established a record for gasoline shipments amounting to 1,322 carloads, which compared with 1,110 carloads shipped in the same month last year."

David G. Wells of Palmer & Co. was toastmaster. He presented to Mr. Skelly a silver-framed photograph of the party which made a reeent inepeetion of his properties.

TO TRANSFER SHIP PLANT.

Bethlehem Company Announces Plan in Extension Program.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—The Bethlehem Steel Corporation's ship building and ship repairing eections of the Harlan plant in Wilmington, Del., will be transferred to the Sparrowe Point and Locust Point plants here, it was announced today hy J. M. Willie, general manager of the Locust Point operations.

The corporation recently enlarged its operations by the acquisition of the plants and land of William Numsen & Son, and C. L. Applegarth Company, both of which adjoin the Key Highway yard of the Bethlehem Steel's shipbuilding subsidiary. By the purchase the corporation acquired about twelve additional acres at the Point and work has been etarted on tbe new property.

Ultimately, according to officiale, the Sparrows Point plant will he the largest one operated by the corporation.

79,222-CAR DECLINE IN FREIGHT LOADINGS

Total for Week Ended on Nov. 6 Is Reported by Carriers as 1,137,210.

ELECTION DAY IN THE PERIOD

Seasonal Influences Also at Work, but Traffie Still Exceeds 1,000,000-Car Mark.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on Nov. 6 totaled 1,137,210 cars, it was reported today by the carriers to the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. This was an increase of 74,564 care from the numher for the corresponding week last year and an inerease of 141,931 cars from the same week in 1924.

Due to election day and the annual seasonal decline in traffic, the total for the week was 79,222 cars less than the number loaded in the preceding week, which was 1,216,432 cars, or the greatest number on record.

It was the twenty-fourth week this year that loading of revenue freight has exceeded 1,000,000 cars a week, and the figure hrought the total number of cars loaded for the first forty-five weeks of tbie year up to 46,395,123 cars, an increase of 1,902,374 cars, as compared with the corresponding period of last year and of 4,242,470 cars as compared with 1924.

Loadings of grain and grain products for the week were 50,003 cars, or 3,640 cars more than in the same week laet year, but 4,762 cars less than in the same week in 1924. In the Western districts alone, 31,116 cars were loaded with grain and grain products, an increase of 834 cars as compared with the same week last year.

Miscellaneous freight loadings totaled 419,057 cars, an increase of 21,342 cars in comparison with the corresponding week in 1925 and of 42,047 cars when compared with the same week in 1924. Coal loadings totaled 227,574 cars, 33,209 cars more than in the same week last year and 54,810 cars more than in 1924.

Live stock loading amounted to 37,068 cars, a decrease of 1,036 cars as compared with the corresponding week last year, but an increase of 16 cars by comparison with the same week in 1924. In the Western districts alone, live stock loading was 28,918 cars, or 541 cars less than in the same week last year.

Loading of merchandise and less-than-carload-lot freight was 272,752 cars, an increase of 4,969 cars in comparison with the corresponding week in 1925 and of 19,993 cars when compared with that week in 1924. Forest-products loading totaled 69,469 cars, or 4,655 cars more than in the same week last year and 2,088 cars more than in 1924. Ore loading amounted to 48,271 cars, which was 5,959 cars more than in the same week last year and 24,235 cars more than in 1924. Coke loading was 13,016 cars, 3,004 cars less than in the same week last year, but 3,424 cars more than in the corresponding week two years ago.

All districts showed increases in the total loading of all commodities, not only as compared with the corresponding week in 1925, but also with the same week in 1924.

Car loadings of freight for the week ended Nov. 6 compare as follows with recent weeks of this and previous years:

WOLSELEY MOTORS TO END.

Order Is Issued in London Court on Petition of Stockholders.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Wolseley Motors, Ltd., an off-shoot of Vickers, Ltd., which, like the parent company, recently has been in difficulties, is to be wound up. On the petition of one of its cred orr an order was made in court today. The winding up follows the appointment of joint managers and receivers more than a month ago, after the issue of £1,500,000 debenture stock became enforceable.

The scheme for continuance of the company, in view of the large number of orders received for its makes of automobiles, was submitted to the shareholders, but was not approved. Counsel for the company said today that if the winding up order was obtained, it was practically certain that the unsecured creditors would get nothing at all and he asked a fortnight's adjournment. This, however, was refused by the applicant and the order issued.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE IN NEW YORK, Trustee

Mr. F. L. Dame, Chairman of the Board of Western Power Corporation, has summarized his letter with respect to this issue as follows:

BUSINESS FIELD AND PROPERTIES: Western Power Corporation controls Great Western Power Company of California, San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation, Midland Counties Public Service Corporation and California Electric Generating Company, which supply light and power in more than 200 communities and 26 counties in northern and central California, serving directly territories having an area of about 7,800 square miles and a population estimated at over 1,400,000.

On September 30, 1926, the Corporation's subsidiaries were furnishing electric service to 139,752 customers and gas service to 10,056 customers.

The electric properties of the subsidiaries have a present installed generating capacity of 395,000 H.P., of which 109,000 H. P. is steam and 286,000 H. P. is hydro-electric, to which will be added 44,000 H. P. in January, 1927. 53,000 H. P. additional will be available later in 1927, under favorable arrangements, upon completion of the Bucks Creek power project of the Feather River Power Company.

Under present plans, hydro-electric developments of the Great Western and San Joaquin Companies will ultimately have a capacity of 1,600,000 H. P.

The electric output of the entire system amounted, during the twelve months ended September 30, 1926, to 1,302,842,690 K. W. H.

EARNINGS: For the twelve months ended September 30, 1926, the Consolidated Income Statement of the Corporation and its subsidiaries shows a balance after all prior charges, including Depreciation (but excluding interest on bonds and other debt to be retired with the proceeds of this issue), of $2,207,587.74, or over four times the annual interest on this issue.

SECURITY: The Collateral Trust Gold Bonds (limited to $30,000,000 at any one time outstanding, of which Series A is limited to this issue of $10,000,000) will be general obligations of the Corporation and will be secured by pledge with the Trustee of more than a majority, in each case, of the outstanding stock of the Great Western, San Joaquin and Midland Companies.

EQUITY: The $10,000,000 Series A Bonds will be followed by $9,655,380 par value of Preferred Stock and 219,200 shares of Common Stock (without par value) of the Corporation.

INDENTURE PROVISIONS: The Indenture will provide, among other things, (a) that, on July 1, 1927, and semi-annually thereafter funds will be made available for the purchase of ½ of 1% of Series A Bonds outstanding at such times if obtainable within specified periods at or below 100 and interest; (b) that additional Bonds, of Series A or other series, may be issued against additional pledged securities or cash or Bonds retired otherwise than out of the trust estate; (c) that the Corporation may withdraw pledged securities against Bonds so retired, on the same basis as that on which additional Bonds might be issued against such securities; (d) that the Corporation may substitute other securities for those pledged; and (e) that certain of the terms and provisions of the Indenture may be modified with the consent of the holders of not less than 80% of the outstanding Bonds.

CONVERSION PRIVILEGE: The Indenture will provide that the Series A Bonds will be convertible at their principal amount on or before January 2, 1940, or prior redemption, into Common Stock ($10 par value) of The North American Company (closing price on New York Stock Exchange, November 12, 1926, $50.25 per share) at the following prices:

$75.00 per share for the first $2,000,000 of Bonds converted
81.25 per share for the next $2,000,000 of Bonds converted
87.50 per share for the next $2,000,000 of Bonds converted
93.75 per share for the next $2,000,000 of Bonds converted
100.00 per share for the remainder of Bonds converted.

THE NORTH AMERICAN COMPANY CONTROL: Western Power Corporation is controlled by The North American Company, one of the oldest and most successful public utility holding companies in the United States.

The Indenture and other papers relating to this issue will be prepared for the Corporation by Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell and Messrs. Glenn & Ganter, and approved for the Bankers by Messrs. Breed, Abbott & Morgan.

We offer these bonds for delivery, when, as and if issued and approved by counsel and accepted by us. It is expected that delivery will be made on or about December 1, 1926, in the form of temporary bonds or interim receipts.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Surprising and sensational movements in several of the foreign exchanges yesterday gripped the attention of bankers and dealers interested in European bills. While the better part of the gains scored were first registered in London before our opening, local interest was strong enough to impart still further improvement.

The Norwegian kroner furnished the first thrill when it opened up at an overnight advance of ¾ cent, at 25.73 cents, which was subsequently run up to 25.78 cents, a new high. Buying was purely speculative, dealers asserted, and was based on the recent change in the Norges Bank buying rate for the pound and the belief that parity is not far off. The Danish unit was also strong, but in a movement more limited than the Norwegian, rising to 26.65 cents, with the Stockholm bill at 26.69 cents.

Spanish pesetas felt something of the influence of the move in the Scandinavians since it had been linked with these descriptions in previous speculative campaigns, and Madrid exchange rose 11 points to 15.25 cents. A rise of 8 points in the Italian lire, to 4.20¼ cents, followed a big buying order by a California bank, together with local buying. A jump in silver here and in London as Chinese and Indian speculators covered helped in a rise in the Hongkong and Shanghai rates.

Sterling was firm around $4.84¾, unchanged, as was the French franc at 3.35¾ cents. Bankers resumed transactions in the Belgian belga, which was quoted at 13.92 cents. Swiss, Holland and German were all steady. South Americans were irregular.

TO INCREASE CAPITAL FOR FIRE INSURANCE

Merchants Corporation to Issue 100 Per Cent. Stock Dividend —New Hampshire's Plan.

Two fire insurance companies yesterday announced proposals to increase their capital stocks, one by stock dividends of 100 per cent. Both plans will be submitted to stockholders' vote on Nov. 23.

The Merchants Fire Assurance Corporation plans to double its capital, making it $2,000,000. The directors' proposal involves an increase in the common stock from $750,000, consisting of 30,000 shares of $25 par value, to $1,500,000, consisting of 60,000 shares of $25 par, and an increase in the preferred stock from $250,000, consisting of 2,500 shares of $100 par, to $500,000, consisting of 5,000 shares of $100 par. The plan further provides for the issuance of all the increased common and preferred stock to common stockholders as stock dividends in proportion to their holdings, and the transfer of the equivalent amount from the surplus account to the capital account.

The New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company purposes to increase its capital from $2,250,000 to $2,500,000 by the issuance of $250,000 of new stock at par. The stockholders' approval of the plan is practically assured, as the present market value of the stock is from $360 to $365 a share, the par being $100. In the last ten years the company has increased its capital four times, by $150,000 once and by $250,000 three times, always at par.

Central America Rail Income.

Operating income of the International Railways of Central America for the first ten months of this year aggregated $2,271,752, a gain of $170,837, or 8.1 per cent., over that for the like period last year. Operating revenue for the period this year was $5,793,026, or an increase of $576,784.

Studebaker to Store Cotton.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 16 (AP).—A. R. Erskine, President of the Studebaker Corporation, today announced that for every car sold in November and December in the cotton belt, Studebaker will purchase a bale of cotton at the market price and store it for at least six months. Advertisements of the plan will be published throughout the South tomorrow.

Calls for State Banks' Reports.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP).—The State Superintendent of Banks today issued a call for conditions of State banks, trust companies and private banks at the close of business on Nov. 15.

$38,733,000 BONDS ARE OFFERED TODAY

Four Utility Issues Make Up $34,400,000 of Total of New Securities.

PASSAIC SEEKS $1,083,000

Beacon Oil $3,000,000 Debentures Among the Other Investments In This Market.

A total of $38,733,000 of new bonds, largely in the public utility division, will be offered to investors today. Four utility issues account for $34,400,000 of the total, and there is one industrial offering, as well as two in the municipal group.

An issue of $11,250,000 Potomac Edison Company first mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds, Series E, is offered by W. C. Langley & Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., at 97 and accrued interest. The company is one of the large electric properties of the American Water Works and Electric Company system. It is controlled through ownership of all its common stock by the West Penn Electric Company, which is the electric subsidiary holding company of American Water Works. The Potomac company and subsidiaries report for the year ended Sept. 30, net earnings of $2,132,698 available for interest. Annual interest requirements on the funded debt, including this issue, are $823,720.

Offering is made of $10,000,000 Western Power Corporation 5½ per cent. convertible collateral trust gold bonds, Series A, by Pierce, Fair & Co., Blyth, Witter & Co. and E. H. Rollins & Sons, priced at 99 and interest, to yield about 5.55 per cent. The bonds mature Jan. 1, 1957, and are redeemable at 102½ and interest on thirty days' notice. They will be convertible into common stock of the North American Company, beginning Jan. 2, 1940, the prices ranging from $75 a share up to $100. The company serves a population of 1,400,000 in California.

Public Service Company Issues.

An issue of $10,000,000 Public Service Company of Northern Illinois 5 per cent. debentures is offered by a banking group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. The debentures, which mature Sept. 1, 1931, are priced at 99½ and interest, to yield over 5.10 per cent. The company operates in the territory tributary to Chicago and serves widely diversified manufacturing, agricultural and residential districts. In the twelve months ended Sept. 30, the company reported net earnings of $9,764,694 before depreciation.

Tucker, Anthony & Co., the Old Colony Corporation, and Hill, Joiner & Co., Inc., are distributing $3,150,000 Public Service Company of New Hampshire first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds, Series A, at 99, to yield over 5.06 per cent. The company is the largest public utility in New Hampshire and its net earnings in the year ended June 30 were reported to be $1,580,108, or over 3.6 times the annual bond interest.

White, Weld & Co., Marshall Field, Glore, Ward & Co. and F. S. Smithers & Co. are offering a new issue of $3,000,000 Beacon Oil Company 10-year 6 per cent. sinking fund gold debentures, with common stock purchase warrants. The debentures are priced at 101 and interest, to yield over 5.85 per cent. The company, incorporated in Massachusetts in 1919, is engaged in the transporting, refining and marketing of petroleum products in New England and New York State.

Passaic Bonds Offered.

A syndicate composed of Phelps, Fenn & Co., Redmond & Co. and E. H. Rollins & Sons is marketing a new issue of $1,085,000 City of Passaic, N. J., 4½ per cent. gold bonds, due serially from 1927 to 1947. The bonds are legal investments for savings banks and trust funds in New York and New Jersey. They are priced to yield from 4.10 to 4.20 per cent.

C. W. McNear & Co. are offering an issue of $250,000 Amarillo, Texas, independent school district 5 per cent. bonds, due Oct. 1, 1927 to 1966, priced to yield 4.70 per cent.

NEW RULINGS ON EXCHANGES

Dates Announced for Settlements of Contracts for Curb Stocks.

The New York Curb Exchange has ruled that contracts for United Gas Improvement additional shares of $50 par capital stock must be settled on Nov. 18 by delivery of permanent certificates, that all transactions in the capital stock on that date shall be ex-dividend, and that due bills must be redeemed on that date. Contracts in Ulen & Co. 6½s of 1936 must be settled on Nov. 22 by delivery of temporary bonds.

Contracts for Hugo Stinnes Industries, Inc., twenty-year 7s of 1946, with warrants, must be settled on Nov. 24 by delivery of interim certificates, and those for Hugo Stinnes Corporation ten-year 7 per cent. gold notes of 1936, with warrants, must be settled on the same date.

Deliveries against transactions in Keystone Telephone Company of Philadelphia first lien and refunding 5½s of 1955 may be in the form of either temporary or definitive bonds up to and including Nov. 23, but after that date only definitive bonds may be used. Deliveries against transactions in German Consolidated Municipal Loan 7s of 1947 may be in the form of interim receipts or definitive bonds up to and including Nov. 23, but after that date only definitive bonds shall constitute delivery.

The New York Stock Exchange has admitted to the list the new no-par common stock of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company.

Pure Oil Co. Builds Pipe Line.

A pipe line connection between the Seminole property of the Pure Oil Company and a point eighteen miles distant, from which connections are already laid out to the Cushing and Muskogee refineries, will be completed within a few weeks. Pure Oil's 160-acre tract in the Seminole is directly offset on three sides by the largest wells of the field. The company's production is rated at 26,000 barrels per day by the Seminole Prorating Committee, or about 20 per cent. of the rating of the whole pool.

$10,000,000

Public Service Company

OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

5% Debentures, Series of 1926

Due September 1, 1931

Price 99½ and Interest, Yielding over 5.10%

Dated September 1, 1926. Interest payable semi-annually March 1 and September 1, without deduction for Normal Federal Income Taxes now or hereafter deductible at the source not in excess of 2%. Coupon debentures in $1,000 denomination.

For detailed information regarding these Debentures, attention is directed to a letter of Mr. Samuel Insull, Chairman of the Company, from which the following is summarized:

Territory: The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois serves 278 communities located in a compact area of Illinois, containing some 6,000 square miles and located in sixteen counties, having a combined population, according to the 1920 census of 1,070,849, excluding the City of Chicago. Electric service is rendered in 274 communities, gas in 65, water in 5 and heat in 4. The Company's field of operation, embracing the wealthy suburban territory tributary to Chicago and the surrounding widely diversified manufacturing districts, is an excellent market for light and power and both domestic and industrial gas.

Security: These Debentures will be a direct obligation of the Company and precede 100,000 shares of outstanding Preferred Stock paying $6 per share per annum and 63,576 shares of outstanding Preferred Stock paying $7 per share per annum and 297,371 shares of outstanding Common Stock, paying $8 per share per annum, all having a combined market value as indicated by recent quotations of over $55,500,000.

Purpose of Issue: In addition to meeting the usual demands for new facilities and equipment caused by the steadily increasing business of the Company, the proceeds of this issue will be used in connection with furnishing the power requirements of Chicago, Aurora and Elgin Railroad Company; for extensions and additions to the Company's transmission system, including a second circuit on the 132,000-volt steel tower transmission line in the Skokie Valley from Waukegan to Evanston; for new substations added to the Company's electric system and for important additions to the Company's gas generating equipment.

Earnings: For the 12 months ended September 30, 1926, gross earnings were $23,714,346 and net earnings, before depreciation, etc., $9,764,694. The annual interest requirement on the funded debt of the Company in the hands of the public, including the present issue is $3,737,235.

Management: The Company is managed by experienced public utility men whose ability as economical and efficient operators has been thoroughly demonstrated.

A circular fully descriptive of this issue will be sent upon request

FINANCIAL ENCYCLOPAEDIA

TRANSFER AGENT: The transfer agent is usually a bank or trust company legally empowered by a corporation to receive shares of stock for transfer from one person to another. The importance of this transfer to a buyer of stock is indicated by the fact that unless he arranges to have the stock transferred to his name dividends may be paid to the previous owner. The transfer agent is provided with the corporation seal, as well as books of unissued certificates, and is authorized to issue new certificates when required through the presentation of properly endorsed and witnessed old certificates. In some instances, particularly with smaller corporations, when transfers are infrequent, there may be no outside transfer agent, the corporation appointing one of its own officers to assume this function.

HOLDING COMPANY MERGES UTILITIES

Columbia Gas and Electric in Leading Group, With Assets of $483,000,000.

SERVES 800 COMMUNITIES

Statement From New Corporation Shows Earnings of $4.35 a Share in Nine Months.

The merger of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company and the Ohio Fuel Corporation into the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation has resulted in the creation of an organization with book assets exceeding $483,000,000, it was disclosed yesterday in the first letter sent to stockholders by the new company. The figures show that the new company is well up among the five largest public utility holding companies.

Practically 96 per cent. of Ohio Fuel stock and more than 93 per cent. of common and 77 per cent. of preferred in the old Columbia Gas organization have been deposited for the purposes of the merger, the statement reports. After giving effect to the merger, the new company will have $95,184,800 of preferred and 3,000,000 shares of common stock outstanding. The officers of the company are: President, Philip G. Gossler; Chairman of the Board, George W. Crawford; Vice Presidents, Fred W. Crawford, Leslie R. Denning, W. Winans Freeman, Thomas B. Gregory and John G. Pew; Secretary-Treasurer, Edward Reynolds Jr.

Reserves of the new company exceed $120,000,000 and its surplus is more than $69,000,000. Total bonds and stocks outstanding, including leased company securities, exceed $346,000,000.

The report shows a balance of $17,-333,347, after all charges, for nine months to Sept. 30, equal, after preferred dividends, to $4.35 a share on 3,000,000 common shares to be outstanding. The surplus on the same date was $25,951,322, equal to $8.74 a share on common after preferred dividends. Statements for nine months and the year to Sept. 30 follow:

	9 Months.	12 Months.
Gross	$66,866,209	$91,464,131
Net after taxes and depreciation	31,612,922	31,544,068
Total income	32,860,733	34,461,427
*Surplus after charges	17,332,347	25,951,322

*After preferred dividends of subsidiaries.

The statement of the new company says in part:

"The Columbia system now serves more than eight hundred communities, with an estimated population exceeding 4,400,000. The number of gas and electric customers directly supplied exceeds 1,000,000. Through the supplying of electricity and gas at wholesale to other public utility companies the total population and customers both directly and indirectly served is much larger.

"The output of natural gas by the properties now constituting the Columbia system for twelve months recently amounted to 144,630,000,000 cubic feet, which may be compared with the total of 94,665,000,000 cubic feet of gas reported as the volume distributed in 1925 in the cities of New York, including Brooklyn, and Chicago added together. The field of operations embraces 4,860,000 acres of gas, oil and coal lands owned and leased, of which there are now being operated about 760,000 acres, with more than 6,950 producing gas wells and a total of over 17,650 miles of field, transmission and distribution pipe lines supplying natural gas."

LABOR BUREAU REPORTS LOWER OCTOBER PRICES

One-half of 1% Under September—Due Mainly to Textile and Farm Products.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—A slight decline in the general level of wholesale prices from September to October is shown by information collected in representative markets by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor. The bureau's weighted index number, which includes 404 commodities or price series, registered 149.7 for October, compared with 150.5 for the month before, a decline of one-half of 1 per cent. Compared with October, 1925, with an index number of 157.6, there was a decrease of 5 per cent.

Farm products in general were 1 per cent. lower than in September, due mainly to declines in prices of cotton and cottonseed, onions and potatoes. Corn prices also averaged lower than in the month before, while other grains, hogs, eggs, hides, tobacco and wool were higher. Clothing materials, owing to the drop in cotton goods and raw silk, were 2 per cent. cheaper than in September. In all other groups also, except foods and fuels, prices were slightly below those of the preceding month. Foods showed no change in the general price level, while fuels were 1 1-3 per cent. higher.

Of the 404 commodities or price series for which comparable information for September and October was collected increases were shown in 107 instances and decreases in 114 instances. In 183 instances no change in price was reported.

Following are the bureau's index numbers by groups of articles at different dates, 100 representing the average for 1913:

	Oct., 1926.	Sept., 1926.	Oct., 1925.
Farm products	139.4	141.1	155.3
Foods	152.0	152.0	157.6

France'. Trade Balance Improves.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Thanks to an export balance of practically 1,000,000,000 francs in October, France has reduced the unfavorable balance since January to 600,000,000 francs. The ten months' exports are 48,810,000,000, against 36,-721,000,000 for the same period in 1925, and imports 49,398,000,000, against 33,-988,000,000. The chief increase in imports consists of raw materials and that in exports of manufactured goods.

WOULD GIVE UP RAIL RIGHTS.

Rock Island Asks I. C. C. Permission to Abandon Colorado Line.

Charles Hayden, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, issued the following statement yesterday:

"The Rock Island has filed an application with the Interstate Commerce Commission for a certificate of abandonment of its rights under trackage contracts with the Denver & Rio Grande Western, originally made in 1882, covering the use of the Denver Company's line between Denver and Pueblo. The Rock Island has not operated over the line for several years, and has now made this application in order to get the commission's permission to save further rentals on property which it no longer requires."

Chandler-Cleveland Plants Busy.

The Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation announced yesterday that it was several weeks behind in its orders for metropolitan sedans and roadsters. Improvement in plant operations are being made and it is expected that capacity will be reached early in January.

RAILROAD CALLS NOTES.

Missouri Pacific to Redeem 15-Year Outstanding Collateral.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad Company has called for redemption on Jan. 17, 1927, all its outstanding fifteen-year 7 per cent. sinking fund notes, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railway Company stock collateral.

These notes will be redeemable at the office of the Irving Bank and Trust Company on and after that date, when all interest will cease. Notes presented for redemption will bear the June 1, 1927 coupon and all subsequent coupons. The amount paid in respect of accrued interest from Dec. 1, 1926, to Jan. 17, 1927, will be at the rate of $8.95 for each $1,000 note.

Litle, Engineer, Joins Marmon.

G. M. Williams, president of the Marmon Motor Car Company of Indianapolis, announces that Thomas J. Litle, until recently chief engineer of the Lincoln Motor Car Company of Detroit, has been engaged by the Marmon Company as chief engineer and will assume his new duties immediately. Mr. Litle is President of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

These Are Our "Safety Limits"

What Are Yours?

To make our guaranteed mortgages and certificates unquestionably safe, we have imposed definite limits on our operations, including—

LIMIT ON VOLUME OF GUARANTEED MORTGAGES
(It must never exceed 20 times our capital and surplus, which is now $14,500,000).

LIMIT ON OUR PREMIUM FOR GUARANTEEING
(It must not exceed ½ of 1% per annum of the principal amount guaranteed).

LIMIT ON RATIO OF LOAN TO PROPERTY VALUE
(It must never exceed the 66⅔% required in mortgage investments legal for trustees. It now averages 57%).

LIMIT ON AMOUNT LENT ON ANY ONE MORTGAGE
(It must never exceed 10% of our capital and surplus. A similar limit applies by law to national banks).

More than 14,000 investors, including savings banks, insurance companies, and trustees, have made these safety limits their own by investing in our Guaranteed Mortgages and Certificates.

You may invest any amount from $100 to $100,-000 and more at 5% and 5½% interest. Call at our nearest office or send for booklet:

BONDS That Start Right Are Right

THE basic safety of first mortgage real estate bonds rests in the loan itself. The Mortgage House must be accurate in its knowledge of real estate values and conditions in the cities where it operates. It must govern itself and its loans accordingly.

The Adair Realty and Trust Company has been active in the real estate and mortgage investment field for 61-years. It is a common saying in the firm's home city that there is scarcely a piece of property within Atlanta's corporate limits that has not at one time or another passed through the House of Adair.

During these more than three-score years, millions of dollars in first mortgage investments have been handled by the firm. So accurate has its judgment been that every dollar of principal and interest has been paid promptly to investors on the due date.

It is this fundamental safety that makes possible the other safeguards you secure in Adair Guaranteed-Insurable Bonds—the unconditional guarantee of principal and interest by the House of Adair, with capital, surplus and profits of $2,500,000; a check on the firm's status through regularly published financial statements; the optional privilege of insuring your investment against loss of principal and interest in one of the nation's leading surety companies, with resources of $30,000,000.

ADMITS LAND VALUE BASED ON LONE SALE

TOOK MAN'S WORD ON PRICE

Did Not Think Verification Needed, He Says—Wendt's Figures Not Yet Accepted.

Opposition to the Long Island Railroad's application for a 20 per cent. increase in its commutation rates scored yesterday at a joint hearing before the Transit Commission and the Public Service Commission in the latter's offices at 120 Broadway, when Thomas J. Burnett, realty expert for the railroad company, admitted under cross-examination that frequently he had based his appraisal of parts of the company's roadbed on the unconfirmed figure of a single near-by real estate sale.

Mr. Burnett said he considered the comparative value of surrounding real estate the most important of four elements to be considered in making an appraisal. His cross-examination was conducted by Maurice Hotchner, counsel for the Association of Long Island Commuters.

Picking at random from a huge pile of blueprints which had been entered in evidence in connection with Mr. Burnett's report that the land in the railroad's roadbed in Suffolk County and on the Port Washington Branch was worth $6,496,506, Mr. Hotchner selected a blueprint dealing with the company's roadbed at Patchogue, L. I., and asked the witness to describe in detail the steps which he had taken in appraising the property shown on the map.

Testifying as to property in one zone shown on the map, Mr. Burnett said he had based his comparison of values on the sale of a piece of land of which he had been told by a real estate broker in Patchogue. He admitted that he had not verified the statement and said he had not thought it necessary to do so.

Asked if it were not a practice of some realtors to exaggerate the prices received by them, Mr. Burnett said he knew that brokers often "told the newspaper" fictitious prices, but he maintained that they invariably were truthful when they gave information to others in the real estate business.

Mr. Burnett testified that he had been in the real estate business in Flushing and Bayside thirty-five years. His competency as an expert was questioned by Assistant Corporation Counsel Vincent Victory, who attempted unsuccessfully to draw admissions from him that he was not thoroughly familiar with land values on Long Island.

At the beginning of the hearing, Transit Commissioner Leon C. Godley announced that the Commissioners were not ready to report their decision as to the admissibility of testimony given at preceding hearings by Edwin T. Wendt, consulting engineer for the railroad company, the competency of whose estimates on replacement costs had been questioned. Mr. Victory and Mr. Hotchner have contended that Mr. Wendt's report was made on figures supplied by others than himself, particularly by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that his testimony was therefore incompetent. Rejection of Mr. Wendt's testimony probably would delay the case a year, or until the company could assemble facts for a new report. During this delay, the fares would remain as at present. It was said there was a division of opinion between members of the two commissions, the Public Service Commissioners being inclined to accept Mr. Wendt's testimony, while Mr. Godley, who had been representing the Transit Commission in these hearings, was for rejecting it. The hearing will be continued next Tuesday.

NO PANIC AHEAD, HE SAYS.

Carl Snyder Tells Rotarians Disaster Can Be Averted.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 16.—Financial panics with public distress and unemployment will be averted in future by intelligent application of business knowledge gained under a system devised since the World War, said Carl Snyder, general statistician of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, in an address to the Atlantic City Rotary Club in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel today. After remarking that booms seemed to come in cycles of eighteen or twenty years and to be followed by panic, as in 1873, 1893 and 1907, he said:

"Now the question is whether our period of recent prosperity is to be followed by a panic. My judgment is we will not have a panic. Fundamental changes which have taken place in the last ten years will prevent it if the situation is handled intelligently. We have been trying to measure the state of business so as to mark a course of progress.

"Depressions in business and the upward spurts called booms are just incidents in the steady growth. There has been a steady rise through every decade, and when you read in the newspapers that business is dead, it is really going on at the rate of 90 per cent. of the normal volume."

TEST NEW ELECTRIC ENGINE.

Westinghouse Engineers Finish a Locomotive for Great Northern.

Completion of tests of the world's largest motor-generator locomotive was announced yesterday by F. H. Shepard, director of heavy traction of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The locomotive, which will haul 200 cars, is the first completed on an order placed by the Great Northern Railway. It will be used to pull trains on the electrified division of the railroad through the Cascade Mountains in the State of Washington. This includes one of the longest and steepest mountain grades in America.

"This locomotive makes possible combination of high-tension, alternating current transmitted great distances from hydro-electric stations and direct current motors as simple as those used on trolley cars," Mr. Shepard said.

"Power is drawn from an overhead wire that carries 11,000 volts of alternating current. This current is then converted by a motor-generator into direct current for the tractive motors. This arrangement eliminates the need for substations along the right of way and also converts the alternating current into direct current only as it is needed."

The locomotive has a maximum rating of 7,000 horsepower and a continuous rating of more than 3,500 horsepower at fifteen miles per hour.

SAYS WAR AIDED CHEMISTRY

Sir Wm. Alexander Finds Synthetic Methods Taught Economy.

The introduction of synthetic production methods in the chemical industry as a result of the World War has caused the industry to make large strides in America toward more economical production of a wide variety of products, according to Sir William Alexander of London, England, President of the American British Chemical Supplies Company, Inc., who spoke at the British Empire Chamber of Commerce luncheon yesterday.

Sir William pointed out a dozen examples of production both here and in England of various chemical articles used in many industries which are now being made by synthetic processes. This sort of accomplishment, he said, was an exceptional example of what American and British cooperative and collaborative enterprise was doing for the chemical industry initially and indirectly for industry as a whole.

Captain Hilton Philipson, former member of Parliament, discussed the influence of trade unions in English politics.

TWO EXTRA DIVIDENDS DECLARED ON STOCKS

Douglas-Pectin Co. and C., N. O. & T. P. Railway Announce Payments—3 Increases.

Two extra payments and two increases in dividend rates were the high lights in dividend actions yesterday. Directors of the Douglas-Pectin Company announced an extra distribution of 50 cents on the capital stock, in addition to the regular quarterly of the same amount. The same extra was declared for the third quarter, thus making $2.50 a share to be paid this year, against $1.25 last year.

The Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway declared an extra dividend of 3 per cent. on the common stock, in addition to the regular semi-annual disbursements of 4 per cent. on common and 1¾ per cent. on the preferred.

A dividend of 75 cents a share on common was declared by the Niagara, Lockport and Ontario Power Company, as against a rate of 50 cents in previous quarters. The regular quarterly payment of 1¾ per cent. also was declared on the preferred.

Borg & Beck announced a quarterly dividend of $1 on the capital stock. Previously the rate was 75 cents per share.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 16.—Directors of the Gabriel Snubber Manufacturing Company today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 87½ cents per share on the common stock, payable Jan. 2, to stock of record Dec. 15. The regular quarterly dividend during the past year has been 62½ cents per share. No extra dividend was declared.

Announcement also was made that the company had developed a new type of snubber which would set new standards in riding comfort. The new snubber is designed for the balloon tires and more flexible springs common to present day motor cars.

FOHS SEES POSSIBILITY OF OIL IN PALESTINE

Geologist Tells Convention 300 Square Miles Warrant Tests for Oil and Gas.

Oil possibilities in Mesopotamia, Palestine, Siam, New Zealand, as well as in Canada and South America, were discussed yesterday at the second day's session of the mid-year meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists held at the Hotel Pennsylvania. About one hundred geologists from various sections of the United States, South America and other countries are attending the meeting of the association, of which Alex W. McCoy of Denver, Col., is President.

F. Julius Fohs, chief geologist of the Humphreys Corporation and Chairman of the Petroleum Division of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, was among the six delegates who addressed the meeting yesterday. His subject was "The Geology and Oil and Gas Possibilities of Palestine and the Sinaitic Peninsula." Of a total of 12,700 square miles in Palestine proper, he said, more than three hundred square miles offer structural conditions warranting testing for oil and gas. The Sinaitic Peninsula also offers possibilities, he said, although there is little possibility of oil in Western Transjordania. "With ample reservoir beds, with ample source material and with good structural traps," said Mr. Fohs, "we see every reason for the development of an oil supply in Palestine."

Other speakers were W. B. Heroy, who read a paper by Wallace Lee on the oil prospects of Siam; Frederick G. Clapp, who discussed Northeastern China; G. S. Hume, who spoke on Canadian oil fields; Arthur Iddings, whose subject was oil possibilities in Peru; E. W. Shaw, who spoke on Persia and Mesopotamia, and Faison Dixon, who spoke on oil development in Spain.

The meeting will end this morning.

Utah Copper Co. Profit Rises.

A net profit of $4,233,421, after taxes and depreciation, but before depletion, is shown for the third quarter of this year by the Utah Copper Company. This equals $2.60 a share, par $10, earned on $16,244,900 of capital stock, and compares with $3,296,836, or $2.03 per share, in the preceding quarter and $2,894,672, or $1.78 per share, in the third quarter of last year.

MACHINERY BUYING DULL.

Decline Ascribed to Lessening of Automotive Operations.

A slackening has been noted in the last week in the buying movement in the machinery industry, the decline being ascribed to the lessening of operations in the automotive industry, according to The American Machinist. More than one important industrial centre has marked a definite restriction in the call for equipment, but other markets have experienced a good call for tools. Inquiries point to a steady volume of replacement buying for the remainder of the year.

"The larger automobile manufacturers in the Detroit district are marking time until after the turn of the year and a further decline in business in that territory is expected," the periodical says. "Chicago reports increased buying interest in miscellaneous equipment. November sales are running ahead of October in Indianapolis and the outlook in Cincinnati is regarded as favorable. Scattered buying by railroads and textile plants is noted in the South. A large Government order placed in New England has revived hopes of further industrial activity in that section. Trade in New York continues slow."

COPPER OUTPUT INCREASES.

October Production in United States Totaled 75,643 Tons.

Production of crude copper in the United States in October totaled 75,643 short tons, against 71,728 in September, and 72,014 in August. For the first ten months of the year the production amounted to 724,809 tons.

Smelter production in October was 88,034 short tons, against 80,320 in September, and 77,613 in August; for the ten-months period it reached 805,513 tons. Blister produced from scrap amounted in October to 2,226 short tons, against 1,627 in September, and 1,745 in August; for the January-October period it reached 15,786 tons.

World production of copper by countries which furnished about 97 per cent. of the 1924 total, was 137,659 short tons in October, 132,013 in September, 128,568 in August and 1,310,929 tons for the ten months.

Bringing in TIN — Paying out GOLD

NATURE is most sparing in her deposits of tin. This rare metal comes chiefly from the Malay States, Bolivia, the Dutch East Indies and China. No substitute has yet been found for tin.

HERE are a few of its many uses: . . . It twinkles at us from kitchen shelves . . . Is used by silk dyers and finishers . . . Improves the tones of organ pipes . . . Coats the cans which carry food to hungry millions . . . Is essential in solder and type metal . . . Forms an important part of babbitt metal, without which the wheels of industry and transportation would come to a standstill.

AMERICA uses more than half the tin produced in the world. At times there are wide price fluctuations due to the fact that the local demand often exceeds the available supply. In emergencies the consumer may make use of the London Metal Exchange, the principal international trading market for tin.

Payment for purchases of tin and other metals is made through the intermediary of our commercial banks. Only a bank with intimate knowledge of all products, foreign trade customs and financial requirements abroad can give the most intelligent, efficient and profitable assistance to the importer.

Such an institution is the Seaboard. We handle the foreign business of many well-established importers of the most varied lines, and will gladly explain how our services are personally applied to meet the exacting needs of individual clients.

DECLINE REPORTED IN CRUDE OIL OUTPUT

Daily Average Production Is 2,343,850 Barrels for Week to Nov. 13.

FIRST DROP IN SEVEN WEEKS

Greatest Part of Decrease Is East of the Rocky Mountains—Institute's Figures.

Crude oil production in the United States averaged 2,343,850 barrels a day in the week ended on Nov. 13, a decrease of 13,200 from the daily average of 2,357,050 barrels produced in the previous week, the American Petroleum Institute estimated yesterday. This is the first decline in production in seven weeks.

The greater part of the decrease was east of California. The average daily output east of that State was 1,710,650 barrels, as contrasted with 1,722,850 barrels in the week preceding, or a drop of 12,200 barrels. Following is a comparison of estimates of production in various sections, given in barrels of forty-two gallons each:

	1926 Nov. 13.	1926 Nov. 6.	1925 Nov. 14.
Oklahoma	548,600	537,500	486,200
Kansas	114,000	114,900	107,250
North Texas	260,000	256,900	78,450
East Central Texas	56,100	56,500	70,250
West Central Texas	113,650	109,300	72,700
Southwest Texas	42,600	42,900	40,900
North Louisiana	56,900	57,500	46,300
Arkansas	144,400	146,200	192,450
Gulf Coast	173,600	177,000	85,350
Eastern	111,000	110,500	106,000
Wyoming	62,050	63,900	82,000
Montana	17,850	18,850	15,650
Colorado	7,300	7,250	5,850
New Mexico	4,600	4,650	6,050
California	633,200	634,200	644,500
Total	2,343,850	2,357,050	2,039,100

Imports of petroleum at the principal American ports in the week ended on Nov. 13 were 824,000 barrels, a daily average of 117,714 barrels, as compared with 1,279,000 barrels, or a daily average of 182,714 barrels, for the week ended on Nov. 6, and a daily average of 160,179 barrels for the four weeks ended on Nov. 13.

Receipts of California oil at Atlantic and Gulf ports for the week ended on Nov. 13 amounted to 636,000 barrels, a daily average of 90,857 barrels, against 772,000 barrels, a daily average of 110,285, for the preceding week and a daily average of 87,179 barrels for the past four weeks.

The Petroleum Institute estimates that pipe-line and tank-farm gross domestic crude oil stocks east of the Rocky Mountains increased 170,000 barrels in October.

Jones Brothers Tea Co. Profit.

The Jones Brothers Tea Company reports a net profit of $50,058 for the third quarter of this year. This equals $1.33 a share earned on 37,600 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. It compares with $1,421, or 3 cents a share, in the same quarter last year. Sales were $5,320,427, as against $5,707,254 last year. For the nine months to Sept. 30 the net income was $142,814, or $3.79 a share, on the preferred, as against $54,565, or $1.45 a share, in the same period of last year.

STOCKS MAKE GAINS IN COUNTER MARKET

Continued strength ruled through most of the day on the over-the-counter market yesterday, particularly in the miscellaneous industrial and bank stocks groups.

Gilliland Oil preferred was in good demand and advanced 4 points, while American Piano scored a day's gain of about 3½ points. Gas & By-Products, which has recently reflected a poor market, showed decided improvement. Scoville Manufacturing went to a new high on the current move. Moderate gains were registered by Remington Arms common and preferred, Newport Company prior common and United Milk Products.

National Bank of Commerce moved up moderately to a high record, and First National Bank attained the best levels on the current upturn. Fair advances were made by United States Trust, Equitable Trust and Guaranty Trust.

Among the utilities, South Jersey Gas Electric & Traction was slightly higher and the main body of these shares held steady on good inquiry. In the bond group, New England Oil Refining 8s of 1931 were substantially higher. Insurance stocks made a good showing with a number of rather fair gains.

WHEAT PRICES DROP AFTER EARLY RALLY

Talk of Rain in Argentina Causes a Flurry, but Sales Cause Net Losses.

OTHER MARKETS ARE WEAK

Export Demand Better—Short Covering and Investment Buying Advance Corn.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Reports of rains in Northern Argentina, where the wheat harvest is on, caused a rally of around 1 cent after an opening decline; but pressure from houses with New York and Northwestern connections quickly filled buyers up and the finish was about the inside figures with net losses of 1⅜ to 1½ cents.

Winnipeg showed marked weakness with the pool credited with selling and a loss of 2⅛ to 2⅜ cents, while Liverpool finished 1¼d lower to ⅝d higher, the latter on May and the former on December.

Heavy rains were reported in the Province of Buenos Aires, with showers in other sections, but the Buenos Aires market closed weak and ½ to 2 cents lower, with the December leading.

Near-by deliveries were affected by the practical ending of the coal strike, pressure of Manitobas and prospects that an attempt would be made to deliver tough No. 3 Manitobas on future contracts. Private cables claimed that the attempt would probably not succeed.

The apparent world's surplus materially exceeds the estimated needs of importers, even after allowing for a building up of reserves, with possibly 25,000,000 bushels more of wheat in exporting countries than required by importers and a lack of aggressive buying for forward shipment.

At the time Liverpool closed today May wheat there was only 12⅝ cents over the same delivery in Chicago, indicating a decided indifference regarding future supplies; a normal shipping parity between the two markets is around 22 cents or more.

Australian cables received today placed the exportable surplus in sight at 112,000,000 to 120,000,000 bushels.

Export demand from abroad was better, with the seaboard estimating sales of all positions at 500,000 to 600,000 bushels, and there were 250,000 bushels of Canadian durum sold at Montreal. Cash wheat premiums in the West were firm, with red Winter here ½ to 1 cent higher, as compared with yesterday.

Primary arrivals today were 1,228,000 bushels; week ago, 1,262,000; last year, 1,118,000. Shipments were 513,000 bushels; week ago, 1,040,000; last year, 817,000.

A local operator who has been active on the bear side of corn of late was credited with having been a free buyer today and, with covering by other shorts and some investment buying, prices were advanced around 1 cent over the previous day's finish. In spite of the late weakness in wheat the close was ⅜ to ¾ cent higher.

The visible supply is about the largest on record for this season, with the new crop advertised as of poor quality.

A fair export business has been put through in the past few days at the seaboard, with 50,000 bushels known to have been disposed of.

Buenos Aires was weak and 2 cents lower and Pacific Coast messages said Argentine grain for deferred shipment was offered at equal to 5 cents under what it could be secured for in the Central West.

Primary arrivals today were 697,000 bushels; week ago, 955,000; last year, 961,000, and shipments, 633,000 bushels; week ago, 252,000; last year, 346,000.

Oats closed ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower and rye off 2 cents, with the break in wheat the main influence.

WHEAT FUTURES ACTIVE.

An active trade and a rapid, fluctuating market featured wheat futures on the New York Produce Exchange yesterday. In the early trading prices sagged off ½c a bushel and later recovered these losses on buying by local cash interests and shorts and reports of rain in the Argentine.

Offerings increased on the bulges, and under general selling and liquidation, due to relative weakness at Winnipeg and hedging pressure, the market closed at the day's low levels and displayed a heavy undertone. Another factor that had some influence in the general depression was the report that estimates on Argentine and Australian surplus were being maintained at the recent figure.

CANADA WHEAT ACRES DROP.

Potato Yield Is 92.2 Cwt. Per Acre as Against 77.6 Year Before.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 16 (AP).—Canada's total area, estimated as sown to Fall wheat up to Oct. 31 last for the season 1927, excluding British Columbia, is 807,900 acres, as compared with 992,600, the area sown in 1925 for 1926. The total sown this year, according to a crop report issued today, represents a decrease of 184,700 acres, or 19 per cent.

The preliminary estimate of the total yield in 1926 of potatoes is 50,456,000 cwt. from 545,172 acres, or 92.2 cwt. per acre, as compared with 42,379,900 cwt. from 545,891 acres, or 77.6 cwt. per acre in 1925, and 55,963,433 cwt. from 602,055 acres, or .93 cwt. per acre, the annual acreage for the three years 1922-24.

TO STUDY COTTON PROBLEM

Bankers' Agricultural Commission to Meet Dec. 1 in Chicago.

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association will meet in Chicago Dec. 1 and 2 to consider permanent solution of the cotton problem, methods for combating the ravages of the corn borer and other questions important to the agricultural life of the country, according to an announcement yesterday by Burton M. Smith, President of the Bank of North Lake, Wis., and Chairman of the Commission.

The first day's sessions will be held at the First National Bank of Chicago, and those attending will be the guests of Melvin A. Taylor, President of the bank and of the American Bankers Association. The meeting on the second day will be in the Stock Yards National Bank, where the members will be the guests of S. T. Kiddoo, President of the institution.

COMMODITY PRICES.

New high tops were again registered in butter and eggs yesterday, on top of the good-size advance scored on Monday. Butter, 92, went up to 51 cents, while eggs, fresh gathered firsts, rose to 47@53 cents. Lard continued weak and to a new low, while wheat and rye also gave up ground. Cotton was slightly easier. Groceries, other provisions and metals were unchanged.
